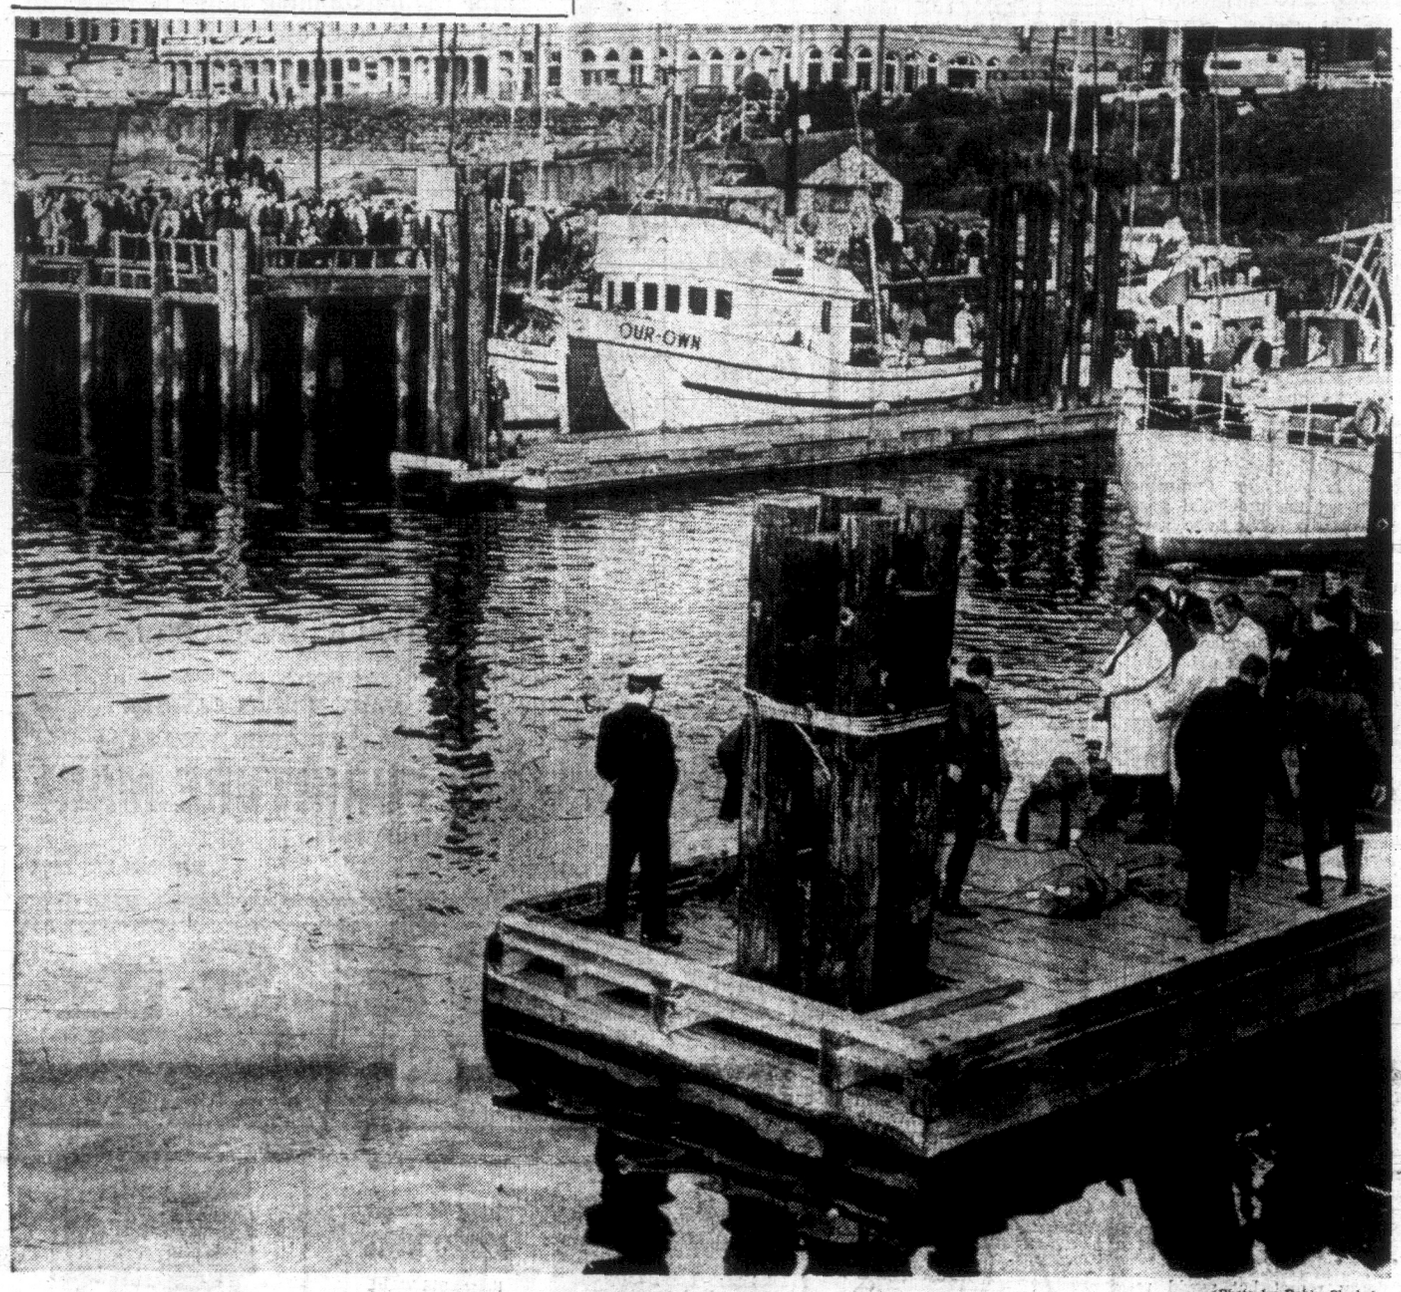
'No Doubt It's Murder;' Osland Found in Harbor



(Photo by Robin Clarke)

Police Team To California

By DON VIPOND

City police lead an investigating team to San Francisco today after recovering the body of city businessman William Osland from the Inner Harbor Tuesday afternoon.

"There's no doubt it's murder," city police chief John Gregory said this morning.

Linking the case with the California port is the former U.S. Navy supply ship, the Robert M. Emery, which one of Mr. Osland's companies was converting to a floating restaurant-aquarium.

The ship, now called the S.S. Tarantino, was berthed at the foot of Fort Street earlier this month, where the body was found. It is now in San Francisco.

Osland's plastic-wrapped and weighted body was found by navy divers in 23 feet of water Tuesday afternoon in what Chief Gregory called a routine step in the investigation of the missing man.

Osland had suffered three massive head wounds.

He vanished three weeks ago and has been the object of an intensive police hunt since then.

'Involved Personal Circumstances'

One of his business partners, lawyer David Hummel, said today there were "involved personal circumstances" surrounding the life of the murdered man.

"The police ought to have an uninterrupted field of investigation without comment from me," he added, declining further explanation.

But he did say that a complete internal audit had been conducted in the "dozen or so" companies in the partnership involving the dead man and everything was found to be in perfect order.

"There is every indication he did a first-class job right up to the last."

There appears to be no connection between his death and the companies he was involved with, he added.

Mr. Hummel said those close to Osland were all "very shaken" by the discovery of his body. The dead man had been a member of the complicated business partnership for close to seven years.

Friend, Firm Offered Reward

A total of $2,000 had been offered as a reward in the search for Osland, half from the family and friend Ald. Robert Baird and the other half from Diversified Management and Development, the partnership's holding company.

Mr. Hummel said he had not handled the reward matter "but so far as I know there has been no claim and I don't expect any."

Chief Gregory said police launched the under water search as the first step in an investigation from the point where Osland was last seen.

Two sources notified The Times today that they had reported a bad smell near the wharf to police Tuesday morning.

But Chief Gregory said at that time city and Saanich police were meeting on what course the investigation should take and that is where the decision to send divers to the harbor bot-

ILLNESS MAY DELAY FLIGHT OF APOLLO 9

CAPE KENNEDY Fla. (AP) —All three crew members of the Apollo 9 mission developed mild sore throats and nasal condition today and the U.S. space agency said the ailments could cause a day or two delay in Friday's scheduled launching.

Japanese Fishboat Seized

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Japanese fishing vessel Kotoshiro Maru was seized off this northern British Columbia port Tuesday for operating in Canadian fishing waters.

Fisheries Officer Maurice P. Houghton said the 480-ton vessel was fishing inside the 12-mile fishing limit near Hippa Island when stopped by the fisheries patrol vessel Tanu.

The Kotoshiro Maru arrived here under escort today and officers and crew members were being interrogated by fisheries officers.

Mr. Houghton said none of the Japanese crew speaks English and that questioning was being handled through an interpreter.

WELL WITHIN LIMIT

Hippa Island is a small body of land on the west coast of the main group of Queen Charlotte Islands and is situated about 120 airline miles southwest of Prince Rupert.

Reports said the Japanese vessel was seized about 9½ miles off Hippa Island, which would place it well within the 12-mile fishing limit for foreign vessels.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the department of external affairs said charges will be laid against one or more members of the crew under the Coastal Fisheries and Protection Act, which bars foreign vessels from fishing within 12 miles of the Canadian coast.

Maximum fine for violation of section three of the act is $5,000 and seizure of the vessel.

STANLEY TO REPORT ON SECURITIES FIRM

VANCOUVER (CP) — A. D. Peter Stanley, receiver-manager of the Commonwealth Trust group of companies, expects to issue a report in about two week on the affairs of Diversified Income Securities Ltd., a member of his staff said today.

Trading in shares of Diversified Income mutual funds Shares A and B was suspended last November and assets of the company were frozen under a British Columbia Supreme Court order.

The action was taken as part of an investigation by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and William Irwin, provincial superintendent of brokers, into the tangled financial affairs of the Commonwealth group.

Some Progress Seen by Lodge

PARIS (AP) — United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today there has been "some progress" in the Vietnam peace talks here and he believes "something will come out of it."

Talking to correspondents after a 30-minute meeting with Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam, Lodge declined to elaborate, but the implication was that the progress he referred to was in secret contacts with the North Vietnamese.

Neither side has acknowledged such secret talks are taking place. There has been no visible progress in the weekly sessions of the full-scale conference.

"There has been some progress made but it just isn't very rapid," Lodge said. "These things move along in a way that is hard to define.

"I think some progress is being made, some ground work is being laid and I think something will come out of it."

TIDAL WAVES SMASH TOWN

JAKARTA (AP)—An earthquake toppled buildings Sunday in the Madjene region of South Sulawesi and apparently set off a series of tidal waves that smashed a central village on Macassar Strait, Antara news agency reported today.

It said at least 20 persons were killed in the earthquake, but many more were feared killed by the tidal waves.

W. Germany Backs Nixon In Proposed Moscow Talks

BONN (CP) — President Nixon received the West German government's approval today for his planned negotiations with Moscow and in turn assured Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger the United States will support Germany in her negotiations over Berlin.

A German government spokesman said Nixon told Kiesinger he will make his trip to West Berlin Thursday not as a provocation but to show the United States is standing by Berlin, whatever the West German government decides to do about holding its disputed presidential election there next Wednesday.

Nixon pledged wholehearted support for the principle of German reunification and was assured that the West German government regarded co-operation with the United States as a keystone of its policy.

Settling down to key talks with their foreign ministers in the 19th-century Palais Schaumburg, the two leaders traded assurances on the crucial issues of German reunification, the maintenance of the Atlantic alliance and the freedom of Western Europe.

SNOW DELAYS ARRIVAL

After the morning talks—which ended 15 minutes late because snow delayed Nixon's arrival from London—the two men walked to a neighboring villa to lunch with retiring President Heinrich Luebke.

The exchange of mutual reassurances was seen as underscoring West Germany's conviction that European ties with the U.S. must not be loosened in favor of any form of new European economic, political or military association.

Bonn, like other European capitals Nixon is visiting, is deeply preoccupied with French President de Gaulle's reported offer of bilateral talks with Britain on a wider form of economic association in Europe to transform the Common Market and eventual dissolution of NATO.

But neither the chancellor nor the president regarded the current diplomatic row on European unity as being of crisis proportions and both advocated a cool approach during their talks today, the government spokesman said.

ROW EXAGGERATED

Nixon was quoted as saying he thought the differences had been exaggerated.

Ronald L. Ziegler, presidential press secretary, said Nixon told the chancellor that if there were bilateral talks between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, West Germany and other allies would be consulted on all matters affecting their interests.

Nixon also indicated that if bilateral talks took place with the Soviet Union to reduce the danger of war, the U.S. would do nothing to impair the strength of the Western alliance.

Coming from London for the third stop on his eight-day European visit, Nixon told Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt: "The commitment of your nation and mine to the ultimate reunification of Germany —that cannot change."

BUNDESRAT HEARS NIXON

BONN (CP) — American President Nixon came to West Germany today and in an unprecedented appearance before its Bundesrat (parliament) said successful negotiations with the Soviet Union depend on the maintenance of "the strength that made negotiations possible."

The success of the Western alliance, he told the packed assembly, "is indicated by the fact that in the 20 years that it has existed we have had peace as far as this part of the world is concerned and that every one of the nations in the alliance that was free 20 years ago is free today including the free city of West Berlin."

More 'Surprises' in Trust Controversy

By JOHN MIKA

Opposition MLAs Tuesday fired questions and criticism at Premier Bennett to uncover a few more surprises in the Commonwealth Trust controversy and also gave him the ultimate gesture of scorn—a motion to cut his salary by $1 for the first time.

The motion of non-confidence in an individual minister is seldom used—the last time being in 1967 against Works Minister Chant.

Its mover, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, said he could not remember the premier ever before being singled out for the personal rebuke throughout his often-stormy career.

It was defeated 29 to 23 by the government majority in a division that ended the second consecutive attack on the government for its handling of Commonwealth Trust responsibilities.

The onslaught lasted 3½ hours, bringing the cumulative total to six hours of debate on the Commonwealth situation despite appointment of a royal commission Friday to add its scrutiny to a current police investigation.

Tuesday's instalment in the legislature, added these new facets to the unfolding developments:

- The federal Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation already has loaned $2 million to Commonwealth Trust as working capital out of a $3.5 million total line of credit it has authorized;
- Premier Bennett's statement Monday to MLAs that it was the federal government which suggested the provincial government put money into the company was denied. Instead federal Finance Minister Benson claimed B.C. officials made an appointment to discuss a proposal that the province make a loan;
- Demands were made that the government or Vancouver Stock Exchange "explain" a report that two years ago VSE consideration of delisting several Commonwealth group companies was stopped after then-attorney-general Robert Bonner heard about it;
- Health Minister Ralph Loffmark denied that he had any knowledge whatever of the state of Commonwealth Trust's affairs when he asked CDIC to expedite insurance coverage for the company's depositors nor when he drafted a letter for Premier Bennett to sign authorizing Commonwealth to apply for coverage;
- Loffmark admitted he had seen Commonwealth Trust's president A. G. Duncan Crux in the latter's office on recent occasions but denied that he discussed the company's financial straits;
- Premier Bennett said former deputy finance minister J. V. Fisher, who became vice-president of Commonwealth Trust after leaving government service but resigned last November shortly before his death, never discussed the company with him at any time;
- Liberal Leader Pat McGeer claimed the B.C. government probably wants to lend Commonwealth Trust money to help the Bank of B.C. or some other "un-named shareholder-to-be waiting in the wings" eventually take over the company;

. . . TRUST CONTROVERSY

● Premier Bennett denied that Bonner quit as attorney-general last summer because of responsibility for the Commonwealth Trust debacle and incumbent attorney-general Leslie Peterson denied he called the royal commission inquiry "to save his own skin";

● The government "assumes" Bonner received the copy of the CDIC letter listing 15 serious breaches by Commonwealth Trust when it was sent almost two years ago;

● Al Williamson, a public relations man who was connected to party campaign fund collector Einar Gunderson and went to jail for forging Premier Bennetts name to the famed "Dear Hal" letter seeking favors for Harry Stonehill, was a director of Commonwealth Trust before his arrest in 1964.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said he would support the $1 salary cut amendment but said Strachan was "being too lenient" and should have made the cut bigger.

He said he phoned Ottawa to check Premier Bennett's statement Monday that Humphrys of the CDIC had suggested to B.C. deputy attorney-general Gilbert Kennedy, in a meeting in Ottawa, that the provincial government give money to Commonwealth Trust.

Asked for Meeting

He said Humphrys refused to confirm the premier's statement.

"I later talked with the minister of finance of Canada (Edgar Benson) and far from the federal finance department making such a request, he said Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Smith, whoever he may be (Mel Smith, solicitor in the attorney-general's department) requested a meeting with CDIC so they could make a proposal of a loan to Commonwealth Trust from the provincial government.

"We have been misled in this house and now we find it was the provincial government who made the approach and suggested the loan," McGeer said.

"I am shocked to hear that information supplied to this house by the premier on Monday is not true," said Dowding. "It seems he is not getting the assistance around him which he deserves as premier."

Social Credit MLAs began making counter-attacks for the first time in support of Premier Bennett towards the end of Tuesdays grilling, urging him directly to end the inquisition by calling a snap election.

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) observed that MLAs like Herb Capozzi "may be ready but I don't think the premier is ready for an election."

Counter-Attack

Attorney-General Peterson launched a vigorous counter-attack against the opposition near the end of the debate.

"It should be obvious to the people already that this government had nothing to hide and I resent the effort of the leaders of the opposition and the Liberals to give the impression it did."

The opposition spotlight Tuesday first settled on Health Minister Loffmark who was mentioned in the April 15, 1967, letter by CDIC director R. Humphrys to Commonwealth Turst's president listing the 15 "important changes" required before deposit insurance could be obtained. (The 15 points were published verbatim in Tuesday's Times.)

Ottawa Didn't Recommend Loan

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Tuesday it is "absolutely not true" that a federal insurance official recommended the British Columbia government provide financial assistance for the foundering Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. of Vancouver.

Mr. Benson was commenting in an interview on a report quoting Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia as saying his government planned to provide the Commonwealth group with a $3,000,000 interest-free loan at the behest of Richard Humphrys, federal superintendant of insurance.

"Now you've got me fighting with Mr. Bennett," the finance minister said. "But Mr. Humphrys did not recommend that the B.C. government put money into Commonwealth."

Mr. Benson said talks have been going on between federal and B.C. officials about CAC, whose assets were frozen last November. Attempts are being made to have CAC declared bankrupt. CAC is guaranteed by the federal government.

Mr. Benson said the suggestion for B.C. government financial intervention came from B.C. officials.

"The company needs more money, but not necessarily from the British Columbia government," Mr. Benson said. "It should come from the shareholders."

Opposition Leader Strachan asked why Loffmark was anxious that the provincial government not have to agree to an indemnity arrangement with the federal government over Commonwealth Trust.

Berger said the letter made it plain that Loffmark "used his influence as a minister on behalf of a private corporation" by phoning Ottawa and drafting a letter for the premier to sign assisting the company obtain CDIC insurance without ascertaining that it deserved help.

"Nothing could show more clearly than the 14th point how chaotic and perilous the company's accounting was," stormed Berger.

(He was referring to Humphry's letter which said all acounting procedures had to be tightened up and the company auditors had to stop keeping the books they were supposed to be double-checking.)

Affairs in Disorder

"And it's clear that the minister (Loffmark) got a clean bill of health for a company whose affairs were in complete disorder . . . jeopardizing the depositors and investors of the company."

Loffmark said as then minister of trade, he received numerous calls from B.C. financial companies wishing to determine whether they would be allowed to obtain federal deposit insurance on a uniform basis.

"That was the only subject upon which I had any discussions with Commonwealth or any of them.

"It appeared there was only one that was in a position to apply for federal insurance and that was Commonwealth," Loffmark said.

Loffmark said a while later, federal inspectors spoke to him about the methods of taking over responsibility for checking the company.

"At no time did I have the opportunity to examine the financial condition of the company nor did I make any representation, nor did I make representations on its behalf nor could I know what the company's financial affairs were because at no time did I have occasion to see its books."

Later, Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) asked Loffmark if he discussed the possibilities of the government bailing out Commonwealth Trust at meetings "with Mr. Crux, more recently, in his (Crux) office?"

"No," snapped Loffmark. "I never discussed that with anyone."

Berger said Loffmard "stands condemned by the words out of his own mouth" because he admitted he had not investigated the company's affairs before preparing a letter for the premier to sign "in clear breach of his duty to this government."

He said Loffmark was not the proper minister in the first place because the province's laws made the attorney-general responsible for trust company affairs.

"The House has a right to know if the attorney-general was consulted.

"The premier should never have signed that letter because it hadn't come from the minister responsible and there wasn't any inquiry made.

"And why haven't we heard from the then-attorney-general, now the member for Cariboo (Bonner) in this debate?

"We're entitled to an answer even if every member of this government who was involved in this matter has to get to his feet and explain."

'Power-Brokering'

David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said Loffmark's statements showed that individual ministers were engaged in "power-brokering within the cabinet" and should resign.

He said it was "absolutely unheard of, absolutely incredible" that Commonwealth's auditors should also sit on the company's advisory board.

"Everyone recognizes which Gunderson I'm talking about, we hear his name often," said Barrett.

Barrett said the premier should never have signed the letter written by Loffmark because it got him into trouble.

"The last time the premier got in trouble with Ottawa, it was over a letter he didn't sign — the one signed by Al Williamson, who happen also to be a former director of this company," said Barrett.

Dowding asked when the premier or the government received a copy of Humphry's letter to Crux listing the 15 deficiencies in Commonwealth Trust operations.

"I saw it for the first time yesterday when I tabled it," replied the premier.

Dowding repeated the question to the attorney-general.

"I don't know because it was before my time," replied Peterson, "but I presume it was sent (to the department) at the same time (two years ago) as the original."

"You're okay," called out Barrett to Peterson.

"It's the other guy across the way," Barrett added, pointing at Bonner's empty seat.

McGeer also claimed that CDIC's legislation permitted it to create receivers, loan money and take shares in any companies it insures to reduce the risk of insuring them.

CDIC on the Hook

He said this "put CDIC on the hook" to bail out Commonwealth yet the provincial government was doing those very things, including a proposal to lend $3 million of taxpayers' money interest-free.

He said it could only be for one of three motives.

The first was that the provincial government was naive and the second was out of a sense of guilt for having failed to supervise the trust company properly.

"Or, and this is the possibility which fits in most closely—the government wants to help out some future as-yet-unnamed shareholder.

"If the CDIC took over the situation, it would block the new shareholder out," said McGeer.

He said Peterson made it clear Friday that the government expects someone to put up a $3 million in private equity capital to match the government loan for Commonwealth.

"Who is this shareholder waiting in the wings? Is it the Bank of B.C.? The bank is a possibility."

Opposition Leader Strachan sharply criticized McGeer for "damaging the only financial institution we have in this province, the Bank of B.C." with statements "unworthy" of an MLA.

He said he had himself considered the possibility of the bank being involved behind the scenes but after further consideration realized the "impossibility of this."

Replying later to McGeer, Attorney-General Peterson said CDIC had every legal right to lend money to Commonwealth as stated "but what the honorable leader of the Liberals doesn't know is that this federal agency already has put over $2 million into Commonwealth.

"He didn't know or he wouldn't make those statements," Peterson jeered as government MLAs began laughing.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) called out: "The federal government actually has authorized a line of credit (from CDIC to Commonwealth) of $3.5 million."

"This ($2 million) is extending money—the actual line of credit is greater than that."

Asked when the CDIC money was put into Commonwealth, Peterson replied: "I can't give you the date but it was some time ago."

Delisting Considered

"Why didn't you tell us this on Friday (when Peterson announced plans for the provincial $3 million loan)?" demanded Strachan.

"Nobody asked," said Peterson.

"How could we? We didn't have the floor?" retorted Strachan.

(Outside the house, Peterson told reporters the CDIC money in Commonwealth Trust was a loan and not equity capital.

(He also said he believed it was advanced about the time the province appointed A. D. Stanley as receiver-manager of the company last August.)

Dowding read a 1967 newspaper report which said the Vancouver Stock Exchange, worried about the ramifications of the Atlantic Acceptance and Prudential Finance collapses in Ontario, was considering delisting some of the Commonwealth group's companies.

"A serious condition was noted by the Vancouver Stock Exchange but it was hampered or it was stopped by the attorney-general's department."

. . . MURDER

tom was made.

Earlier reports said he was spotted standing on the corner of Fort and Cook just before 2 p.m. Feb. 3 and apparently headed for the ship.

Navy divers who recovered the body took under water pictures before easing it into a orange canvas bag and towing it to a wharf. It took about eight men to haul the bulky bundle from the water.

Identification was made by Osland's parents Tuesday evening.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre said today he has received the autopsy report but would release no details on cause of death prior to an inquest which is expected to open this week.

Chief Gregory would not comment on a possible motive for the murder or say whether the dead man had been robbed.

"We're going to look the ship over again as it would appear this ship is involved in this murder. We have solicited the aid of the San Francisco police and two men are going down to assist in the search for further evidence."

Next step in the investigation is "questioning everybody who has any connection with the case whatsoever," said the chief.

"Certainly it's a rather bizarre case and it's going to take a lot of painstaking investigation."

Police spokesmen were generally tight-lipped today.

"We'd rather hold our comments to a basic minimum," said the chief. "We don't want to give out any information which might in any way jeopardize the successful conclusion of the case."

The dead man was 35, married with two children. He lived at 2831 Sea View Drive.

Suit Filed in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP)—A claim for $250,000 was filed with the Tokyo District Court by Helga Lander of West Germany against Canadian Pacific Airlines for the death of her son in a CPA plane crash in 1966. The Japanese government was named as co-defendant.

MONTREAL (CP)—Six men got away with a bag of registered mail valued at between $50,000 and $100,000 in a lunch-hour robbery at the CNR's downtown Central Station today.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The southern half of B.C. was cloudy Tuesday night. Rain fell along the coast and snow occurred in the interior. The rest of the province was clear and cold. Overnight temperatures ranged from 36 above at Cape St. James to 14 below at Burns Lake. Today will be cloudy along the south coast with the risk of showers, and snow flurries are likely inland. Northern areas generally will be sunny. Except for more sunshine in the south little change is expected Thursday.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The heavy snowfall all over the colder parts of the continent, and here and there down south, has accounted for a number of fatal heart attacks because the victims were shoveling snow when they shouldn't have. The prolonged hard labor, combined with cold weather, was too much for them.

Those snow-shovelers may have noticed during the months preceding the attack that they often experienced an unusual shortness of breath, which is one symptom of heart trouble. An increased shortness of breath also has been reported in heart patients during spells of hot and muggy weather. Doctors believe, by the way, that foggy weather tends to cause more tiredness in people of all ages, whether they have heart trouble or not.

Pain from heart trouble is thus frequently more severe during a cold wave or during hot and muggy weather.

Book Store Becomes Site of 10th Bombing

MONTREAL (CP) — An explosion shortly before closing time Tuesday rocked the Queen's Printer book shop on downtown St. Catharine Street only minutes after police were tipped off by an anonymous telephone caller.

No one was injured in the blast—the city's 10th this year—although seven employees and one customer were inside at the time.

The explosion in the shop's basement level just before 5 p.m. knocked tiles from the ceiling and scattered Canadian government publications over the floor. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Police said an anonymous telephone caller told them three minutes before the blast that a bomb had been planted in the store. Investigating officers just arrived on the scene when the bomb—planted near a stairway in the basement level of the federal government store—exploded.

Police said they have a description of a young man who entered the store shortly before the blast and asked what time it closed.

Five persons were injured Saturday night when a bomb exploded at the Liberal party's Reform Club on downtown Sherbrooke Street.

Earlier in the month, a powerful blast at the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges injured 27 persons and caused extensive damage.

Reward money totalling $51,000 has been offered for information leading to arrest and conviction of persons responsible for the incidents.

Meanwhile, the terrorist Front du Liberation Quebecois, believed responsible for a rash of bombings in the Montreal region in 1963 which resulted in three deaths, last week claimed responsibility for the bombings in a statement to a local French-language daily newspaper.

Hellyer Mum On Plans For Housing

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Opposition questions on public housing projects glanced off Transport Minister Paul Hellyer Tuesday without letting any light onto the future of the thousands of housing schemes now under federal government review.

Hellyer, questioned by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), refused to be cornered into saying whether or not there was a freeze on federal funds for public housing projects.

"Would the minister tell the House," Stanfield asked him, "whether it is a fact that no federal funds have been approved, as an example, for Ontario's public housing projects—I mention Ontario only for the purpose of an example—during the past two months and that a very substantial number of public housing projects in that province as well as in other provinces are in fact held up awaiting the approval of the government of Canada."

Hellyer's reply was that he "could not say whether it is a matter of fact or not."

SOME APPROVED

"Some projects have been approved," he said, "others are pending awaiting the outcome of the policy review which is presently taking place."

Hellyer said that he did not see much point in his making a statement to the Commons, suggested by Mr. Stanfield, on his weekend conference with provincial ministers on housing.

He told Douglas, who asked if it were true that 3,000 apartment units valued at $38,500,000 were being held up that "it is impossible for me to know which particular projects the honorable member is referring to."

Alexander pursued the interrogation by asking Hellyer directly "whether the contribution of the federal government to urban renewal projects has or has not been frozen."

NOT THAT SIMPLE

"It would be difficult or in fact impossible to give a categorical answer to that question," Hellyer said.

"It is just not that simple," Hellyer added when Alexander asked again for a "yes or no answer."

Some 300 or more housing schemes were involved, the transport minister said, and it would be impossible without reviewing each one of them to say whether or not they would go forward.

Later Hellyer told reporters outside the Commons that it would be impossible to go ahead with the "literally thousands" of public housing schemes in various stages of proposal or planning.

"The country just couldn't afford it," he said.

No project on which work had actually begun would be stopped, he said, although it was possbile that some might be altered.

Some others were too far advanced in the planning stage for it to be possible to turn back, he said.

But he maintained that many of the projects that had been proposed were ridiculous, "really terrible" and bound to lead to "all sorts of psychological problems."

CMHC officials in Victoria said the Rose-Blanshard Urban Renewal scheme would not be affected by any changes in government policy.

The scheme has been approved by Ottawa and the funds released. Contracts for construction are expected to be signed within the next two weeks.

Sewage Plant Planned At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — Residents of Alberni Valley will probably soon be asked to vote on funds needed for a sewage treatment plant.

The provincial government has reaffirmed its position that no further extensions of sewer systems will be allowed until suitable treatment facilities are installed.

Council decided this made action necessary on a treatment plant.

Money could be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing orp. at 6¾ per cent interest. About $125,000 would come from the provincial government if the work was undertaken before March, 1970.

COLOGNE Reuters) — A 48-year-old Spanish woman leaped to her death from a train near this West German city Tuesday when the ticket collector found she had no ticket for her trip from Bad Godesberg. The fare for the journey is 38.80 marks about $1.

Arabs Held In Bombing

JERUSALEM (AP) — Terrorists attacks continued in Israel Tuesday, and among the victims was the British consulate in East Jerusalem.

Explosions blasted the embassy and a market in Lydda, 10 miles east of Tel Aviv.

Israeli officials said a local Arab was wounded and three Arabs were held for questioning after a bomb shook the Lydda marketplace, tearing down utility poles and wrecking a motorcycle. The market had closed for the day.

Police in East Jerusalem said an eight-pound explosive charge placed in a window ripped out three doors of a consulate storeroom, but heavy shutters shielded a lounge where a secretary was drying her hair. There was speculation that the attack resulted from reports that the British were about to supply heavy tanks to the Israelis.

In Amman, Jordan, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the attack on the consulate.

Of the People . . .

THE HISTORY OF CIVIL GOVernment at all levels has also been the story of the effort to keep public what is done in the name of the public; to let the people know how their business is being handled, why and by whom. The effort has been reasonably successful only in democracies, but the public's concern must be continual and actively expressed or the heavy shrouds of official secrecy tend to fall about legislative chambers.

In the age of electronic communication the people have received an invaluable ally. Few democratic bodies in communities of the future will be found functioning without the microphones and television cameras that will make every meeting in the public's name a public meeting.

In view of this, it is imperative that what may turn out to be a newly emerging arm of government should get off to a proper start. It seems that the increasingly frequent gatherings of federal and provincial government heads are destined to play a more important part in our governmental structure. Particularly at this stage of our national development, when the inter-relationship of the central and provincial governments is undergoing a vital change, the government leaders should retain close contact. But it is equally important that what they do and say regarding their respective political fields should be done and said in front of the people whom they serve.

There has been a suggestion that forthcoming meetings at the federal-provincial level should be in private, and the argument is advanced that this will be necessary because of the participation of civil servants. That argument does not hold water. All cabinet ministers have their non-elected advisers, but this does not mean that legislatures need meet in camera. No aspect of our governmental process, particularly when it is concerned with constitutional matters, should be hidden away from the people.

This is especially true of the new inter-communication of prime minister and premiers, for this consultative arrangement is breaking a new legislative trail and there could be some dangers in the development. Our Parliament, with its Senate of varying importance, has established itself as the most feasible means by which laws may be debated and passed while preserving the maximum of democratic freedom and safety. The same system of open debate by citizens elected for the purpose is paralleled in the provincial legislatures. But the increasing resort to confrontation of prime minister and premiers in conference opens up a new level of governmental authority.

The premiers are men elected to legislate provincially, yet now they may evolve governmental functions in the national sphere. How will this affect the sovereignty of Parliament? How much authority should the federal-provincial conferences be allowed—granted that they have a function in discussing constitutional changes since both levels of government are affected?

In any case, it is not so much the constitutional purpose which is in question, but what so handy an arrangement as a chamber of government leaders might develop into. If it performs a valid function, it will survive. We are in an era of unprecedentedly rapid change, and our governmental form may not be exempt. All the more reason, then, for full public exposure of what our elected representatives do.

'Peace and Sanity' at Elk Lake

DISCUSSION IN SAANICH parks and recreation committee this week may have heralded a new phase in legal control of speedboat operation and water-skiing, not only on the lakes of lower Vancouver Island but in other parts of the province as well.

A number of the aldermen expressed dissatisfaction with the noise and inconvenience caused by the boats and, in some instances, favored the banning of ski activity on Elk Lake. The discussion centred on only one body of inland water in this vicinity. But aggravation has also been expressed in other areas where the sheer increase in the number of power-boat-water-ski enthusiasts interferes frequently with swimming and other sports.

The popularity of water skiing has not yet approached its peak. Hundreds more will be taking to the pastime in the summers ahead. When the fast traffic involved becomes heavy enough, other activities—small boat sailing, canoeing, fishing, in some instances swimming, are inevitably curtailed. This is a situation which considerate water ski enthusiasts recognize. When they show due regard for the recreation of others, their activities are usually condoned, though obviously they must operate behind fast boats. When no thought is given to the enjoyment or safety of others—and this applies to some young enthusiasts—they build up resentment and opposition. Abuse of the lakes will result inevitably in tighter controls and even prohibition.

Dividends From Education

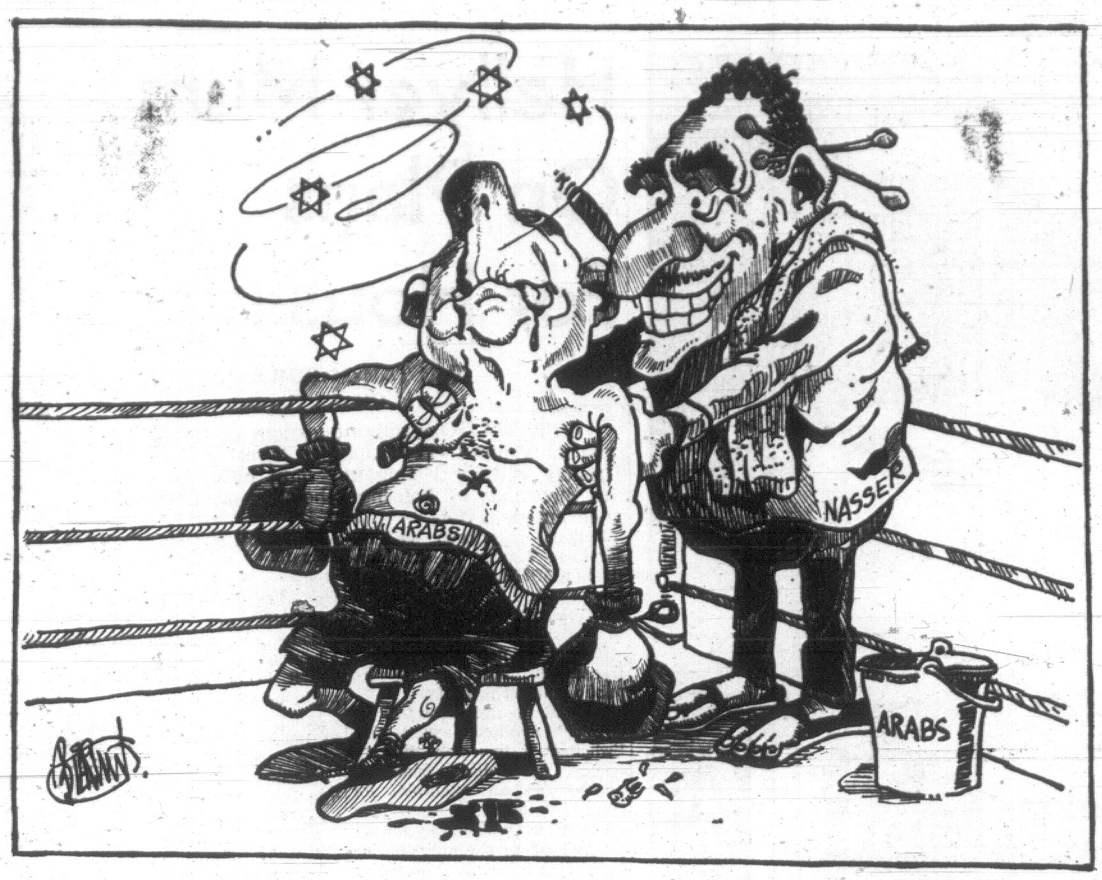
A FEDERAL GOVERNMENT study has demonstrated the cold cash returns from investment in higher education. A person who spends four years to graduate from high school earns, according to the research, 16 per cent more than the one who did not go to high school. The individual who adds another four years to pass through university, increases his income almost another 20 per cent. Lifetime earnings of $151,820 are in prospect for the person with an elementary education, $221,700 for one with a high school education, and $356,108 for a university graduate.

This, of course, is a highly materialistic view of the benefits of higher education. There are many intangibles which must also be listed on the credit side for the man or woman who acquires advanced schooling. The hard cash, however, does not usually interfere with the enjoyment of the extra intangibles.

The message is clear for the young person of ability who sees an attraction in early earnings by quitting school in the lower grades and looking for a job. If he or she finds one, the statistics reveal that its returns will be below the average student's potential. The cost of dropping out before reaching one's highest possible level of achievement comes high.

Victoria Fair

THE PLANS OF THE UNIVERsity of Victoria's School of Fine Arts to organize an annual summer festival of classical plays carry a promise which has been lacking in several unfulfilled projects of the past. The new School has established itself as a centre of stimulating activity in this community—one of the bonuses of Greater Victoria's emergence as a university city— and the latest proposal may well be the first step in creating a local summer attraction that ultimately could win us wide acclaim. The phenomenal success of Stratford, Ontario, in creating its annual drama season would, of course, be very difficult to duplicate. But the plans evolving at the campus for a trial run this year may well mark a new era in this community's history as a centre of theatre and music. Certainly the auspices are encouraging. The public support should match them.



". . . You're a great kid . . . you're beginning to hurt his fists . . ."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Problems of Giving Yourself a Raise

The massive agenda of sessional business unveiled in the House of Commons by Mr. Macdonald may at first glance depress the spirits of members only recently encouraged in good works by rumors of an impending and exhilarating salary reform. According to the formidable calculations of the government House leader, members will be required to complete their work on 19 bills presently being considered and in addition deal with 25, of which 21 have yet to see the light of day. Apart from this legislation, concurrence in three resolutions is required. The time available in 56 minus X days, the "X" representing the time which may or may not be devoted to budget bills.

Western

Perhaps No Budget

Happily there are two straws at which members may hopefully clutch. The first is the possibility that Mr. Benson may not present a budget, in which case there will be no necessity of dealing with budget bills. The second is the record, When the question of salaries was last before Parliament in July 1963 there was such wholehearted co-operation on the part of all groups that it was possible to move the legislation through all stages (with the exception of a pro forma third reading) in a single day.

The difficulty with this sort of reform is not so much the calendar as the reticence of members whose eagerness to do their duty is not matched on such occasions by any thrusting desire to claim the limelight. There is always some apprehension that unsympathetic constituents may suspect a conflict of interests when their representatives address themselves to reform of the Senate and House of Commons Act.

While it is easy enough to state the problem, it is considerably more difficult to suggest a solution, other than dropping the whole business, which might reduce the morale of Parliament to that, say, of the armed services.

Task Force Attractions

The normal course nowadays is to refer problems to a task force. This would have certain attractions. A member who felt in his heart that the proposed increase was far too generous might nevertheless feel compelled to defer to the collective wisdom of colleagues who had, fortunately, given the matter much closer study. The difficulty is the unreliability of voters who cannot be counted upon to sense the importance of these distinctions.

Another course might be to seek advice from the mandarins of the civil service, who can produce answers to practically anything. But this is also hazardous because of the unfortunate public impression that in salary matters the government and the mandarins have been engaged in a game of leap-frog. It will surprise absolutely no one if the recent very marked improvement in the lot of deputy ministers and executives of Crown corporations becomes a persuasive argument for improving the lot of minister, parliamentary assistants, perservering back-benchers and toilers of the appointed House.

The Concerned Auditor

There is one official who might qualify as an arbitrator because he is known, perhaps more favorably in the country than in government circles, for his abiding interest in the fate of the taxpayer's dollars. This is Mr. Maxwell Henderson, the auditor-general.

It is perhaps unfortunate that we pay our elected representatives solely by category, without regard to other factors such as performance. Mr. Henderson not only maintains constant vigil over the departments; he also maintains and annually publishes a box-score of their achievements, as judged by his unimpeachable standards of financial rectitude. Thus he would be advantageously placed to decide what each minister deserved over and above a guaranteed annual income, with due allowance for miscellaneous benefits such as new office furnishings and the shared travel and educational opportunities represented, for example, by the $240,000 odyssey through Latin America.

There is little likelihood, however, that such a solution would commend itself to members, whatever its appeal to the wider public. For one thing, it would probably result in a net saving to the treasury, which is not the object of the exercise. Again there is a sombre possibility that it might lead to further misunderstandings between the auditor-general and the government. Of these there is never a shortage because Mr. Henderson's findings, clear though they generally seem to the lay reader, are almost always incomprehensible to ministers and their shocked officials.

It appears, therefore, that if the bright hopes encouraged by recent reports are to be realized, members will simply have to reconcile themselves to the old procedures, trusting that any adverse reaction will be soothed by the healing processes of time. While such matters are always embarrassing, especially for more sensitive MPs it is probably that with goodwill on all sides the business could be completed in an afternoon and without injury to Mr. Macdonald's timetable.

Could Avoid Embarrassment

There is, of course, a possibility that the rumors and hopeful whispers are not well founded, although it cannot be said that there has been as yet any determined attempt to squelch them. It may be that the whole story is an insubstantial carrot to encourage habits of industry. If so, there should be consolation to members not merely in the reflection that service is its own reward but also in the realization that the House will escape another hour of embarrassment in these times of inflation and popular discontents.

FROM NEW YORK — By JAMES RESTON

A Dash of Hope in American Pessimism

IN THE vast disorder of human affairs today — private and public — something new is beginning to drift into the American spirit. Other societies have lived with it for many generations: it is the element of doubt that in this convulsive and contradictory age we still have the capacity to master our problems.

Reston

The evidence of this pessimistic note is all around us. The men in charge of our Vietnam policy have no answer to the slow and relentless loss of life but to hold the bloody line and wait. The administrators of our universities are dismayed by the tactics of the campus militants and have to rely in the extremity on the police and the National Guard.

The Mayor of New York is overwhelmed by the rising torrent of welfare cases, which now total over a million in the five boroughs. And the Governor of New York is proclaiming a national fiscal crisis which in his view threatens the entire Federal system of government.

Most Threatened

Even so optimistic and thoughtful a man as Caryl Haskins, the president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, seems to be wondering these days. "Our most precious and perhaps our most threatened common possession" he says in his annual report, "is the quality of hope."

If it is true that the most powerful and naturally optimistic people in the world are beginning to wonder whether events are out of control, the outlook for the future is gloomy, indeed. But is this pessimism really justified?

It is true that a series of immense and tragic events over the last two generations have shattered the self-complacency of an earlier age. It is also true that the grandiose schemes for abolishing war and stamping out poverty and integrating the races have led to disillusion and reappraisal. But are these things bad?

Struggling Seriously

There is great turmoil in the nation today mainly because it is really grappling with the most fundamental questions of human life. It is struggling, probably more seriously than ever before and probably more actively than any other nation on earth. with the contradictions of great wealth and poverty, with the selfishness of powerful factions and nations, and with the perplexities and hypocrisies of human relations in the church, the university, and the market place.

Also, we are finally coming to realize that wishes are not policies and that nations which have policies they are not prepared to pay for inevitably loiter down into deep trouble.

Thus, it can at least be argued that America is not rushing forward along a disastrous course, but is actually in the process of turning back toward safer ground. There is a whiff of anarchy on some university campuses, but in general there has actually been less violence in the universities this school year than last.

The rich may be getting richer in America but the poor are certainly not getting poorer. In fact, the paradox of this time is that the uprising of the poor has coincided with the period of their greatest progress and the same can be said for the activities and the progress of the American Negroes.

Moderation Trend

On the international scene, despite Vietnam and Czechoslovakia and the Middle East, the trend is not toward escalation and disarray but toward moderation and negotiation. The days of our moral indifference about foreign relations, and race relations, and university relations, while quieter, were not better but worse than the present, for they led to the conflicts we are now trying to compose.

Maybe, then, the more solemn and cautious and even melancholy mood of the moment is not all bad. It could even be a sign of maturity. Lochinvar and The Sheriff are gone, and Washington has been taken over by less dramatic technicians, but expectations and realities, and ends and means may be coming into better alignment.

Besides, the great majority of the American people were probably not bothering too much with these speculations about pessimism and optimism anyway. The main thing in America is not the political activists, but the nonpolitical majority that just goes on acting, and the quality of hope in them is too deep to be lost in a generation.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, Feb. 26, 1909.

If an amendment to the Municipal Act made by the municipal committee this morning passes the legislature, as no doubt it will, the disfranchisement of householders over 60 will cease, and the 125 gentlemen who were debarred from voting at the recent civic elections will be able to vote in January. The adoption of this change was moved by Fred Davey.

Letters

Just a Phase?

We are writing in regard to the letter of February 20 concerning the smokers of Esquimalt Junior High. We feel that the majority of our student body has been misjudged.

As there is a lack of facilities in and surrounding our school, the people who do smoke are forced to do so in public view. But the majority of the students who do smoke in front of the nearby business establishments are going through a stage. They feel they need to prove themselves "mature" to the older students by smoking where everyone can see them. This phase usually wears out by the end of their second year of junior high. The serious smokers, though, know how to smoke, and where.

Also, the people who do smoke, do so often with money from their parents. Do you think that if parents set a better example at home, by not smoking, that less young people would start?—J. Peressini and D. Ptolemy, representing the pupils of Div. 3.

No Confidence in Planners

Once again the Saanich Municipal Council has registered a vote of non-confidence in its Advisory Planning Commission.

At its regular weekly meeting Feb. 17, the council received a report from the planning commission in which the commission recommended the rejection of the renewed application of Vancouver promoter Jack Aceman to re-zone a five-acre section of land lying just north of the intersection of Shelbourne Street and McKenzie Avenue, from residential "A" to shopping zone. In its report the commission stated that the promoter's plan called for a low standard type of development.

To give credit where it is due, I should state that Alderman Mrs. Gunning had obviously done her homework. In supporting the commission's recommendation she said she had visited several developments carried out by the same promoter in the Greater Vancouver area.

Alderman Isherwood and Newberry are also to be commended, Alderman Isherwood, for reminding those who seemed to have forgotten that the proposal now up for approval is the very same proposal that Council turned down just six months ago. Alderman Newberry conceded his own lack of expertise and told the Council he felt it should be guided by the recommendation of its planning commission.

The remaining aldermen proceeded to overrule the planning commission's recommendation. One cannot help but wonder if these same gentlemen would so easily ignore their doctors if they were advised they needed a surgical operation to preserve their life and health.

So much for advisory bodies. I suggest that the lack of confidence displayed by the municipal council in it's Advisory Planning Commission can mean only one thing: i.e., a lack of confidence in the commission's ability to perform its allotted function. If this is the case, then let's stop wasting taxpayer's money and abolish the commission. However, if as one is entitled to suspect, the commission had done it's homework and knew what it was talking about, maybe it is certain members of the Council who should be abolished.

I am not quarrelling with the fact that this area of our municipality must soon be developed so as to enhance its revenue producing potential. However, this does not mean that any proposal must necessarily be approved. — S. J. Hardinge, 1591 Glencraig.

From main street of Anchorage, Alaska (above) to Port Alberni waterfront, (below) damage caused by great 1964 earthquake and tidal wave was widespread and heavy. The first volume of a detailed study of the effects of the quake has just been released in the U.S. and is discussed in the article below.

Experts Track Trail of Quake

By WALTER SULLIVAN, New York Times

On March 27, 1964, at about 5:36 p.m. Alaskan time, a mountain, shaken by a great earthquake, split apart.

One side of it, including its Matterhornlike summit, plunged downward and flew over a 45-foot-high ridge like a ski jump, leaving vegetation on the far side of the ridge intact.

The disintegrating mountainside spread into a flying carpet of fragments more than a mile wide and two miles long.

Its drooping edges apparently confined a cushion of compressed air beneath it so that the carpet, like a gigantic hovercraft, travelled at more than 115 miles an hour without touching the glacier beneath it. The rock then landed, blanketing much of the Sherman Glacier.

Meanwhile, swimming pools in Texas were being partially emptied as their water sloshed back and forth — also a result of the quake.

In Australian, African and Eurasian wells the water was pumping up and down as the earth responded to some of the most intense tremors of modern times.

Alaska's so-called Good Friday earthquake is thought to have released at least twice the energy of the 1906 quake that devastated San Francisco. It altered the surface of the earth to an extent never before observed.

Now the National Academy of Sciences has made public the first of eight volumes generated by an intensive study of that quake and its worldwide effects.

Effects on Water

The study was ordered by President Johnson in the hope that lessons could be drawn from the Alaskan quake that would be useful in dealing with, and anticipating, future disasters of this sort.

The first volume is primarily concerned with hydrology — the effects of the quake on aggregations of water and ice.

The studies have shown for the first time that such a quake can permanently alter groundwater levels thousands of miles away.

The sloshing of water in lakes and streams of the Southeastern United States showed the striking — and previously unsuspected — vulnerability of that region to earthquake damage.

The discovery that several Alaskan mountains collapsed, producing "rockslide avalanches," hinted at what such flying carpets of rock could do if they landed on a community thoughtlessy built too close to an unstable mountain.

Some experts believe the observation of water in wells and lakes may serve not only as an index of vulnerability to quake damage but also as a warning of an impending quake.

A Chinese scientist, Kuo Tseng-chien, believes subtle changes in ground water level can indicate alterations in rock strain preliminary to a quake.

The study has shown that deep-rooted crustal structures, like the Rocky Mountains, act as barriers to destructive earthquake waves.

Thus virtually no effect was observed in lakes and wells just east of the Rockies, whereas virtually every deep well in Florida, the most distant state from the quake, was affected. At Perry, Fla., 17-foot fluctuations in water level were recorded.

Acted on Sediments

The report suggests that the structure of the earth's rocks between Alaska and the southeastern states may have channeled and focused earthquake waves.

These then acted on the very deep sediments laid down in the South by millions of years of North American erosion.

When shaken, such sediments act somewhat like a bowl of jelly, greatly amplifying the motion. To date, however, the region has been spared because local earthquakes there are rare.

The most dramatic sloshing in an open body of water — known as a seiche — took place in Kenai Lake, Alaska.

Bark on trees along the shore were peeled off 20 feet above the ground as water or ice in the lake rolled back and forth.

On Francois Lake in British Columbia a seiche drove water up through fishing holes in rhythmic geysers.

Where earthquake waves alternately squeezed and stretched sodden Alaskan terrain, thousands of "mud spouts" or "sand fountains" squirted in unison.

Because water behavior seems to be an index of earthquake danger, the report *urges automatic global moni*toring of water level in wells and open bodies of water.

Rockslide Avalanche

The extraordinary behavior of the "rockslide avalance" *that blanketed Sherman Glac*ier was one of the most remarkable discoveries of the study.

While the apron of rocky debris looks from the air as though it had flowed across the glacier, the snow and ice beneath it were found largely undisturbed by friction.

It was also difficult to see how the rock could have travelled several miles across a comparatively level surface if impeded by friction.

Likewise the shattered chunks of the mountain, most of them sandstone, showed no signs of turbulent flow. Their edges remain knife-sharp.

Some of the large boulders carry a conical load of fine debris which seems to have fallen on them from above.

One huge fragment still carries soil and grass that clung to it when it formed part of the precipitous mountain.

To the study group all of these clues seem to permit only one explanation: The apron of rocky debris on the glacier got there by flying through the air.

'Education Is Change'— Is Change Education?

By ART STOTT

A report from school, relayed by his mother, informs me that one of my very young friends is having difficulty with number facts from one to ten. When he adds, substracts, multiplies or divides in the simple sums presented to him, his answers are frequently unconventional.

Stott

It is probably unfeeling, autocratic, and dictatorial on my part, but my inclination is to persuade the *teacher to make him con*form. A lot may be said for the individual attitude toward various subjects. With number work, as we once called it, I'm conservative enough to insist on orthodoxy. He'll have to learn that nine plus seven equals sixteen and, as his grandmother phrases it, all stuff like that there.

When occasion arises, I'll explain to him that the theme for Education Week, starting Sunday — "Education is change" — doesn't mean that he can play around with simple arithmetic in a manner to provide solutions so individualized that they defy understanding. Change, certainly. Alteration of number facts from one to ten, definitely no.

They have been telling us for years that education is not the accumulation of facts, the conning by rote of information. They imply that at least one element in education is expansion of the mind. That I'll buy. But in my ultra-conservative way, I believe that the mastery of facts is an essential ingredient of that expansion of the mind. If there are improved methods of acquiring the mastery, so much the better. If there aren't, what's so wrong with memorizing times-tables and "guzinta"?

And I particularly don't want a rationalized answer from some soft-headed sophist holding professorial rank and trying to sweep difficulties under the rug with fuzzy rhetoric and fuzzier thinking.

My little friend is saving up to buy a bicycle. I think he ought to know enough number facts to determine how much he has to save to acquire the price and to conduct his savings campaign accordingly. I shall tell him not to expect part of any $3 million interest-free loan from the provincial government to get his bike because, in the firm practicalities of our system, I think that's the wrong way to go about things.

Of course he'll have to understand the principle of change in his schooling. But he could benefit, at the appropriate time, from noting the point made on the subject by Tom Hutchison, president of the B.C Teachers' Association, in his assessment of trends. Mr. Hutchison underscores the fact, in a thoroughly traditional way, that all change isn't necessarily beneficial, that change for the sake of change is not an unmixed blessing.

It's just possible that my young friend may grow up to discriminate on such matters. He must develop his adaptability so that he can meet new conditions as they arise. It is my hope that his adaptability will not be so elastic that he'll abandon what's good merely to flutter here and there among concepts just because somebody says they are new. We've had a great surfeit of that inclination lately.

The boy who has difficulty with his number facts belongs to just one more generation on which the teaching profession will conduct its experiments in the learning processes. Doubtless some of those experiments will be constructive and valuable. Just as likely, some of them will be abandoned before he reaches the point where algebra and geometry intrude into his particular field of number work. This is the story of the educational innovation.

The emphasis, as I see it, should be on flexibility to equip a person to meet the unkowns of the future. But in the campaign against rigidity, it will be an unfortunate development for the boy if the educational process becomes so wobbly and undefined that it loses all strength, if it brings to the mind an openness that is a synonym for vacancy, if it lacks the support of useful principles, if it ignores the buttressing of facts.

I have acquaintances who tell me it is relatively unimportant when a child learns educational facts. They explain that when he needs them he will acquire them—and that they can have little meaning to him until he can usefully employ them. This is an interesting and plausible theory. Unfortunately, however, I keep reading about young people nearing their majority who have managed to skip a lot of facts in their learning processes. They are children of the age of change, knowing, as their elders did before them, that there are serious flaws in our society. They are determined to make a better, more beautiful world. And they encounter disaster when the facts they haven't learned rise up to strike them down.

The Education which is Change, according to the theme for next week, should make them cognizant of the fact—all the facts.

Then, with the advantages of new techniques and knowledge in these changing times, they may be better equipped to mold a more beautiful and better world. But not by change alone.

Gandhi Would Be Amused At Establishment Blessing

By KINGSLEY MARTIN, New Statesman

LONDON—Last month, 21 years after his assassination, the Establishment paid homage to Mahatma Gandhi, who for more than a generation successfully rebelled against the British Raj.

The service at St. Paul's with an oration by the archbishop would have brought an ironic chuckle from the Mahatma. If the British bar, which once expelled him as a jailbird, decides to reinstate him posthumously, he will become a respectable British personality.

When we buy a stamp bearing his portrait we are unlikely to remember that he meditated serenely in British jails for some 2,500 days and that Churchill described him as a "naked fakir."

The Indians have long ago turned him into a saint. In this country we follow a familiar pattern; we persecute the rebel during his life; when he is dead and no longer dangerous we canonize him and forget what he taught.

I suppose that insofar as people in this country recall his teaching at all, they think of him simply as a pacifist. This is a misleading picture. Amongst other things he was a successful barrister with a shrewd and realistic mind and a gay, vivacious sense of humor.

He only gradually evolved his theory of non-violence after he had discovered in South Africa what it was like to be a colored man.

He learned that it was *possible to maintain his dig*nity as a human being and to win political battles though he was insulted and beaten up.

Sergeant-Major

He rejected the doctrine that England's predicament was India's opportunity, and in the Boer War, clad in khaki and puttees, he served in an ambulance unit and attained the rank of sergeant-major.

In 1914 he still held that, when England was in danger, it was a duty to serve the government which he had accepted in time of peace. He even recruited for the army.

But by that time he had become the spokesman of all Indians in South Africa and had won for the Indian community a complete, if temporary, victory.

He had bargained with General Smuts and earned his admiration. His doctrine of Satyagraha had taken shape and definition.

As a theory it owed much to the New Testament as well as the Gita, and the modern authors who contributed to it were Thoreau, Tolstoy and Ruskin. He had proved before his final return to India in 1915 that the weak are not necessarily powerless.

Satyagraha is a composite word meaning "firmness for truth". It was, Gandhi held, the "most active form of resistance"; it involved a resolute assertion of what one believed right, maintained without violence or compromise whatever violence was used against one.

Better to Fight

Real victory consists in persuading your opponent that you are right; to convert him is to triumph.

Such an attitude must never be confused with cowardice; he said repeatedly that rather than run away because you are frightened, it is better to fight.

In order to discipline himself as a Satyagrahist he discarded not only all the pleasures, but what most people would regard as the necessities of life.

Goat's milk was permitted; because of the cruel treatment of cows, cow's milk was rejected.

How far could he live on fruit and lemon juice? He would spend years before making a vow, but having made it he would maintain it to the point of death.

He told his wife that he must altogether refrain from sexual intercourse, and recorded that twice he failed to control his passion. I wrote recently that his wife resented his abstinence; in fact she says that she accepted his vow without demur.

My mistake arose from recalling how he infuriated her by other demands; he decided, for instance, that all the personal jewelry she was given in gratitude for their services in Africa must be discarded. He treated her roughly and believed that a Hindu husband had absolute rights over his wife.

Ready for Penance

It was one of his peculiarities that he admitted his lapses and was always ready to do penance for his own and also other people's sins. It was this latter atonement for others which most puzzled the Western mind.

His idea that the British would grant India freedom after she had fought for them in the 1914 war was shattered by the atrocious events at Armitsar, when nearly 400 Indians were shot in cold blood, not to prevent them from breaking the law but, as General Dyer explained, as "a punishment."

Flogging and the "crawling order" were the last indignities; they brought Gandhi into active politics. Clearly India had to fight for her freedom, though fight, in his definition, meant resist by Satyagraha.

Hundreds of young Indians accepted the challenge and lay down in the road presenting themselves without weapons to be beaten by police lathis. In this fight Gandhi won moral victories but suffered many disappointments.

There were occasions on which the crowd following him resorted to force and even committed atrocities on the police. Gandhi would then proclaim a fast against his own followers.

They would be penitent and terrified lest he should die and the British authorities were also frightened of the revolutionary effects which might follow his death.

He made a profound impression on Lord Reading when he was viceroy and also on Lord Irwin and, perhaps most remarkable of all, on the judge who tried him for a seditious article in Young India.

Persecution before canonization

His speech before sentence on that occasion is one of the most notable ever made in a court of law.

He gave a full account of British cruelty and repression which justified his article. He then went on to state that the prosecution's case had been put perfectly fairly, and that he did not ask for mercy or plead any extenuating circumstances.

Gave Him Six Years

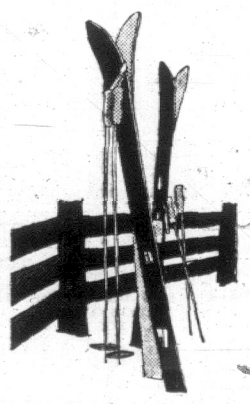
"The only course open to you, the judge," he said, "is either to resign your post or to inflict on me the severest penalty, if you believe that the system and the law you administer are good for the people." The judge and the prisoner bowed to each other, the judge said: "Even those who differ from you in politics look upon you as a man of high ideals and of noble and even saintly life." He sent Gandhi to jail for six years, saying how pleased he would be if the government would reduce the term.

No one could doubt that Gandhi had learned personally to accept violence without returning it. But this is only the beginning of the problem of Satyagraha.

What is the non-violent resister to do when not he but those whom he is expected to defend are attacked? The answer which he gave to a well-known Negro minister who, with his wife, paid Gandhi a visit was surely unsatisfying. Mrs. Thurman asked Gandhi the crucial question, "How am I to act, supposing my own brother is lynched before my very eyes?"

His reply was confused. The answer which came to him, he said, was that "he must not wish ill to the lynchers, but neither must he cooperate with them! It may be that ordinarily I depend upon the lynching community for my livelihood. I refuse to cooperate with them, refuse even to touch food that comes from them and I refuse to cooperate with even my brother Negroes who tolerate the wrong."

He added that he did not expect to convince Mrs. Thurman, "but I am striving very hard; even if I do not succeed fully in this life my faith is undiminished."



Good times just naturally go together with Old Vienna.

Port of Vancouver

The Vancouver Merchants' Exchange reported Tuesday the Port of Vancouver handled deep sea ships with a net tonnage of 11.06 million in 1968, more than 500,000 tons more than the previous record, set in 1967. Number of deepsea vessels calling at the port was 1,761.

Securities

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Monday he expects any difficulties with the provinces over establishment of a national securities commission will be overcome.

He declined in the Commons to give details of confidential discussions with the provinces or any problems involved.

Alcan Ltd.

Strong demand and higher prices for aluminum are forecast by Alcan Aluminium president Nathaniel V. Davis in his annual report to shareholders.

Davis said the list price structure for primary aluminum and various prefabricated products "has strengthened in recent weeks in many markets, holding promise for better realizations and much needed improvement in return on capital."

Alcan's consolidated assets, before reserves for depreciation and depletion, neared $3 billion in 1968 for the first time, the company's financial report showed. Its long-term debt outstanding was cut by 10 per cent or $69 million last year.

Davis said there was an above-average growth of about 13 per cent in the free world's aluminum consumption in 1968.

The company's net income in 1968 was listed as $71.6 million or $2.14 per common share, compared with $65.1 million and $1.94 in 1967.

Topps Bankrupt

Bankruptcy has been declared by Topp's Discount Department Stores Ltd. and two lessees in its suburban Winnipeg establishment, Target Department Stores Ltd. and Modern Fashion Ltd.

Chartered accountant S. John Down, named trustee of all three companies, said the loss to creditors will probably be in excess of $800,000.

Mr. Down said detailed information will be given at the first meeting of creditors which is to be held March 17.

BLONDE real estate saleswoman Lucy Hopkins of Toronto sold $2.5 million worth of property last year to win top sales award. Five years ago she was peddling cosmetics door-to-door and before that was a $60-a-week secretary. (CP Photo)

Super Salesman Learned Quickly

TORONTO (CP) — Lucy Hopkins, presented with the distinguished salesman award by the Sales and Marketing Executive Club of Toronto, didn't know the difference between a hydro substation and a bungalow five years ago.

At the time the Toronto mother was selling cosmetics door to door.

She knocked at the door of the substation, and when no housewife in need of beauty aids answered, Mrs. Hopkins peeked into the window. She found the chief occupants of the house were transformers.

Now she is one of Canada's super sales agents, winning the distinguished salesman award for the second time.

Mrs. Hopkins' commission earnings of more than $60,000 on the sale of 80 properties last year make her the runaway champion of residential real estate agents in North America — including both men and women.

She is married to a professional engineer, and has an 11-year-old daughter.

Twelve years ago she was working as a $60-a-week legal secretary. After she married she embarked on a selling career, starting with cosmetics.

She works 10 hours a day, many Saturdays and Sundays included.

Equalize Death Tax Expert Asks

TORONTO (CP) — The retiring president of Canada Permanent Mortgage Corp. Tuesday urged federal and provincial authorities to work out a system to equalize death duties across the country.

Charles F. Mackenzie told his company's annual meeting recent federal proposals to abolish succession duties when an estate passes to a surviving spouse are "long overdue."

But, he said, no reciprocal arrangements have been worked out for the new taxes between the federal government and the three provinces which levy provincial death duties. As a result, widows in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are still liable for death duties.

Mr. Mackenzie said there should not be "sharp distinctions between the residents of one province and another."

He urged authorities to work out a "reasonably uniform" application of succession duties across Canada.

Mr. Mackenzie was succeeded as chairman and president of Canada Permanent by A. Bruce Matthews of Toronto, and was elected vice-chairman of the board.

Wood Prices Reflect Only Market Push

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Council of the Forest Industries of British Columbia today blamed strong consumer demand and short supply for current high lumber prices.

Gordon L. Draeseke said prices reflect the pressures of a free commodity market both in Canada and abroad.

He said recent price increases are a basic example of the law of supply and demand.

"Unprecedented consumer demand for wood products, particularly in the United States, where most of our B.C. production is sold, has combined with an extraordinary set of circumstances on the supply side. The result is a world-wide surge in the price of lumber."

Concurrently, U.S. and Canadian construction activity reached record highs. In the first 11 months of 1968 Canadian starts were up 20 per cent.

"Thus, B.C. mills were operating at or near capacity long before the severe weather. B.C. log inventories were already low when woods operations were halted," he said.

"The main brunt of the price increase has been borne by the buyer outside of Canada, where the demand is, and where B.C. producers sell four-fifths of their production."

Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY
Victoria Taxation Office

If your question is not answered here or in the department's tax guide, telephone 382-2173 or write National Revenue, Taxation, Victoria.

Q. I belong to a labor union and pay $200 in union dues each year. Can I claim these as a deduction as well as the standard deduction of $100?

A. Yes, there is nothing to prevent you from claiming the $200 you paid in union dues and the standard deduction of $100 as well. You should have received a receipt for the allowable part of the union dues and this should be attached to your return.

Q. I have owned a rental property for some years and am now thinking of selling it. Would I have to report the sale on my tax return?

A. Yes. If as a result of the sale you have recovered all or a part of the capital cost allowance you have claimed in prior years, the amount so recovered is subject to tax. If you sell for less than the depreciated balance, you may claim the difference as a deduction in the year. In the case of recoveries described above, they may be included in current income tax purposes or they may be taxed under special provisions in the Income Tax Act.

Telephone Profits Said Below Level of Many Canadian Firms

By JANE BECKER

TORONTO (CP) — When Bell Canada Ltd. told the Canadian Transport Commission recently it wanted to be able to show a "reasonable return" of at least (8) per cent on its capital, it was asking for a profit limit below that of most Canadian businesses.

Bell and other privately-owned utility companies have been restricted by the CTC since 1966 to a return of between 6.2 and 6.6 per cent on their average capitalization.

By its own computing, Bell earned 6.8 per cent in 1967 and 6.9 per cent last year. British Columbia Telephone Co. returned 6.84 per cent.

The CTC says this is too much, although it acknowledges that increasing borrowing costs have made financing more difficult and actual costs higher than shown in the companies' earnings returns.

The definition of "reasonable return" depends on where you sit. It varies according to prevailing interest rates, the current level of inflation, and how a company finances itself.

BANK EARNINGS RISE

Last year Canadian banks earned about 11.4 per cent on their shareholders' equity, compared with an average annual return of about 7 per cent between 1962 and 1965.

Bank officials credit the improvement to the freeing of the interest rate ceiling under the revised Bank Act of 1967.

A representative group of about 920 Canadian manufacturing companies earned an average of 9.5 per cent on their net capital from 1963 to 1967. This figure is made up of net profits and any money needed to pay debt interest as a proportion to the company's capital stock, retained earnings and long-term debt.

A Canadian Manufacturers' Association survey shows that manufacturing profits have ranged as widely as 2 per cent on total capital from one year to the next. Between 1963 and 1965 they rose to 10 per cent from 9.4 per cent, a dollar increase of $21,000,000. By 1967 they had slipped back to 9 per cent.

Some average industry returns on capital, from 1963 to 1967, as computed by Midland-Osler Securities Ltd. of Toronto, are:

Major oil companies, 7.2 per cent; pulp and paper, 7.8 per cent; construction materials, 8 per cent; chemicals, 9.25 per cent; steel, 9.4 per cent; food manufacturers, 9.6 per cent; brewing and distilling, 9.7 per cent; metal mining, 11.9 per centcent, and food merchandising, 12.2 per cent.

"The figures show how profitably companies are using their invested capital," says R. S. Cameron, who compiled the averages.

"A return of more than 10 per cent isn't bad, but 15 per cent is better. These days, if a firm returns less than about 8 per cent it could be reason for worry."

Stock Boom Narrows VSE Trading

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange, which has undergone an unprecedented rush of buying in recent weeks, announced Tuesday it will reduce its floor hours by an hour a day.

Effective next Monday, trading will continue to open at 7 a.m. local time but will close at 1 p.m. instead of 2 p.m. Officials said the move is temporary but did not say how long it will last.

Floor action has been moderate this week following a seven-week splurge in which trading volumes ran at almost three times the 1968 rate. A one-day record of 8,558,783 shares was set last week.

The exchange is geared to handle volume of 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 shares a day but expansion is planned. Tuesday's volume was 3,887,187.

'Pour Millions In New Port'

Premier Bennett Tuesday promised his government will pour millions of dollars into construction of a superport at Prince Rupert if the federal government gives its approval.

He made the pledge in the legislature during debate on a bill to take $130 million from surplus revenue to set up six perpetual funds and make a $35 million payment to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

As he introduced the bill for second reading, the premier said he saw "a great new vision for the people of this province in the 1970s."

He added that the people of Prince Rupert would want to hear about this vision because "they need a great superport up there as well."

He said local municipalities run such world-renowned ports as London and Amsterdam.

'WE'LL GIVE MILLIONS'

"We will ask Prince Rupert to apply to the federal government to bring the port back under the city of Prince Rupert and then as the child of this government we will give them millions and millions of dollars for development of a great superport up there."

He was repeating B.C.'s argument of two years ago when it tried to persuade the federal government to agree to set up a special harbors board with local representation for running the Roberts Bank superport.

"In due course we will be outlining our plans for this great new superport," he added.

"I would like to point out that the member is perfectly in order," said Speaker William Murray, MLA for Prince Rupert.

Outside the house, the premier indicated his mention of Prince Rupert as he was introducing the legislation for his other special funds might mean a special Prince Rupert port fund, possibly this year.

NEEDED FOR HYDRO

Bennett told the house his revenue surplus of $141 million, from which the $130 million will be taken, had been saved because it was needed for power and other developments in the province during the last decade.

Now the development had been virtually completed, he said he wanted to free the money to set up perpetual funds.

These included $25 million for Indians, $25 million for major disasters, $5 million agricultural aid to developing countries, $10 million for physical fitness and amateur sports, $25 million for the planned B.C. building in downtown Vancouver and $5 million to bring the centennial cultural fund to $10 million.

"As the Social Credit government goes on from year to year, more great funds will be set up," said the premier to cheering, desk-thumping government members.

He said the physical fitness fund is not just for medal winners, but to encourage participation in athletics by average people.

TALLEST IN PROVINCE

And he said the government building planned for Vancouver will be the tallest and one of the most beautiful buildings in the province.

Dave Stupich (NDP—Nanaimo) noted the bulk of revenue surplus had accumulated since 1966, year of the last provincial general election, and suggested the government is ready "to blow the bundle" in time for the next election.

But the government was not really spending the money, "just socking it away" in funds with "fancy names."

The New Democratic financial critic said it is nothing but a method of reducing the amount of money in the surplus account because it is "embarrassing" for Bennett to have that much saved up when there are still so many social needs to be met.

Strip Mining Bill to Committee

The legislature gave second reading Tuesday to the Coal Mines Regulation bill and sent it to the mining and railways committee for study.

All parties now have approved in principle both bills the government hopes will enable it to control land destruction by strip mining.

Friday, the House gave second reading to amendments to the Mines Regulations Act, covering minerals other than coal. Both bills contain identical sections governing reclamation of mined land.

It passed with little debate.

Mines Minister Frank Richter, in reply to an Opposition question, said the bill contains provisions to protect ranchers from the modern prospector who does his prospecting with a bulldozer.

He said the definition of mining in the bill covered all operations that disturbed the soil with a view towards harvesting some sort of mineral.

This meant sand and gravel pits as well as quarries and prospectors could not operate without an approved reclamation program.

The vote came just after the House approved the $18,024,677 spending estimates of the finance department.

WRITTEN OFF

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian taxpayers are $7,267,768.60 out of pocket this year because the government has given up trying to collect that amount in bad debts—most of it unpaid taxes.

A total of $3,918,070.37 in 450 income-tax debts and another $1,547,748.16 in 265 uncollected claims by the customs and excise division make up most of the write-off.

MP Blames Television For Violence of Youth

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the reasons Canadian youth has "tendencies to anarchism and nihilism" is because it was raised in the television era, Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon—Souris) said in the Commons Monday.

Television, with a capacity to disseminate "instant electronic folklore" and to create "myths that become more far-reaching" than facts, could carry part of the blame for the generation gap, Dinsdale said.

Youngsters entering college now had been raised on TV, with the "violence and all the other selective distortions" the medium could put forth.

TV has helped develop a "generation completely cut off at the roots . . . a cutflower civilization."

Speaking as the Commons debated a bill to modernize the statute covering the National Library, Dinsdale said the TV generation had little awareness of the values and accomplishments of man's past.

One way it could get this was through reading. He was glad to see that the pendulum was "swinning back" towards more emphasis on reading, despite claims by some people that electronic communications would make books obsolete.

CONVERTED U.S. NAVY SUPPLY SHIP, Robert M. Emery, will be subjected to further search by local detectives investigating murder of city businessman William Osland. Shown here berthed at the foot of Fort Street, she is now undergoing further renovations in San Francisco. Mr. Osland's weighted body was found Tuesday in 23 feet of water near where the ship was berthed. He was a partner in the company converting the ship into a marine attraction.

Seal Campaign Raises $42,000

Victoria's Christmas Seal campaign in aid of the B.C. Tuberculosis Society went over the top with 25 per cent increase this year, it was announced today.

Close to $42,000 were donated in the city and surrounding areas compared with $34,000 last year.

Success of the campaign will enable the society to expand its services even more into the field of respiratory diseases, such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma," said Eric Hall, chairman of Victoria Christmas Seal committee.

"At the same time we shall continue our battle against TB."

Provincial total for the campaign now stands at $410,000, up more than 12 per cent over 1968 when $367,000 were donated.

"British Columbia tops all Canada for the largest increase among the provinces," Mr. Hall said.

The campaign in Victoria was officially opened by Mayor Hugh Stephen last November.

"Christmas seals help to fight TB in British Columbia through mobile X-ray vans," Mr. Hall said.

On Vancouver Island this spring the vans will visit Port Alberni as well as Gold River on the West Coast. Later they will tour Revelstoke, Kamloops, Vernon, Salmon Arm and Enderby.

Church Choirs Join for Concert

Six Victoria church choirs will participate in a festival of choral music in Metropolitan United Church Thursday at 8 p.m.

The choirs are those of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral; St. Barnabas men's and boys'; St. John's; St. Mary's, Oak Bay; and Metropolitan United.

The festival is presented annually by the Victoria chapter, Canadian College of Organists.

MOST MAIL AGAINST VATICAN RECOGNITION

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill's mail from across Canada on the issue of diplomatic recognition of the Vatican is running heavily against such a move.

Spokesmen for Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader Tommy Douglas said Tuesday the two party leaders have not received a single letter in favor of recognition of the Vatican.

In the case of Mr. Stanfield, the latest count was 156 to 0 against recognition.

The spokesmen said they could not recall any previous occasion when all the mail on a given issue was negative.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said most of the letters directed to him on the issue are critical.

Generally speaking, MPs' mail from constituents on any given issue is more anti than pro.

It is understood that Mr. Trudeau has received more than 500 letters opposing recognition and only a few in favor.

Cong Threaten Big U.S. Base

SAIGON (AP) — More than 1,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese pushed to within 15 miles of Saigon today, seized a group of refugee villages in Bien Hoa and fought their way to the edge of the busiest American air base in South Vietnam on the fourth day of the Communist offensive.

Early tonight U.S. and South Vietnamese forces were still trying to root out the guerrillas who withstood five assaults by South Vietnamese rangers and rocket and machine-gun fire from helicopter gunships.

Across South Vietnam, the Communist command intensified its offensive. Its troops pounded more than 50 towns and bases with rockets, mortars and ground attack Tuesday night and today.

North Vietnamese suicide squads destroyed 12 helicopters in a daring raid on a U.S. base near Saigon.

The U.S. command said more than 3,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have been killed so far, but day-long fighting also sent U.S. losses over the 200 mark. South Vietnamese headquarters reported 417 government troops killed since the offensive began Sunday. Several hundred Americans and 1,383 South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

At Cu Chi, the headquarters of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division 20 miles northwest of Saigon, 60 to 80 troops of the North Vietnamese 5th Division slipped undetected through the base's barbed wire perimeter about 4 a.m. and ran up and down the airstrip, planting explosive charges on the big helicopters and firing rocket-propelled grenades at the surpsed defenders.

DESTROYED 12 'COPTERS

Associated Press photographer Rick Merron reported the North Vietnamese blew up a dozen giant cargo-carrying Chinook helicopters worth about $12,000,000. Merron said 14 Americans were killed and 50 wounded in a hail of rockets, grenades and smal larms fire.

Thirty-one of the attackers were killed and seven taken prisoner.

Heavy fighting also broke out in the village of Tan Hiep and around the Bien Hoa-Long Binh military complex that houses a cluster of air bases, major supply depots and command posts. Tan Hiep is northwest of the headquarters for the U.S. Army in South Vietnam and houses several hundred Roman Catholic refugees from North Vietnam.

Reports from the field said guerrilla troops were dug in along 1½-mile stretch of the village.

The civilian casualty toll since Sunday rose to more than 200 killed and 500 wounded.

New Blast Of Winter At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of school children stayed home today while their fathers waded through drifts up to six feet high to join a stream of crawling traffic as another winter blast hit Montreal

Main arteries on Montreal Island were kept open despite the five inches of snow and 40-mile-an-hour gusts of wind which hit the city overnight.

All schools on the south shore and several on the west end of Montreal Island were closed.

Several schools in the Eastern Townships, where roads were hazardous or impassable, were also closed.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEB. 26, 1969—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Florenda Joy is resting from the first stage of her journey at Winnipeg today . . . a sweet and perky little girl who has a great deal going for her.

Last Friday, Capt. Dennis Ryan (army) called on her with a message (navy) received at public relations headquarters, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt.

It was a destroyer company's goodbye, and it ran like this:

"As you leave for the East, our most sincere thoughts go with you. When you return to Victoria, we hope you will visit our ship.

"Good luck, Florenda.

Commanding officer, officers and men of HMCS Yukon."

The invitation was accompanied by a large photograph of Yukon, which is currently engaged with other Canadian and American ships in anti-submarine exercises off the California coast.

Then, on Monday a delegation of Shriners headed by their recently-elected 1969 president, Arthur Fyfe, whisked Florenda and her mother down to the Air Canada office in Centennial Square.

Arrived, the men from Victoria Gizeh Temple Shrine Club presented mother and youngest daughter with their return fare to Rochester, Minn.

This done, the Air Canada staff offered gifts of their own. These were a small flight bag for Florenda, and a larger bag for Mrs. Dick.

Incidentally, Florenda's also taking along a gift-doll in nurse's uniform from a group of nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and an equally-treasured teddy bear made for her by members of a high school Spade club.

Last Saturday, while holding forth on earthquakes, I said that the Courtenay-Comox area received a tousling from a tremor in 1946. I was a few thousand miles from the scene, but Timesman Pete Loudon was there, and he feels that a stronger word is required to describe what happened.

So do I, after absorbing his graphic account.

"The front of the bank and a good chunk of the post office, both brick buildings, tumbled into the streets," Pete remembers.

"The chimney in our cottage was built half inside and half outside. It flopped into the yard—presto—a new door in the kitchen. I was on my way out the bedroom window when the neighbor's chimney piled up at my feet. . . .

"Show windows were broken in Laver's department store. In a dry-cleaning shop the boiler walked away from the wall. The chimney snapped off. Soot came through the stove-pipe hole and coated the laundry parcels which had broken open.

"Thank God it was Sunday," Loudon continues. "The school chimney came through the roof and buried the desks of a classroom in loose bricks. On the Campbell River highway, a house under construction fell off its pins. A large section of a sand spit at Deep Bay disappeared."

His conclusion:

"I am convinced that had this quake hit Toronto or any city favoring brick or masonry construction, the death toll would have been terrific . . . and so it would have been in Victoria's older areas."

We come now to the time of year when many adult education classes prepare to wind up their sessions.

You name it, and the adult education department of Greater Victoria school board either has the subject on its list or will harken carefully to your reasons why it should be added.

Speaking of which, I know a fellow who turned up no long time ago in a new suit, obviously tailored, that looked like a million bucks.

He's proud to reveal that his wife made it for him, stitch by careful stitch, at an adult education class.

If you've never enrolled in these courses, try one on next summer's daytime schedule, if you can fit it in. Otherwise, enrol next fall for evening classes. The fees are modest . . . and never was money better spent!

WHEN YOU ARE SIX and going on a trip, especially in an airplane, the excitement of the moment is all that matters. You wear your spring hat and you get going-away gifts and your friend sits with you in the waiting room and you just look at each other and smiling eyes do the important talking. You don't feel the anxieties even when the time comes for a goodbye embrace. Anxiety, love and prayers of a community are following the blonde charmer because she is Florenda Joy Dick, a six-year-old whom countless friends are helping to send to Mayo Clinic for delicate heart surgery March 10. With her 3,000-mile lollypop and a coloring book, Florenda set out to cross a horizon Monday. Besides anxiety and love and modern medical science Florenda obviously has something else going for her—the unassailable faith shining in the face of her friend Marion Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, Mt. Newton Cross Road. Little girl power like that can't help but assist in bringing Florenda back over that horizon to a normal Victoria childhood. (Times Photos by Bill Halkett)

Big Annex To Start This Year

150-Bed Unit Approved At Gorge Road Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

Excavations for a new $1-per-day, 150-bed extended care annex to Gorge Road Hospital will begin before the end of this year—perhaps this fall.

The project, approved by the provincial government today, will cost between $1.9 and $2 million.

It is expected to offer relief to waiting lists for admission to Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals late in 1970 after a 10-month construction period.

Gorge Road administrator William Morrison said he was advised of approval of the project by B.C. Hospital Insurance Services this morning. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was expected to make the announcement later today.

Mr. Morrison said the annex will be built directly behind the present Gorge Road hospital and will be physically joined to it. He said it is to be of three or four storeys—this has not been settled.

BCHIS guidelines are expected to be received by the hospital board by the end of March at which time a start will be made on construction plans.

The project has already been approved by Greater Victoria and Gulf Island Regional Hospital District.

APPROVED IN MAY

The addition is part of the program approved by capital region ratepayers in May 1968 in an $11,480,000 referendum. Of this amount $8,650,000 was earmarked for construction of extended care facilities.

Gorge Road Hospital was given a priority although the hospital district previously approved $329,000 in improvements for St. Joseph's Hospital and $625,000 for similar projects at Royal Jubilee.

A new X-ray unit at Rest Haven Hospital Sidney, land purchase for extension of Lady Minto Hospital at Ganges and improvements to Mount St. Mary's Hospital fire exits, totalling $85,000 also were approved.

Gorge Road Hospital officials have planned a "Class A" construction using reinforced concrete.

Health Minister Loffmark earlier told the regional hospital district board the maximum cost per bed for such projects must be held to $13,000. The limit for frame construction of horizontal design was set at $9,000 per bed.

The new beds are for extended-care patients, which by previous BCHIS definition is those who are chronically ill and unable to do anything for themselves.

The regional hospital district board, headed by Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria, hopes the provision of these beds will permit removal of a number of patients from Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals, to ease the acute bed shortages there.

$1 DAILY

Patients moved to the new facility would be covered by BCHIS provisions and would pay only $1 per day for hospital care. Doctors say they expect many patients now in private hospitals, who pay up to $350 per month, will also seek admission to the new unit.

Various formulas are used in sharing costs of new facilities provided through the hospital district.

The province pays 60 per cent of construction and the district 40 per cent until the local levy on property taxpayers raches four mills. For amounts greater than four mills would produce, the province pays 80 per cent and the district 20 per cent.

Equipment costs are shared one third by the province and two thirds by the local area, and if funds are available, by the hospital concerned.

Because the province pays the larger share all financial outlays require approval of the provincial BCHIS and the health minister.

Transit Feeler 'Interesting'

Local reaction was favorable today to the possibility of a triple-crown corporation to cope with the problems of transit in Victoria and Vancouver.

"It is an interesting suggestion and it might provide the kind of answers being sought," commented Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich.

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant, who attended a national conference on urban transportation problems recently, said he is delighted that the municipal level of government will be taken into account.

Premier Bennett disclosed in the legislature Tuesday that he has discussed the problem in Ottawa with Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand.

The discussions centred around the premier's concern for the need for increasing investment in metropolitan centres and he told the legislature that "in due course" the transit system would come under a single authority supported by municipal, provincial and federal money.

Mayor Curtis said it is important that municipalities continue to remind taxpayers and the provincial government that B.C. Hydro's transit liabilities go hand in hand with the crown corporation's power sales revenue.

PRECEDENT

And Mayor Bryant said before any triple-crown transit authority is set up, there should be a fiscal conference between municipalities and the provincial government.

"Premier Bennett can hardly expect municipalities to be warm to the idea unless he is willing to discuss forms of revenue and reallocation of municipal revenues," he said.

"This would have to be a precedent to his proposal.

"If he is going to impose this on the municipalities, then it is certain there is no way it could be a success."

Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria said he didn't think any local government would refuse to look at a three-way partnership provided funds were available. At the moment, municipalities simply did not have the revenue to absorb the costs of public transportation.

The need for a viable and well-run transit systems was just as important as roads and was a "public necessity."

SUBSIDY DOUBLED

Also in the legislature Tuesday, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said bus service in Victoria and Vancouver should be taken from B.C. Hydro and turned over to a new crown corporation charged with developing a new urban transit system for the province.

As the legislature passed a vote doubling the transit subsidy paid to B.C. Hydro to $2 million, Dr. McGeer said Hydro had shown little interest in urban transportation systems and made few positive improvements.

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said rapid transit, not freeways, is the answer to urban traffic congestion.

One million dollars had been spent on freeway studies in metropolitan Vancouver and he called it "money poured down a rathole."

Gift of $500 To New Centre Boosts Morale

An anonymous gift of $500 was received by the Victoria Native Friendship Society Tuesday.

It will help bring closer the society's dream of a centre for all Indians in the area.

Announcement of the donation came at a meeting in Spencer-house. It helped offset disappointment when members learned that a house on Mason Street, which had been offered the group on payment of back taxes, was unsuitable.

Mrs. Dolly Seeds explained, "we found that it would cost too much. The plumbing had to be renewed, the place was badly in need of paint and repairs. We don't mind the labor, we have plenty of volunteers, but we just couldn't swing the financial outlay."

Combining forces with the society in its creation of a centre is the Clawacsic (Younger Generation Club).

Spokesmen for the two groups say that they intend to "run their own show because we're tired of being spoon-fed."

Plans for the centre include classes in Indian culture, art and language; an arts and crafts shop, recreation space and a room where clothes can be made or re-fitted for those in need.

Diane Logan, a student at the Institute of Adult Studies, reports that there are about 100 Indians studying there at the present time, several attend St. Ann's Academy, and many Indian families in the community need help.

"We're making quilts now so that at least they have something to keep them warm."

Diane and Mrs. Seeds are donating their time to staff an information centre which the society set up in Spencer House last Friday.

STOP-GAP

From there they provide counselling service, co-operating with other agencies, as a stop-gap until they can move into their own centre.

Already they have helped an unemployed logger whose insurance benefits have run out.

He left his five children with friends at Tofino and came to town to visit his wife, a patient in the Gorge Hospital. Monday his money was gone.

He contacted the John Howard Society, which put him in touch with the centre. Monday night he spent sleeping on the floor of an Indian home.

Tuesday, welfare authorities placed him at the Salvation Army until next Monday.

Mrs. Seeds explains that the centre's main objective, at present, is to provide emergency help for Indians, like the Tofino man, who came to town and are lost in a strange envoronment.

She reports, "They're as lost as my three children would be if we lived on a reservation."

She describes the information service as an "anchor chain" for the distressed until the new centre is available.

Phone number of the society's temporary headquarters, which is manned from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday is 384-6313.

Nearly 6,000 Placed in Jobs By Manpower

Manpower offices here were visited by 68,000 people last year.

Of these, almost 10 per cent — 3,246 men and 2,565 women were placed in new jobs.

The statistics were announced Tuesday at a seminar held by Canada Manpower in conjunction with Victoria Chamber of Commerce at Empress Hotel.

Manpower also placed 5,768 persons in temporary jobs — 4,468 in summer farm labor and 1,300 persons in student summer jobs and in Christmas work at the post office.

Another 456 persons were placed on full-time courses to learn new skills with free tuition and living allowances ranging from $37 to $97 per week, according to the number of the applicant's dependents. So far this year 66 persons received similar aid.

Exploration grants, to assist job applicants in journeying to interview employers in other centres were given to 30 persons in 1968 and to nine more so far in 1969.

FAMILIES MOVED

In 29 cases last year and six this year to date, Manpower provided funds for persons who wished to move their families to new jobs.

Emphasis was placed on the retraining program by visiting speaker, Director-general of Manpower, John C. Morrison of Ottawa. He said more than 300,000 Canadians will be retrained for new jobs in 1969 at a cost of $250 million.

Morrison said the federal government pays the full cost of retraining.

William J. Hurd, technical director of the Pacific Region, said in the future a computer system will be used in matching men and jobs.

He said more than 400 new centres for training had been established in recent years.

Victoria manager George Bevis gave examples of aid given workers locally. He said that when Victoria Machinery Depot closed its Ogden Point yard in 1967, about 130 welders were upgraded and today none of them are unemployed.

He said there is a continuing program of meetings with employers in effort to obtain more jobs for applicants. He noted the opening here of an office in the Belmont Building for placing people in domestic and sales employment.

Chamber Post Draws Wide-Ranging Bids

Competition to fill Victoria Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager's shoes is keen enough to draw applications from the U.S. and across Canada.

The vacancy, effective April 1, was caused with resignation of Earl Dicknoether, who has taken an industrial development and business co-ordinating post at Dawson Creek.

Ex-president William Armstrong, who heads the chamber selection committee, said all applications so far make a point of stating the Victoria area has both attraction as a place to live and challenge of growth. The job pays under $10,000 a year.

THIRD LOCAL

About one third of the 43 bids received up to Tuesday are local, but the rest are strung out across the country and others are expected before the end of the week when applications close. One inquiry was made by an American and at least one U.S. applicant is expected.

Several applicants reside in Quebec.

Average of applicants is the early 40s and several are just over 30.

Armstrong said a decision would be made in about four weeks.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me where I could get information on old mines, claims and maps, etc., at, on, or around Goldstream?—P.H.

A. This may be had by calling at Room 411 of the Douglas Building, which is an office of the provincial department of mines.

Q. How old is Ed Sullivan?—K.P.

A. Ed Sullivan will be 68 on September 28.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

INQUEST TUESDAY

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said an inquest will be held Tuesday into the death of David Gough, 4, of 2277 Marlene Drive.

The boy drowned Monday after he and playmate Gerald Solliman, 5, of 2272 Marlene Drive, fell through ice on Colwood Lake.

Gerald is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Funeral services for David will be held Friday at 11:15 a.m. at McCall Bros. Cremation will follow.

The inquest will open at 7:30 p.m. at McCalls.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gough, two sisters, Mrs. Sue Smith, 20, and Pat, 19, and a brother Gerry, 17.

A coroner's inquiry will be held into the death of Gerd Otto Paschke, 26, of 467 Dupplin, killed Monday in a motorcycle-truck crash on the Pat Bay Highway.

Teachers Must Pay for Parking

A $3 a month parking fee for teachers at the Institute of Adult Studies stays.

The Greater Victoria school board refused to budge on the subject when teachers asked that it be reconsidered.

Institute teacher Dennis Wing said the levy would damage staff morale. Teachers frequently use their cars in support of student activities.

John Smith, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, complained that the board had not informed the association of its intentions on parking charges.

The decision was made at a public board meeting a year ago, said chairman Carron Jameson. He repeated the board's plan eventually to charge students and teachers throughout the district for parking, and use the funds to provide more parking areas.

If Switchers Don't Turn Him On He's a Dimbulb

By PAT DUFOUR

So you don't have legs like Marlene Dietritch. So the girl-watching parade never notices you're around. Gals, don't give up. Next week you can be a traffic-stopper at Douglas and Yates.

The signal is switch to Switchers.

Switchers are the 'dream-child' of an American company, and have to be the most lethal weapon to ever make an aspiring gal's arsenal.

Their effect is stunning; so stunning you'll have to be prepared to treat your date for shock the first time you try them out for size.

●

This latest piece of man-bait hit Victoria this month. Even displayed on a lifeless manikin the results are likely to be catastrophic.

Twisters, the zaniest in the Switchers repertoire, are panty hose that produce the illusion of curves that would put Venus de Milo to shame.

The optical impact is created by the blending of two colors in a curvaceous design that sizzles the senses, even of the short-sighted.

They've changed the whole pattern of male shoppers. One look at them and those who once shuffled, embarrassed, by hosiery counters, now come back for double-takes. The normally blase turn coy.

●

Who can blame them? Even mini-skirts turn tame when topped with these psychedelic pretties. Any student of anatomy might well wonder if a refresher course is in order.

For the less brave, or desperate, there are two more patterns. One has the front of a leg cased in one color, the back in a vibrant contrast, the other is a saucy little number that splits the colors right down centre field.

Saleswomen report that sales are slow.

Could be that Victoria women still prefer to get their pitchers without aid of Switchers.

Switch to Twisters?

4 Victorians Selected For Orchestra

Auditions for the 1969 National Youth Orchestra have resulted in nine students being chosen from British Columbia.

Four are Victorians and one is a Vancouver girl now studying in Victoria and playing with the Symphony Orchestra here.

Violinists Velma Ko and John Rigby, cellist Norman Abbott, bassoonist Alan Denike are the Victorians. Jacqueline Tarry, a violinst now studying with Jack Kessler at the Victoria Conservatory of Music, is the fifth from this city.

NYO faculty member Stephen Kondaks, Montreal violist and McGill University teacher, conducted the auditions in major centres across Canada, with conductor for this year Victor Feldbrill.

HIGH CALIBRE

Both commented that the calibre of this year's candidates was "extremely high."

Due to size limitations of a symphony orchestra, not all those who warranted inclusion could be accepted. NYO directors have therefore decided to form a chamber group and 34 additional students will go to Toronto for a four-week training period.

Selection of these students who will study and perform within the framework of the July training session, will be announced shortly.

The NYO's 1969 tour schedule opens at the Stratford Festival in August and takes in various Maritime centres. The chamber group will not tour.

SMASHING EFFORT

Goal is knocked off its supports and stick goes flying as Canada's Fran Huck crashes into net guarded by Moscow Selects. It was closest Canadian ace came to scoring as Nationals suffered 4-1 setback in Tuesday's international exhibition at Winnipeg. See story on Page 13. (CP Wirephoto)

MONTREAL DROPS OUT — BUT OTHERS APPLY

A Setback for Lacrosse

Montreal and Detroit dropped out of the National Lacrosse Association Tuesday.

But Eastern division president Terry Kelly of Oshawa said that Brantford, St. Catharines, Oshawa and Rochester have applied for membership. Buffalo also is a candidate to join holdovers Toronto Maple Leafs and Peterborough Lakers in the four-team Eastern Division.

"We are shocked at the Montreal attitude," said Kelly.

The Montreal team, which played at Paul Sauve Arena last season, had hoped to play at the Forum this season. But they were turned down by president David Molson of the Montreal Canadiens hockey team.

Kelly said the NLA is in "solid financial shape."

The Western Division—Portland, Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster — is expected to remain intact, although there is some possibility that Seattle may replace Portland.

The Detroit franchise will be shifted to Oshawa.

St. Catharines and Brantford both want the Montreal franchise, buf prospects are the Canadiens' players will be put in a draft bag for new entries in the league.

Victoria Rink Extends Streak To Four Straight

(Special to The Times)

HAMILTON — Gordon Moore, undefeated going into the fifth round of the Canadian senior curling championship today, has two stories about how he became interested in curling 11 years ago.

"The first one—I like it best—is that I found golfing too expensive, but actually I took it up as therapy for my arthritis," explained Moore.

The 56-year-old British Columbia skip from Victoria leads the 11-rink round-robin tournament with four consecutive victories although second-place Ontario, skipped by Alf Phillips Sr. of Toronto, also is undefeated after three games.

The Quebec rink, skipped by Ron Wright of Hudson, was in third place after four rounds of the championship for men of 55 years and over with a 3-1 won-lost record. Rinks skipped by Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown and Gord Walker of Edmonton follow at 2-1.

New Brunswick, the 1967 champion skipped by Jim Murphy of Saint John, had a 1-2 record, while rinks skipped by Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, Sask., Stan Brooker of Noranda, Que., representing Northern Ontario, Merrill Rawding of Liverpool, N.S., Al Fahrner of Charleswood, Man., and John McCarthy of Newfoundland, all were at 1-3 after four games.

HAD ARTHRITIS

Moore says he was so crippled with arthritis 12 years ago, that "I couldn't hardly get out of a chair."

"So, one day I'm playing golf with a friend and he misses a short putt and throws his putter in the lake. Then, he borrows my putter, misses again and snaps my putter over his knee.

"I asked him just what he thought he was doing and he said: 'if you can't afford this game, you shouldn't be playing it.'"

That was about 11 years ago and Moore took up curling a few months later.

The British Columbia rink won its third consecutive game by edging Saskatchewan 10-8 Tuesday morning when the Lumsden skip missed an open takeout with his final shot of the game and defeated Manitoba 9-8 in an extra end of the regulation 10-end game in the afternoon.

Meanwhile, Phillips and his Toronto draw artists were trouncing New Brunswick 12-3 and Nova Scotia 11-3 to continue their unbeaten string.

The progress of Moore and his mates—third Dick Pick, second Laurie Perlette and lead Joe Leibel—has been marked by close calls.

"We've been lucky," admitted Pick. "We won our first game (against New Brunswick by scoring four on the last end with last rock against us. And we had those tight games against Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba."

In games today, British Columbia was scheduled to go against Prince Edward Island this afternoon and Alberta tonight.

Ace at Colwood

James Horner, 71, shot a hole-in-one on his home course of Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club using a four-iron on the 148-yard, par three, seventh hole.

He was playing with Dr. R. Oldham, K. E. Lewis and P. J. Traves.

WAKEHAM EARNS SPOT IN DORAL OPEN FIELD

DORAL, Fla. — Victoria professional Bill Wakeham today qualified for his first crack at the big money in a Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

The 28-year-old Wakeham claimed the final berth in the $100,000 Doral Open by surviving an early-morning playoff with 18 other rivals.

Wakeham was one of 19 to tie for one berth and five "alternate" spots after carding a 73 Tuesday. Those shooting 72 or better qualified, and the Victoria pro just made the playoff by dropping an 18-foot birdie putt on the last green.

Two overnight withdrawals enabled this morning's 19-man field, who teed off at 5:15 a.m., to run for three berths. Two U.S. golfers picked off the first two spots with birdies on the first two holes.

Wakeham claimed the third spot by scoring a par three on a tough, 245-yard fourth playoff hole.

B.C. Rink Joins First-Place Jam

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Old rivals renewed acquaintances Tuesday at the Canadian women's curling championship.

The meeting between Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg and Joyce McKee of Saskatoon was a highlight of the 10-team, round-robin tournament and the result was an 8-5 victory for Saskatchewan—the third time Miss McKee vanquished Mrs. Brunsdon.

They met twice before in bonspiels when the Manitoba skip lived in Alberta from 1954 to 1966.

Four teams now share the lead with 3-1 records in the national final which winds up Thursday, barring a playoff.

Besides Miss McKee, the leaders are Phyllis Chapman of Moncton, N.B., Mae Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., and June Shaw of Kenora, Ont.

There's another roadblock in fifth place with four rinks holding 2-2 records. They are Simonne Flynn of Medicine Hat, Alta., Marie Toole of Charlottetown, Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld. and Mrs. Brunsdon.

Manitoba got into trouble from the beginning when Mrs. Brunsdon drew up short of the house with last rock and allowed Saskatchewan to steal two points.

They played a see-saw game until the eighth end when Miss McKee threw a perfect last shot to punch out a Manitoba counter sitting just in front of a Saskatchewan stone. The shot left Saskatchewan with three.

BASKETBALL IGNORES BORDER DIFFERENCES

TEL AVIV (CP)—The Israeli Basketball Association was startled the other day to receive an official invitation from the European Basketball Congress to take part in its 1969 tournament.

The tournament will be held in Alexandria, Egypt.

Undaunted, an association official said he will request the International Basketball Federation to advise the Israeli entry on how to obtain Egyptian entry visas.

"If they can do it," the official said, "we will go."

Sandown Meet Still in Doubt

No spring thoroughbred meeting at Sandown Park this year?

The possibility exists.

Jim Goodman of Sidney, one of the stock-owners currently conditioning mounts at Sandown, expressed concern about the Island race meet.

He reported that an official of the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association had informed him that mainland owners may not ship horses over for the 10-day meeting scheduled to commence Saturday, April 15.

The report could not be confirmed. It also failed to produce outright denial.

"All I know is that the dates for Sandown have been approved by the cabinet," said Robert Collis, chairman of the B.C. Racing Commission.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that," said secretary Walter Gregory of the HPBA, when questioned about the possibility of absentee owners.

NOT CONDITIONED

Gregory added, however, that "quite a few owners won't have their stock anywhere close to being ready to run" by the scheduled opening of the Sandown meet.

An official of the B.C. Jockey Club, discounted the report by saying "There has been no change in plans. We have 540 thoroughbreds in training at Lansdowne (in Vancouver) and I understand there are 50 to 70 head at Sandown."

Crux of the situation is that the HPBA apparently has not yet signed an agreement with the Jockey Club to accept the authorized B.C. racing dates. Many HPBA members favor a return to a full race meet at Sandown.

Terry Saves Labs

Terry Shenton sank a basket in the dying seconds of a Senior Men's Basketball League tussle to salvage a 59-58 win for league-champion Labatts.

The Labs edged Colony Inn. In the other game of the season-ending doubleheader, Red Lion Inn bounced Farmer Construction 86-57.

Labs were sparked by Shenton's total of 19 points, one more than Darrell Lorimer.

SPOTSWOOD SPARKLES

Bill Spotswood was again leader of the Red Lion offence with 18 points while Morris Douglas added 17, John McKeachie 15 and Bruce Robertson 14.

New Pressure On Leaf Coach

By The Canadian Press

Punch Imlach's future as coach of Toronto Maple Leafs apparently still was in doubt today.

Team president Stafford Smythe and six other members of the Maple Leaf Gardens' hockey committee met with Imlach Tuesday night to discuss his status as coach of the National Hockey League club.

Smythe has been reported opposed to Imlach's maintaining his dual role of manager-coach. He would like to see Imlach remain as general manager and appoint a new coach.

There was no word on the outcome of Tuesday night's meeting. Even its location was kept secret from reporters, who waited at the Gardens from some word.

Imlach's latest problems with management began last Wednesday night when centre Mike Walton walked out on the team after a dispute about the amount of ice time he was receiving.

RUMORS ABOUND

Rumors have Walton, a 24-year-old centre, going to Philadelphia Flyers, Detroit Red Wings or Chicago Black Hawks in a trade.

Speculation Tuesday night was that Walton, right winger Larry Mickey and left winger Bob Pulford would be traded to Chicago for left winger Dennis Hull and defenceman Gilles Marotte.

Imlach, however, denied that he was close to making a deal for Walton.

"I have a few meetings I have to attend, but I would have to say I don't know if any trade will be made. I repeat what I said earlier. I am not going to trade Walton just to get rid of him. The deal would have to be beneficial to the Toronto hockey club.

"Also, if anything comes up I might decide to think about it for awhile. There's no basis for anyone to say a deal will be made today or tomorrow or this week. I can't say because I don't know."

RECRUITING JUNIOR

Meanwhile, the Maple Leafs announced they might recruit forward Doug Acomb from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for tonight's home game against St. Louis Blues.

Acomb, leading scorer in the junior league, would replace winger Ron Ellis, bothered by torn chest muscles.

In other games tonight, Detroit visits Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers welcome Chicago, Los Angeles Kings play host to Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars are at Oakland Seals.

Totems, Bays Head For Crucial Meeting

Friday is a crucial day for both Oak Bay and Victoria Totems, the co-leaders of the Inter-High School Boys' Basketball League. Anticipating their head-to-head battle Friday, both showed off Tuesday with impressive wins over other league rivals.

Oak Bay bounced to its 31st straight victory this season by mauling University School 94-9 while Totems remained in step with an 81-13 victory at Claremont.

Bays, who have two games remaining, were sparked by substitutes Glen White, with 16 points, Dave Weiker, with 15, and Walter Burrows, with 12. Oak Bay plays at Victoria Friday and completes its schedule against Claremont on Tuesday.

GUARANTEED winner of one of four awards to be presented Victoria Cougar players tonight is centre Grant Evans (above). Far ahead of mates with 45 goals and 32 assists, he'll be presented trophy as club's top scorer. Three other awards will be presented between periods of B.C. Junior Hockey League game between Cougars and New Westminster Royals. Game time for Cougars' final home game is 8:30.

Totems only have Friday's game against the Bays to worry over.

Dave Mulcahy fired 20 points to lead the win over Claremont while teammate Barrie Moen added 18.

Bays, Totems, Mt. Douglas Rams and Esquimalt Dockers have already earned berths in the Vancouver Island championships on March 7 and 8 at the University of Victoria.

Rams and Dockers scramble tonight at 5 in Central Junior High School for a game that could well decide third and fourth places.

DISPUTE SETTLED . . . — . . . PENSIONS INCREASED

It's a Hit for Players After a Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball players won increased pension benefits from the club owners Tuesday and the threat of a strike was lifted.

The owners raised their contribution to the pension plan, made from television receipts, from $4,100,000 in 1968 to $5,450,000 yearly for the next three years. Retirement benefits at age 50 for a 10-year player will be increased to $600 monthly from $500.

Although the agreement between the executive board of the Players Association and the Player Relations Committee of the major league clubs still must be ratified by both sides, players were told to enter into negotiations for individual contracts and then report for spring training.

The increased pension contribution makes possible the following improved benefits, the negotiators announced:

"1. Players will qualify for retirement benefits after 4 years of major league service rather than the present five years.

"2. Retirement benefits at age 50 will be increased from $50 to $60 a month for each of the first 10 years of active major league service, i.e., $600 a month for a 10-year player. In addition, retirement benefits payable for each year of active major league service from 11 to 20 years will be increased from $10 to $20 a month.

"3. Early retirement will be permitted at age 45 with an actuarial adjustment from the benefits payable on normal retirement at age 50.

"4. A dental program will be established.

"5. Life insurance coverage will be increased to $50,000 for each active player and $25,000 for each presently inactive player who qualifies for retirement benefits.

"6. Widow's benefits, disability benefits and maternity benefits and other health care benefits will be substantially improved.

"7. Provision will be made to permit a member who has ended his active service as player to receive a portion of his retirement benefits in a lump sum. Full pension benefits could be reinstated upon appropriate reimbursement to the pension fund."

Bowie Kuhn, baseball's new commissioner who played a key role in bringing about peace, declared "I am immensely pleased with the settlement which I feel is fair to the players and the clubs alike."

Baseball players, even those with salaries ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 annually, are among the most pension-conscious of all athletes. This is because their period of high earning power is usually so brief.

The pension dispute began last summer when the players demanded a percentage of television receipts. The owners insisted on paying a flat sum and in this area they won out.

National television paid baseball $12,300,000 last year and the figure will go to $16,500,000 this year. Local television and radio paid an additional $19,500,000 in 1968 and will pay $20,700,000 in 1969.

Traffic Now Rolls To Spring Camps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's spring training camps were expected to begin resembling major league installations today following settlement of the pension dispute between owners and the players' association.

Within a matter of hours after the settlement, several players had signed contracts and said they would begin working out.

General manager Jim Campbell of world champion Detroit Tigers signed nine veterans.

Catcher Tim McCarver, player representative of St. Louis Cardinals, called general manager Bing Devine from New York to report the settlement and agree to terms for 1969.

Cincinnati enrolled pitchers George Culver and Tony Cloninger and outfielder Bobby Tolan and infielder Jimmy Stewart.

Stan Bahnsen, the New York pitcher who was the American League's rookie of the year in 1968, signed with the Yankees, leaving five players including Mickey Mantle still unsigned. Mantle is expected to arrive at the Yankees' Fort Lauderdale, Fla., training site Friday.

Tony Horton, a first baseman, and shortstop Larry Brown signed Cleveland contracts and joined the Indians' workout at Tucson, Ariz. Pitchers Al Jackson and Ron Taylor of Toronto agreed to terms with New York Mets.

IN SKATING

Europeans Show Way

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Three skating teams from Russia and a 17-year-old shopkeeper's daughter from Vienna dominated opening-day events at the world figure skating championships Tuesday.

Russia's Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov outskated the four-time titleholders from their own country, Ludmila Beloussova and Oleg Protopopov, in the pairs compulsory figures.

Another Russian pair, Tamara Moskovina and Alexei Mishin, were third in the 1-2-3 sweep of the compulsory. The free skating, counting 70 per cent in the judging, climaxes the pairs competition tonight.

Beatrice Schuba, the pert Austrian skater, moved ahead of favored Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany after four of the required six school figures in the ladies singles event.

Linda Carbonetto of Toronto was in 11th place after the four events, but expressed confidence she would score well in the two compulsory figures today.

The Russian leaders in the pairs event put on a breathtaking performance in defeating Miss Beloueova and Protopopov, duplicating their exhibition in the recent European championships.

ONTARIO PAIR NINTH

A Canadian couple, Anna Forder, 17, and Rick Stephens, 21, of Port Perry, Ont., the Canadian pairs champions, finished ninth with 88.7 points. They were fifth in the recent North American championships in Oakland, Calif.

An American brother-sister team of Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman of Seattle, the U.S. and North American champions, were fourth in Tuesday's compulsory.

The move by Miss Schuba to the top of the standings in the ladies singles did not deter the supporters of the blonde and glamorous Miss Seyfert, the European titleholder and silver medallist in the 1968 Olympic Games.

Miss Seyfert is still expected to take the title, won last year by Peggy Fleming of the United States, now a professional.

The East German girl is a daring and dazzling free skater, while Miss Schuba is less spectacular in that final phase of the event which counts for 50 per cent of the judging.

The free skating windup is scheduled for Thursday night.

FELL TO FOURTH

Hana Moskova of Czechoslovakia, competing despite a painful back injury, fell to fourth place from third in the singles event, behind Hungary's Zsuzsa Almassy.

Two American girls, Julie Lynn Holmes and Janet Lynn, remained in contention in fifth and sixth place respectively.

After the four figures, Miss Seyfert had a fraction of a point lead over Miss Schuba in points, 729.4 to 729.1, but the Austrian led in the all-important ordinals, or placings, on which judging is based. She was picked first by five of the nine judges.

Miss Carbonetto, 19-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto, amassed 625.2 points, but said she hoped to advance today in the last two compulsory figures. These, she said, are her best.

The men start their compulsory figures events today with Jay Humphrey, 20, of Toronto, the main Canadian hope. He was second in the North American event.

The dance championship will be decided Saturday night. Canada is represented by Donna Taylor and Bruce Lennie of Toronto, North American champions.

Canucks Pressing Leaders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks are back in a familiar spot in the Western Hockey League, one point behind league-leading Portland after defeating Seattle Totems 3-2 Tuesday night before 6,699 fans.

Canucks had to come from behind twice in an otherwise mild game in which there were only five minor penalties.

Goals by Jack Michie and Bill Dineen supplied Seattle with 1-0 and 2-1 leads before Murray Hall tied it up again midway in the third period. Veteran Andy Bathgate scored the winner at 17:42 of the third.

Ted McCaskill counted Canucks' first goal and Vancouver out-shot Totems 40-30.

Goalie's Eyes Nats' New Woe

WINNIPEG (CP)—Russia's ninth straight exhibition hockey victory over Canada was described by coach Jackie McLeod Tuesday night as "like a leading hitter going nothing-for-18 in baseball."

The 4-1 victory by Moscow Selects, Russia's second team, followed eight losses by Canada to the Soviet first-string squad earlier this year.

"We're doing the same things, getting the chances, but just can't buy a break or a goal," McLeod said in the Canadian dressing room after the defeat.

Adding to his problem was the complaint of goalie Wayne Stephenson who asked to be benched following the first period because his eyesight was failing.

Stephenson fanned on Russia's two early goals, the first coming on a shot just inside the Canadian half of the rink and the other from the blue line. The 3,422 fans were not impressed.

Bill Heindl got Canada's lone marker of the game in reply to the first two Russian goals when he blistered in a 40-foot slap shot while Moscow goalie Viktor Puchkov was partially screened.

Vladimir Shadrin tapped in the puck for the final goal of the period after it had been passed three times in front of the Canadian net in a Russian power play.

The Russians coasted the rest of the game, scoring once in the second period when Igor Grigoryev slapped the puck into the net from 20 feet out.

Stephenson is to be sent to an eye specialist today in hope he will be available to play for Canada in the world hockey tournament next month at Stockholm.

Steve Rexe, one of six members of the Ottawa-based Nationals brought here for the game, finished the night in nets for Canada.

Tough to Forget Best in the Field

BERN, Switzerland (CP-AP)—Even in retirement, Canadian skiing ace Nancy Greene still is queen of the slopes.

International Ski Federation ratings released here Tuesday place her first among world amateurs in slalom, giant slalom and downhill despite the fact she hasn't waxed a ski competitively in the 1968-69 season.

A federation spokesman said Miss Greene, 25, still is first because of her superior performance in the 1967-68 season. The ratings are compiled to determine the competitive starting order for all skiers.

STILL HOPING

Although she retired at the end of last season after winning gold and silver medals at the Olympic Games and being crowned World Cup champion for the second time, Miss Greene still is listed as a member of the Canadian Ski Federation team, and so is included in the ratings.

"Miss Greene dominated racing so strongly in the previous season that she is still ahead of all the others," the federation spokesman said. Federation sources said the Canadian federation had retained Nancy's name on the team list in the hope she might return to competition.

AUSTRIAN TOP MALE

Three different men lead the three male categories in the federation standings. Gerhard Nenning of Austria is No. 1 in the downhill, Jean-Noel Ahgert of France leads in giant slalom and Alfred Matt of Austria is tops in the slalom. No Canadian men appear in the top 10.

Marielle Goitschel of France, who joined Miss Greene in retirement last year, still is ranked third in women's slalom and 10th in giant slalom.

Second to the Canadian ace in slalom rating is Gertrude Gabl of Austria, who also is third in the giant slalom. Florence Steuer of France is second in the giant slalom. In downhill, Olga Pall of Austria is second and Isabelle Mir of France third. Most of these women have been active in competition this season.

Juan de Fuca Swimmers Take Honors

Juan de Fuca captured the intermediate team event of the Vancouver Island synchronized swimming championships held at both the YM-YWCA and Colwood Centennial pools at the weekend.

With their routine "Mutiny," the Colwood girls defeated teams from Vancouver and North Vancouver. Clubmates placed second in the 12-and-under event and third in the junior team competition.

Barefoot Runner To Cross U.S.A. In 'Last Fling'

LONDON (Reuters) — Bruce Tulloh, barefoot winner of the 1962 European 5,000 metre title wants "one last fling" before he finally retires from running.

His aim is to run from New York to Los Angeles in less than the existing record of 73 days, set by South African George Sheppard in 1964.

"I've done pretty well everything else—this is about the biggest thing there is left," Tulloh said when asked about the reasons for his run.

The British runner will leave Britain April 3 and hopes to begin his run April 19.

B.C. COMMISSION . . . . . GOING MODERN

Soccer Seeking New Image

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia soccer commission plans to do something about its public image.

The commission has been under fire over the years principally because its members have been appointed rather than elected.

The commission plans to increase its strength to nine members from six, to include one representative from each of the Pacific Coast and mainland Leagues and the B.C. Juvenile Association.

The additional members will each hold office for one year and will have full voting rights. Their first term will end on Aug. 31, 1970.

The three groups have been asked to name their representatives by April 15.

A full-scale review of the commission's makeup is predicted for the fall to improve the operation.

GIGANTIC CANADA PACKERS WEEK at OAKCREST FOODS

It's a Cost-Plus Problem for Atlantic Areas

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Let's say you are the president of a manufacturing company and you are trying to decide whether to build a new plant in the Atlantic provinces or somewhere else.

You have just about decided on the Atlantic region when it turns out it will cost more for raw materials there than in Central Canada.

Also it will cost about 27 per cent more to ship the finished products to market. That is when you opt for that Ontario site. Right?

Tuesday, the 200 members of the House of Commons transportation committee arrived back in Ottawa with hundreds of little stories like that in their briefcases.

Those and other more detailed submissions were heard in the committee's week of hearings on Atlantic transportation in Fredericton, Halifax, St. John's, Nfld. and Charlottetown.

H. Pit Lessard, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal's Lasalle riding who is also chairman of the transportation committee, says the committee most likely will bring down an interim report before March 23.

Other recommendations of the committee won't be made until a final report is turned in to the Commons—a report that won't be compiled until even more facts and opinions have been gathered from such sources as J. W. Pickersgill, president of the Canadian Transport Commission, and officials of Canadian National Railways, Air Canada and Eastern Provincial Airways.

The committee has announced that it plans to call these, and perhaps other witnesses, to Ottawa for further hearings on the transportation problems.

Monday's on-the-spot session featured most of the themes which have become familiar to the committee in the last week.

Premier Alex Campbell and other representatives from Prince Edward Island businesses and organizations suggested such things as extension of the Maritime Freight Rates Act to include all modes of transportation, extension of the freeze on non-competitive freight rates until a new transportation policy is worked out, and federal money to help in the construction of all weather highways.

But, because this is Prince Edward Island, the provinces which has a transportation issue, there is also the causeway.

Premier Campbell said it would be a bargain at $160,000,000, because if it is not built "it will cost the federal government approximately $1,000,000,000 over the next 60 years to provide adequate ferry service."

ESSA IX PLACED IN PERFECT ORBIT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Essa IX, last in the present generation of weather satellites, was placed in orbit today.

Packing two camera systems for a daily view of weather around nearly the entire earth, the spacecraft—called Essa IX for the ninth environmental survey satellite—streaked southward from Cape Kennedy atop a Delta rocket.

Twenty minutes later, the 340-pound hatbox-shaped craft sprung into a near circular orbit about 900 miles high as planned.

Smoked Alaska Cod Poached in Milk

Measure thickness of fish, wipe with a damp cloth, simmer in covered pan in milk or water until it flakes easily when tested with a fork. Allow 10 minutes cooking time for fresh fish, and 20 minutes per inch thickness for frozen fish. Season with pepper and serve with milk thickened to make a white sauce.

The fish may be poached in milk or water on top of the stove or baked in the oven at 450 degrees. Do not overcook. Smoked Alaskan Cod is very rich when poached in milk.

HERITAGE VILLAGE

Talking Won't Save Old Homes

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The idea of preserving historic homes and buildings in a heritage village setting is not new. More than five years ago now, Miss Ellen Hart, well-known for her efforts to preserve and care for our old homes, was pleading for some such effort. On several occasions this column has also urged the same sort of plan. Now, when it is almost too late to save some of these places, the idea is being placed before us again and as something original and new.

Forbes

Talking about it and writing about it will not make such a plan a reality. It will need money, determination and dedication.

Even with these three elements it would be uphill work to acquire the right site, transport old homes and buildings to it and then create an atmosphere around each place to go with its history.

It has been suggested that houses preserved in this way would be lived in by people interested in restoring and maintaining them.

★ ★ ★

This is a sound idea if enough dedicated people can be found.

Some will tell me that it is being done in Britain where National Trust places are lived in and at the same time open to the public.

What we must not forget, however, is that those trust houses have been left in their original settings. Also that they have been lived in for centuries and in a majority of cases by descendants of the original owners.

It would be a very different thing to bring someone into a place cold (no matter how interested they might be) and expect them to have a really personal interest in upkeep without some form of remuneration.

What is really needed first, if the proposed heritage village plan is to become a reality, is a fairy godmother (or godfather) willing to give or to endow an acreage where the historic homes could be preserved and where they would remain for all time as authentic evidence of past eras.

★ ★ ★

It would have to be someone sufficiently concerned about the preservation of Victoria's history and with the money to indulge that concern.

With money it would be easy to create a heritage village for our historic homes and buildings — the few that are left.

As I have said in this column before, anyone who has visited Greenfield Village on the outskirts of Detroit will know this idea is not a dream.

There, on 200 acres of meadow and treed land, a much larger project than the one envisioned here has been brought to near perfection through the interest and backing of one man.

The founder was the late Henry Ford. The land was his gift.

Money from a foundation he set up has developed a village where buildings recall life and work in the early years of this North American continent.

★ ★ ★

Nearly all the buildings and homes are originals, brought to Greenfield from different locations (numbered stone or board by numbered stone or board in some cases) and set up there as historic monuments.

It is this kind of endowment and help — on a smaller scale — that is needed if we are ever going to get any further than airing a desire to preserve history and moaning over the fact that it is being obliterated.

As for the Pearse home at Vining and Begbie, where a 200-unit apartment will soon rise, if it is not feasible to retain the 109 year-old manor on its present site or it is not possible to move it to another site, then let's stop nattering about it.

At the same time let us remember the manor as an example of what can happen, what has happened in the past and will happen again in the future, if public interest is not aroused to a point where foresight takes the place of hindsight.

Vehement Opposition Delays Reform Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposals to change the law on abortion and homosexuality again were the focus for vehement moral and religious opposition in the Commons Tuesday.

At the same time, the government and Prime Minister Trudeau were drubbed verbally for insisting that MPs vote on a whole package of criminal law changes, including those two sections.

The Commons completed its seventh day of debate on Criminal Code amendments without the legislation receiving second reading.

The 14-member Creditiste party displayed the only united front among the three opposition parties when it served notice that, as a result of a survey of Quebec constituents, all will vote against the government's bill.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield declared a free vote for the official Opposition, whose speakers repealed a split on the abortion and homosexuality questions although they were united in condemning the government's tactics.

The 22-member New Democratic party has also split on the bill's contents.

STUDY VOTING BILLS

The bill occupied the full day's sitting Tuesday, except for a one-hour private members debate during which two measures to lower the voting age to 18 from 21 were sent to a Commons committee for study.

The stumbling blocks to approval of the Criminal Code changes are a provision to exempt from prosecution homosexual acts in private by consenting adults and a provision to permit abortions when a hospital committee certifies that the woman's life or health is endangered.

Mr. Stanfield made it plain that he will vote for the government's bill despite serious reservations. He said he doubts whether the abortion and homosexuality sections make any real reform.

The abortion provision might make it harder to terminate pregnancies in remote regions.

He renewed his criticism of the government for refusing to split the bill into sections for voting purposes and permit its supporters to vote according to their personal convictions.

The Conservative House Leader, G. W. Baldwin (Peace River) delivered the harshest blast against the government's approach on the measure.

"I think that the attitude of the government has been arrogant, authoritarian, undemocratic and downright immoral," he charged.

Issues of morality and conscience should be kept far outside political partisanship but were being placed on the statute books by questionable means.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the abortion and homosexuality sections violate Christian morality.

"You can never achieve a good end through immoral means," he said.

"The Creditiste party is happy to stand on the teachings of God and not on those of the Liberal party."

On the government side, Gilles Marceau (L—Lapointe said that while he opposes abortion himself as a Roman Catholic, he does not consider he has a monopoly on the truth.

HAD NO RIGHT

He had decided that he had no right to prevent a woman from obtaining an abortion if her morals permit her to apply for one.

Maurice Foster (L—Algoma) said the government has proceeded in the only practical way by covering all the criminal law changes in one bill, although the abortion section still leaves unsolved the problem of pregnancies resulting from rape or incest.

John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said he finds it difficult to accept the concept of abortion," which I consider to be murder."

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) echoed the thought, adding that he would like to see further inquiry into all aspects of the question.

Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre) said the bill really means unrestricted abortion, because nothing in it will prevent termination of life for frivolous reasons. Homosexuals would be given the green light to proselytize the young.

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) bitterly attacked the homosexual section, saying: "I cannot see myself voting to put the stamp of respectability on something that is degrading and demoralizing to our people."

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste—Roberval) appealed to "every Catholic, Christian and atheist with humanity to fight the bill because of the two backward and uncivilized sections."

BENNETT SETS ODDS FOR NDP LEADERSHIP

Premier W. A. C. Bennett Tuesday set his odds for the provincial New Democratic leadership race.

The line:

Tom Berger, MLA for Vancouver East, 2 to 1.

Dave Barrett, Coquitlam, 5 to 1.

Robert Strachan, current leader, 10 to 1.

Bob Williams, Vancouver East, 40 to 1.

The NDP convention will be held in Vancouver in April. Mr. Strachan has announced retirement plans but has left himself open for a draft.

MLA Urges Tax Exemption On Handicrafts

The provincial government should stop charging its five per cent sales tax on B.C. Indian handicrafts, Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) told the legislature Tuesday.

He suggested removing the tax would increase sales and encourage more of this native industry.

Premier Bennett replied that the tax is charged the purchaser, not the producer and said people buying these goods should pay something towards social development of the province.

The exchange came during debate on finance department estimates.

In reply to a question from Bob Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) the premier said the province had no intention of removing the general sales tax on books.

Williams asked whether the government would consider putting a sales tax on magazines, now exempt, and removing the one on books.

Bennett said some books—school texts, dictionaries and the Bible—now are exempt but the tax would remain on the others.

Williams suggested the premier was thus "leaving Playboy alone" while taxing other books.

Before the Magistrate

Alvin H. Schochenmaier, 2437 Amherst Drive, Sidney, was sentenced in central court Tuesday to 20 days in jail for impaired driving. The offence occurred on Douglas Street Monday.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the accused had a previous conviction for impaired driving in 1965 and also for driving while suspended.

William J. Hewitt, 473 Joffre, was fined $200 for failing to provide certain information to the income tax department in 1968. Court was told the maximum fine for such an offence is $10,000.

Douglas Ham, 2843 Sooke Road, was committed for higher court trial on a charge of breaking and entering and theft and possession of stolen property.

Bail was set at $500.

Floods, Snow Hit U.S. Coasts Killing 27

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy snow buried much of New England under traffic-hobbling drifts today while floods and mudslides claimed a mounting toll in lives and property in rain-plagued California.

Twenty-seven persons were dead as a result of the late-winter storms which slammed into opposite ends of the United States Sunday.

The toll included 10 in California and 17 in New England, most of the latter by over-exertion from snow shovelling.

The northeastern storm—the second to hit the region in two weeks—dumped two to three feet of snow on a large part of New England. Two feet covered some suburban Boston communities, and the weather bureau indicated another several inches could be expected.

The Massachusetts public works department urged motorists to use public transportation. Boston's Logan International Airport, shut down since Monday night, was not able to reopen by midnight Tuesday night.

Winds accompanying the snows tore down power lines in scattered coastal sections. Five towns on Massachusetts' South Shore remained without electricity for a second day. Civil defence units opened shelters to help stricken families.

DIE IN SLIDE

In California, five persons were killed and eight missing and believed dead following a mudslide that slammed into an Orange County fire station where 60 residents had sought shelter.

Hundreds of homes were damaged by flooding and mudslides spawned by three days of heavy rains in central and southern California. Up to 16 inches swamped some southern counties.

Most of 4,000 persons who fled their Ventura County homes in Santa Paula late Monday were able to return Tuesday. But National Guard troops were called out to help another 3,000 evacuate flooded sections of San Bernardino County.

Northwest of Los Angeles, the rain-swollen Santa Clara River smashed a levee protecting a marina at Ventura. Some 200 boats sank, including luxurious yachts, and others were swept out to sea. Damage was estimated at $4,000,000.

Blowing and drifting snow closed a stretch of U.S. 40 east of Salt Lake City. Schools were closed through Tuesday in some sections of eastern and southern Idaho.

Travellers warnings remained in effect for portions of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and North Dakota.

Peace Corps Rejected

New York Office Fire Kills 9 Persons

NEW YORK (AP) —A fire raced through a midtown Fifth Avenue office building, killing nine persons and leaving seven others critically burned.

Most of the victims Tuesday were trapped on the third floor of the five-storey building at 48th Street, near Rockefeller Centre. Some were jammed in an elevator disabled by the flames and others were piled against a door.

Dozens of others ran down smoke-filled stairwells or clambered down aerial ladders. Some were carried out by police.

The fire was one of the worst in recent New York history. Rush-hour crowds which gathered snarled traffic and slowed some ambulances called to the scene.

The blaze broke out shortly after 4:30 p.m., apparently in the third-floor offices of architectural designer David Rosen.

Cause was undetermined but Chief John T. O'Hagen said two gallon cans of a flammable liquid were found on the third floor "and we have to assume they contributed to it."

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—The Alberta New Democratic Party said Monday it has agreed to lead a province-wide campaign urging the provincial government to join the federal medical care program as soon as possible.

Quebec Proposes Constitution Poll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday the government is considering legislation to create a system of referendums which could be used, among other things, to determine the feelings of Quebecers on constitutional negotiations with the rest of Canada.

Mr. Bertrand said at a news conference following the opening of the fourth session of the 28th legislature that the "inaugural speech" read by Lt.-Gov. Hugues Lapointe referred to the referendum legislation under consideration.

The speech said it will be necessary to determine "the mechanism whereby the sovereign will of the people of Quebec" can be expressed constitutionally.

The government, said Mr. Bertrand, does not intend to restrict the scope of the referendum legislation to internal matters. A referendum could cover constitutional matters with the rest of Canada.

STRIPPED OF CEREMONY

The premier was speaking after an opening ceremony that was stripped of much of the royal trappings that used to mark legislative activity in Quebec.

The flowing black robe formerly worn by the Speaker of the house was replaced by formal clothes, the clerks wore charcoal grey suits, instead of clerical robes and the sergeant-at-arms gave up the sword and ornate costume he used to wear in favor of a charcoal grey suit.

The speech, which opened the session, was called the "inaugural speech" rather than the speech from the throne as it used to be designated.

The speech said the opening of the first session since the abolition of the legislature's upper chamber and the change of the legislative assembly's name to national assembly was "symbolic of the new spirit which animates the Quebec community."

Operated Own Still

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Anton Kormendy, 42, of North Vancouver, was fined $100 under the Excise Act Tuesday in magistrate's court after RCMP witnesses testified they found a five-gallon copper still and 300 ounces of liquor on his property.

A Canadian First For Woman Judge

By AGIL SCOTT

MONTREAL (CP) — Rejane Laberge-Colas, the first woman in Canada's history to be appointed to a Superior Court bench, almost became a classical contralto.

The soft-spoken champion of women's rights also married a man who used to disapprove of women lawyers and who advocated the women's-place-is-in-the-home theory.

He became a femininist when he married me," Mrs. Colas said, referring to her lawyer-husband Emile.

—CP Wirephoto
REJANE LABERGE-COLAS

She called her appointment to the bench a "total surprise" and a "major step towards equal rights for women." It crowns a legal career that began late—after a false five-year start as a classical singer.

Mrs. Colas was interviewed Monday. Tall, attractive and almost shy, she avoided the subject of politics to discuss her main interests—family legal problems, women's rights and what she hopes to accomplish as a Superior Court justice.

"I will probably deal frequently with family cases when I am on the bench," she said. "And I hope to be able to be human in my judgments because I am a woman and because I have a family."

Mrs. Colas, who will ascend to the Quebec Superior Court March 6, also expects to be dealing with cases in corporation law, in which she has been specializing almost since she left the University of Montreal law school in 1951.

"I won't be able to campaign for women's rights any longer," she added. "I have instructions from the chief justice."

TRUDEAU HELPS

She was appointed despite what she called discrimination against women in the legal profession because Prime Minister Trudeau and some members of his cabinet were "in favor."

Mrs. Colas, who graduated from law school at the top of her class, said discrimination against her as a woman diminished as her colleagues grew to respect her work.

But she attributes her appointment as much to her work in the Quebec Federation of Women as to her work as a corporation lawyer.

The federation, established in 1966, works largely as a coordinator between various associations concerned with women's rights.

"Sometimes women have rights at a theoretical level, but not at a practical level. When a married woman negotiates for a bank loan, for example, they frequently ask her husband if it's OK.

WOMEN AT FAULT

"Male mentality has to change. But women are at fault too. Many women are against other women—especially if they cannot succeed in careers themselves.

Mrs. Colas started law school in 1947 after having tried to eke out a living for five years as a classical singer. She also performed on radio "but there just wasn't much singing to do in Montreal in those days."

She met her husband when he served as president of the Quebec Junior Bar in 1955 and she was one of the councillors. Married a few years later, Mrs. Colas has taken a month off to have each of her three sons, aged 8, 6 and 4.

ANOTHER PRIZE FOR PAM

Friends of Miss Victoria, Pam Gillan, met at her home Monday evening for a presentation to Pam, who was second runner-up in the Miss Canada pageant last year. Pam was to have received her most recently acquired prize, a set of jewelry from a well-known Canadian firm, at a presentation in Calgary, but was unable to attend. Pictured with Pam are Sue MacDonald and Pam Tyre.

Florence Nightingale Chapter Elects Mrs. William Blair

Miss M. E. Thompson, director of nurses at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was presented with an afghan for use at the hospital by members of Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE, at their annual meeting Wednesday.

Other special guests at the meeting, which followed lunch at Holyrood House, were Alderman Gertrude Hall of Nanaimo, who is honorary regent of the chapter; Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, municipal regent, and Sister Mary Doris, representing St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. William Blair was re-elected chapter regent, and others on the new executive are Mrs. William Hudson, first vice-regent; Mrs. G. H. Swainston, second vice-regent; Mrs. J. J. R. Hamilton, treasurer; Mrs. T. Lumsden, secretary; Mrs. A. McAllister, educational secretary; Mrs. G. C. Baker, services at home and abroad, and Mrs. K. Mills, Echoes secretary.

In her report as treasurer, Mrs. J. J. R. Hamilton stated that receipts amounted to $2,480.81, with total disbursements of $2,346.44, leaving a balance of $697.08.

Main money-raising projects during the year were a treasure boutique tea and the annual bazaar.

Services at home and abroad secretary Mrs. A. R. Minnis reported that donations totalling $1,105 were made to St. Joseph's Hospital and the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children. Other donations were made for clothing and bedding sent to Korea, books for the Veterans' Hospital, and to a school for retarded children.

In addition, five bursaries were presented to nurses and student nurses at local hospitals.

Miss Thompson was guest speaker at the meeting.

REM Sleep Exercise For Brain

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Babies have three kinds of sleep—one more than adults—says a specialist in psychiatry and psychology who has studied sleep patterns of newborn babies.

Dr. Dugal Campbell told a recent symposium on sleep and dreaming here that adults have rapid eye movement (REM) sleep and "slow-wave" sleep, named for the kind of brainwave patterns it produces. But babies have a third type of sleep—"transitional"—which is a mixture of the other two and is not found among adults.

Dr. Campbell, an associate professor of psychiatry and psychology at Queen's University, said babies also spend much more of their time in "active" sleep, when the brain is active. He said such sleep provides the baby with brain exercise to help it keep mentally fit.

Senior Citizens Plan Special Birthday Party

A special party is planned for Thursday afternoon to mark the first birthday of the Marigold Senior Citizen Centre.

There will be a birthday cake with one candle, games and prizes, and music by banjoist George Clarke, a member of the Centre, accompanied by his wife on the piano.

Ceramic work made during the year at the Centre under the direction of Mrs. S. Cosh and Mrs. G. Gnam will be on display, as will pictures by members of the painting class.

The popular Centre is open each Thursday from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in the Marigold Scout Hall, corner of Jasmine and Marigold, for elderly people of the area. Activities include cards, painting and ceramics, and tea is served each afternoon. The last Thursday of each month is concert day.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

Sometimes accomplishing all of the things we should in any one day feels like trying to push an apple through the eye of a needle! It may seem nearly impossible to work everything in and therefore the things we intend to do to promote health often fall by the wayside.

We feel that we can put these off whereas meals must be on time for the hungry family and business, social and civic obligations must be met. Yet the things we neglect are the investments in self-improvement we can least afford to omit. Fine health is the blessing which adds radiance to daily living.

Today so much is known about how to avoid many of the physical disasters of later years and how to prolong the youthful portion of life. What a shame it is not to invest in this knowledge! Today regular daily exercise is medically approved as one of our greatest weapons against illness and premature aging.

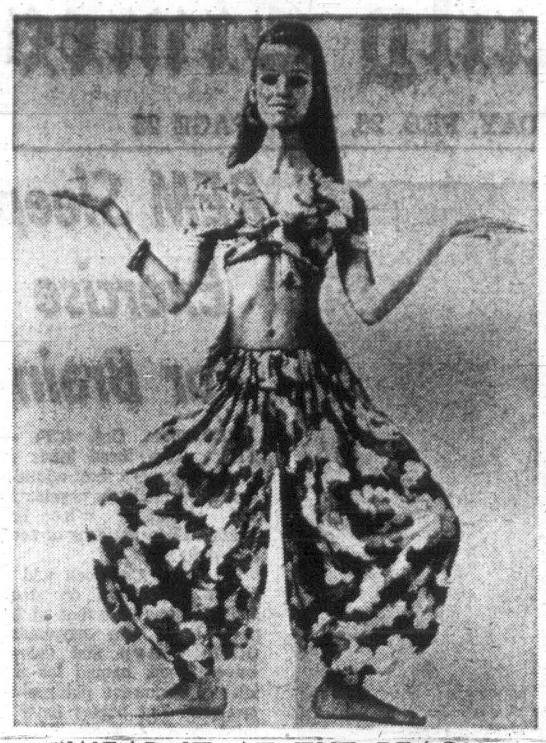
It is easy to put this off until tomorrow after tomorrow after tomorrow, and it is difficult to work it into a busy day. I receive many letters asking me how to do this. Of course when and how is a highly individual matter since one person's duties and schedules may be entirely different from another's. Organization of housekeeping duties and our lives generally will create more time for things we wish to do.

I think a woman is more likely to exercise regularly if she puts aside a certain time for exercise and does the exercise at the same time each day. We are creatures of habit and this soon becomes a familiar part of our schedule like sleeping and eating. Naturally you will not be able to exercise at the same time every day but as a habit you usually can.

Many homemakers like to exercise the first thing in the morning after the departure of their family. Other women prefer to take care of part of their housework and then exercise just before lunch. They may take a short liedown afterwards. Still others like to do their exercises in the late afternoon just before a bath and fresh clothes for dinner. These are the most popular times for the housewife.

If there are pre-school-age children an ideal time is while the children nap or rest. Afterward making motions for health you can snag a little rest yourself.

The woman in business does not have so much choice. Some hardy souls get up early enough to exercise before leaving for the office. However, many like to do their exercises before going to sleep at night. Others prefer the late afternoon right after returning from work. This is the time when you may feel least like it but when it is most beneficial.



WEAR IT AT THE BEACH

It's lilac, green and purple, and it's a harem-look beach ensemble. It comes with a matching bikini. The outfit is from an Israeli fashion show, currently at the Tel Aviv Hilton, but scheduled to be shown in Victoria on April 14. Victoria Chapter of Hadassah is sponsoring the two local showings. DEAR ABBY . . .

Enjoy the Mountain

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I propose that we adopt the following code of behavior between the sexes: "Henceforth a man may touch any part of a woman's body that he is able to see."

I believe that such a code would induce women to impose upon themselves some restraints on the manner in which they dress.

Our mini-skirted bare-bosomed gals go about exuding as much sexiness as they possibly can, then they expect to be treated like virtuous untouchable young ladies. Any comments?

LEO IN COLUMBUS.

DEAR LEO: Yes! I am in favor of "truth in packaging" and against advertising that which one has no intention of delivering, but since when should one be able to touch everything he sees? One should be able to enjoy viewing a mountain without climbing it.

DEAR ABBY: Roy and I have been married for two years and we have custody of his three children. (His ex-wife isn't fit to raise dogs, much less children.)

My problem is that we are living in the same house Roy and his ex-wife and children lived in. When we were married Roy promised we'd stay here until he sold this house, then we'd get another one. Well, from the looks of things, we are going to be here for ever. I just hate it!

It's not only the house, but I am living with all her old beat-up furniture and appliances and I can't stand it any longer.

Roy says we can't just walk out. We have to get our money out of this house before we buy another one, but so far he hasn't even put this house on the market. So what should I do?

HOUSE SICK.

DEAR SICK: Remind Roy of his promise and ask him to prove his sincerity by letting you put the house on the market. If that doesn't jar him, face it, Roy is a naughty boy!

Elastic Waistband Best With Knits

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I made a pair of slacks for myself and instead of putting the waistband and zipper in as the pattern instructed, I tried the elastic band at the waist. Now I can't get the slacks to fit up over my hips. Is there a special pattern for this or do I have to use stretch material?

Mrs. D. M.

Dear Mrs. D. M.:

This kind of waistband was originally used for knits and still doesn't work too successfully for other fabrics. If you gather any other fabrics enough to avoid the conventional opening of a zipper, it would be too bulky around the waistline. I have noticed some of the new slacks have used the zipper closing and then made a casing at the top edge of the slacks and run a twisted cotton cording through this casing. It is pulled up to fit the waistline and tied like pyjama ties.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"But you must remember that 'never-ending work' is necessary for housewives—it keeps them from running in packs through department stores and destroying things."

Liberal Forum New Executive

Mrs. J. T. Jones was elected president of the Victoria Liberal Women's Forum at a recent meeting.

Others elected were: Mrs. L. Johns, first vice-president; Mrs. D. Altroy, second vice-president; Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie, secretary and Council of Women representative; Mrs. A. Ketchell, treasurer and citizenship representative, and Mrs. F. W. Decker, corresponding secretary.

A speech by Liberal MLA Cox was read by the secretary at the meeting, which was held in the home of Mrs. J. Slater.

Full-Time Mayor Urged by Quaife

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN—The city of Duncan should have a full-time mayor because it's getting to be far too much work for a part-timer, Mayor Jim Quaife said today.

"To do a proper job you have to be able to do it full-time," he said in an interview. "Although I spend about 60 per cent of my time on city business I still put in 35 to 40 hours a week earning a living."

Mayor Quaife, a general insurance agent, said his salary is $3,600 a year (compared with $4,800 paid to Mayor D. C. Morton of North Cowichan), $1,000 of which is "supposed to be for expenses." He is also paid for transportation expenses.

The cost of being mayor far outweighs the material advantages, he said.

"The City of Duncan could afford a salary of $9,000 based on 1-10th of its $9,000,000 annuall assessment."

The mayor said by going full-time he could put his full effort into the job rather than having to touch the surface as he is forced to do.

"I don't just want to be mayor because of the title. Old men can afford such luxuries. We have so many problems and projects in Duncan that I would like to sink my teeth into — urban redevelopment, industrial site development, expansion of our water resources to outlying districts.

"It is impossible part-time to keep on top of all the bylaws, correspondence and civic affairs. I have to keep in contact with the job. If I don't — I feel I'm not fulfilling the job I was elected to do."

Mayor Quaife, in his first two-year term, said he was not hopeful that the city would immediately consider creating a full-time mayorality position but "I can see the day coming and it's not that far away."

DEFENSIVE COURSE FOR DRIVERS

DUNCAN—School bus drivers and maintenance staff will be invited to attend an adult education course in defensive driving at Cowichan senior secondary school.

Trustees decided Monday up to 25 will be asked. Those successfully completing the eight-hour course will be reimbursed their $7.50 fee.

Pathologist To Examine School Rot

DUNCAN — A federal wood pathologist will examine dry rot in floor beams at Cowichan senior secondary school.

The school board took the action after hearing a committee report recommending corrective measures be taken on the worst affected areas in July and August.

There is no charge for the pathologist's work.

Maintenance superintendent George Routley said the worst infestation was on the north side facing James Street where a row of shrubs next to the school wall had almost completely shut out air circulation.

There are three spots of about four feet under the art room and under what will be the new foods laboratory, he said.

Whitlam Re-elected

NANAIMO — Jack Whitlam of Nanaimo has been elected to his second term as chairman of Malaspina College Council Friday.

Re-named vice chairman was Nanaimo's Dr. Roy MacMillan.

Dr. Carleton Opgaard, who was appointed college president two weeks ago, told the annual dinner meeting that although time is limited, the college will open its doors in temporary quarters in September.

"We intend to make education relevant to the area the college will serve," he said. "We'll keep in close contact with the community, and we will profit from any mistakes we may make."

Dr. Opgaard said the college will provide the finest programs possible, "hopefully, better than the universities offer."

"Our basic function is instruction, including technical programs which will fit the needs of the college district," he added.

This will include an adult program, he said, along with a general educational scheme for young people who need to know more than we did.

Give Youth to Your Complexion

Good results in complexion beauty are being achieved with a tropical oil that has unique properties to bring youth and peaches-and-cream loveliness to the skin. It ends wrinkle dryness and gives the complexion dewy loveliness. Many druggists here have been able to obtain this oil of Olay. Use it daily as you would a powder base and note how the complexion soon takes on a milky look.

Agitation Urged for Fire Services

LAKE COWICHAN — Homeowners in unorganized areas should agitate for fire protection, Fire Chief Bob Weismiller has told village council.

He said his department can't provide protection outside village boundaries.

Outsiders, he said, often are angered when told Lake Cowichan firemen can't go to a blaze in the surrounding area. It's a problem faced by unorganized areas everywhere.

The chief said outside homeowners should start working for fire protection. If enough interest develops, they should contact the secretary of the Cowichan Valley Regional District.

THEY DON'T KNOW

"I feel a lot of people living outside the village do not realize they are not covered with fire protection," the chief said. "If we were to cover a larger area we would need more men and more equipment."

He said there are no hydrants and no water hookups outside the municipality and the fire truck carried only 500 gallons of water.

"It could never put out a fire once it got a good start," he said.

Ald. A. B. Greenwell said, "This is the reason we formed a municipality in the first place — to get these benefits. They are paid for by the village property owners."

The only time the fire department should go outside its boundaries, he said, "is where a fire might spread from the outside and endanger the village."

The council agreed to make a public announcement to "clarify" the situation regarding fire protection for residents outside the village.

Dying Mining Village Saved By Timber Deal—Williston

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Tuesday a development agreement for the rich Artlish timber area on Vancouver Island will save the dying village of Zeballos.

Zeballos, 185 miles northwest of Victoria, had a pre-war population of more than 2,000. It now totals about 120 and the Zeballos iron mines are scheduled to close this spring.

Williston said Tahsis Co. Ltd. and Canadian Forest Products Ltd. will build a road that will link the community with Port Hardy.

START SOON

Williston said that under the agreement reached with the government Tahsis Co. will be allowed to harvest up to 30,000,000 board feet of timber a year and CFP 18,000,000 a year.

Jack Christenson, Tahsis president, said a road crew is in the area and construction will start soon. The road would be completed in the summer of 1970.

Reds Knot West Trade Ties

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Communist countries of Eastern Europe, whose trade with the Common Market has tripled in the last 10 years, have moved discreetly to strengthen ties with the Western economic community.

The development is all the more remarkable because these countries—the Soviet Union, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and East Germany—do not officially recognize the existence of the six-country body. Yugoslavia does, and has accredited an ambassador to the community.

The most striking recent move came when a senior Soviet diplomat paid two visits to the Common Market executive commission headquarters in Brussels under circumstances of almost unprecedented secrecy.

Yuri Buzykin, first secretary at the Soviet embassy here, complained about "discriminatory" community trade policy toward Eastern Europe during the talks.

It was the first time a Soviet diplomat had visited the commission headquarters. In the past contacts between commission officials and Soviet diplomats have been confined to social occasions.

But Buzykin made clear from the outset that the Soviet government wished to institute direct contacts of a more formal nature.

At the same time Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary have concluded "technical" agreements with the community to protect their exports of port, poultry and eggs.

Romania and the community are currently holding "talks"—not negotiations which would imply a degree of political recognition—with a view to concluding a similar agreement.

Some observers believe this adds up to an impending change in these countries' official attitude to the community as trade with the Common Market assumes greater importance.

East Germany poses special difficulties because it is not recognized by individual member states. Trade between East and West Germany is still officially described as "interzonal" in community parlance at Bonn's insistence.

What's Really Insulting?—Commons Style

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has used the word "hell" three times so far in this session of Parliament.

John Lundrigan, Conservative MP for Gander-Twillingate, has referred to Ray Perrault, Liberal member for Burnaby-Seymour, as the "honorable member for BS."

Russell MacEwan, Conservative MP for Central Nova, has addressed himself to Mr. Trudeau with "Heil Hitler."

But such Commons language is not considered unparliamentary or even harsh.

The severest epithet among politicians is "liar" and any MP who uses it in the Commons against another MP has to withdraw it.

GETS AROUND RULE

But there are ways around even this rule.

Without batting an eye, the late Jimmy Gardiner, Liberal agriculture minister, once heard himself described as "having no more regard for the truth than a tomcat has for a marriage licence."

A former Liberal labor minister, Milton Gregg, was once called a coward in the Commons. As a winner of the Victoria Cross, he did not feel he had to ask to have the remark withdrawn.

The book of official parliamentary rules and forms in Canada lists expressions considered unparliamentary, but some of these often get by in the Commons these days.

Among the banned expressions listed under abusive and insulting language are:

Villains, impertinence, rude remarks, gross calumny, impudence, ruffianism, hypocrite, Pharisee, murderer, hooligan, blackguard, traitor, malignant slander, scurrilous, dishonest, vicious, vulgar, criminal, corrupt, insulting dog, jackass, swine, cheat, and stool-pigeon.

Diplomats Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 550 Canadian diplomats at more than 80 missions abroad and at external affairs headquarters here are voting on a government offer for a first union contact, it was learned Tuesday.

Viet Cong Flee Hospital With Tuberculosis Patients

SAIGON (Reuters) — Viet Cong guerrillas who stormed through a Canadian government-supported hospital left quietly when patients explained they had tuberculosis, it was learned today.

Seven guerrillas burst into the building in Quang Ngai City brandishing explosives in canvas bags after firing three bazooka rounds at the northern coastal hospital three days ago.

On the second floor, they ordred Vietnamese patients to get out of the building but they hastily withdrew when the bed-ridden patients said they were too sick with tuberculosis to move.

The incident was revealed today by an official of Canada's International Control Commission team who quoted eyewitness accounts of the pre-dawn raid during stepped-up guerrilla attacks last weekend.

Blasts from guerrilla bazookas killed an American aid official who lived next to the unit and knocked down a sign identifying the building as a hospital.

None of the 50 patients or staff was injured during the shelling or the nerve-tingling confrontation with the guerrillas, the official said.

"Their attitude tends to indicate the raid was either a mistake or they were looking for a military target," said the official, who is attached to the Canadian team policing the 1954 Geneva agreement ending the Vietnamese war with France.

He said the hospital, employing a Canadian doctor and technician with a staff of 36 Vietnamese, was still in operation despite damage to laboratory equipment.

The hospital was set up three years ago as part of Canada's effort to bring medical relief to the Quang Ngai area.

Trudeau Barbs Sparked By Setbacks?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau used to play his political hand coolly by simply ignoring the opposition.

But of late he has been jabbing away at the Conservatives and NDP members both in the Commons and outside it, most recently in a recent speech in his Montreal riding.

Why the change?

Political sources offer a number of reasons, including the following:

● The trimming the Liberals took in the Feb. 10 federal byelection in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands. NDP Leader T. C. Douglas won handily.

● The three-out-of-four victory by Manitoba Conservatives in provincial byelections. This was apparently even more upsetting to Liberals here than the Nanaimo result.

● The blocks thrown by the Quebec and Western Canada premiers in the path of the government's official languages bill.

● Though expected, the slowness of constitutional reform.

● Policy reviews which have not yet resulted in any decisions.

● The general realization, which comes to all prime ministers, that putting legislation through Parliament is hard, painful and tough slugging, no matter how good and welcome the legislation.

TIME TO CANVASS

Mr. Trudeau apparently listened to local Liberals when he delayed the byelection date in Nanaimo. The four-month delay gave Mr. Douglas time to canvass the riding house by house.

By contrast, Mr. Trudeau has quickly called a byelection for April 8 in Comox-Alberni less than two weeks after a court ruling making the seat vacant.

If he has been rough recently on the opposition, Mr. Trudeau has taken it easy with at least one political foe: Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec.

It is understood that the prime minister regards Mr. Bertrand as a tough but reasonable man who might do more in the long run to help hold Canada together than some other candidates for the leadership of the Union Nationale party.

Consequently, Mr. Trudeau is unlikely to do anything overt which would help to depose Mr. Bertrand as party leader and premier on the grounds that a successor might be a lot harder to handle.

ALBERTA has no plans at present to introduce rent controls, Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart told the legislature in Edmonton in reply to suggestions from opposition members.

Iran May Lift Opium Ban to Stop Money Drain

By RALPH JOSEPH
CP Correspondent

TEHRAN (CP) — A German tourist was jailed here recently for six months on a charge of smuggling 40 kilograms of opium into Iran from Turkey.

He told a friend who visited him in jail that he was being well looked after and getting wholesome meals. He added that the police were looking after his car for him until the term expired.

What the police did not know, he said, was they were also looking after another 48 kilograms of opium for him—hidden in the car.

This story going the rounds here illustrates the problem the police face in narcotics smuggling. They admit that only about five to 10 per cent of opium and other narcotics smuggled into Iran are detected.

Last summer Police Chief Gen. Mohsen Mobasser told Premier Amir Abbas Hoveida that smuggling was on the increase in Iran. He said that as long as neighboring countries — particularly Turkey and Afghanistan—continued to permit poppy cultivation, it would be difficult to prevent opium and heroin being brought into Iran illegally.

LIFT CULTIVATION BAN

Last autumn Hoveida announced that unless the United Nations took action to stop Turkey and Afghanistan from producing opium Iran would reintroduce poppy cultivation, banned here since 1955.

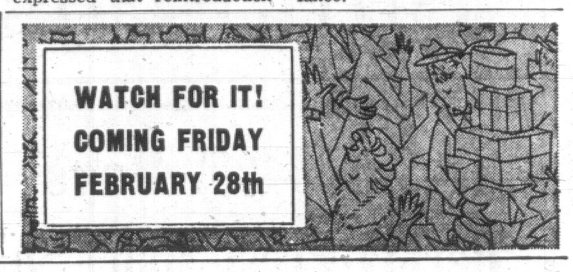
As though to show that Iran meant business, the government last December announced its decision to go ahead and allow poppy cultivation. A bill now going through parliament permits limited production of opium "for medical purposes" and experts have already been dispatched to the markets of Europe to buy good-quality poppy seeds.

Iran contends that ever since the ban on poppy cultivation went into effect, the country has been losing $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 a year, formerly earned from the export of opium. Smuggling of opium into Iran since the ban also has led to an estimated drain of $10,000,000 in gold and foreign exchange.

Reintroduction of poppy cultivation here, officials believe, will also relax pressure on the jails. Police say the jails are choked with people convicted of either smuggling or peddling dope, and that they have dossiers on some 18,000 suspects, including addicts.

Growing poppies may put a crimp in the smuggling but will do little to solve the addiction problem in Iran. Officials estimate there are some 250,000 to 300,000 opium addicts and 10,000 heroin addicts in the country, consuming a total of about 500 kilograms of opium a day. Fears have been expressed that reintroduction of poppy cultivation would intensify the addiction problem, especially among farmers.

To deal with the problem, the government plans to impose strict punishment for addiction and for peddling the stuff. Farmers especially will be watched and any of them found guilty of addiction will have his land taken away from him. Cultivation will be under government surveillance.



Columnist Cleared Of Libel Charge

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Columnist Drew Pearson has won an appeals court ruling effectively clearing him of charges of libel and invasion of privacy brought by Senator Thomas J. Dodd (Dem.—Conn.) which arose from six articles the columnist wrote in 1967.

The court held that Pearson did not invade the privacy of the senator or wrongfully convert documents obtained from his Senate office files. The senator had previously dropped his $5,000,000 libel suit.

In the 1967 articles, Pearson and associate Jack Anderson alleged that Dodd was influenced by foreign lobbyists and engaged in activities which made him unfit to be a member of the Senate.

The charges led to a move by the Senate to tighten its code of ethics, but a motion to ban Dodd from the Senate was not introduced.

All MLAs Urge Equalized Assessment in B.C.

Government and opposition MLAs joined Tuesday in urging the provincial government undertake a study aimed at equalizing assessments throughout the province.

Allan Cox (L—Oak Bay) said some areas of the province are becoming suspicious they are bearing more than a fair share of such costs as education that come from local taxes.

"It is not a good feeling," he said.

Premier Bennett said the matter will come under study and indicated a report on an equalization scheme might be ready by the next session of the legislature, a little less than a year from now.

Hunter Vogel, Social Credit whip, suggested part of the problem resulted from the present fragmentation of municipalities. A method of achieving a greater degree of equilization would be through increasing the size of these units — setting them up on a regional basis.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) criticized his government for its present policy of keeping from the public information on assessment structures in various parts of the province.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) entered a plea for the market farmer that finds himself on the edge of a growing city with an assessment boosted out of proportion to the value of his farm operation.

He suggested special consideration be given these people to encourage some forms of farming to continue near the market place.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged that the current land market in the province is creating "a class difference" based on income.

Skyrocketing land prices had brought a situation where "only people with very substantial incomes can afford to live on choice lots."

"I think people with low incomes have just as much right to live in a nice place with a good view as people with high incomes.

"It jeopardizes the fabric of our society when this situation is allowed to develop."

Earlier, Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) called for a shift in the taxation burden from developed land to undeveloped land — in effect, a form of capital gains tax on land speculation.

He said speculation is driving up land costs on the fringes of Victoria and Vancouver and in the Gulf Islands.

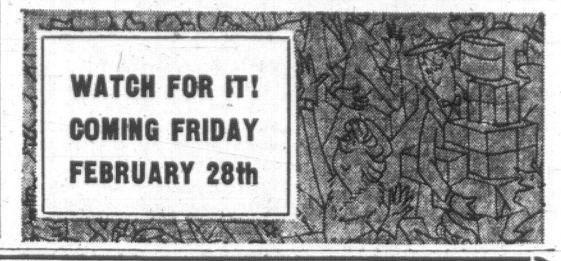
The public as a whole would benefit from a shift in taxation that would see land as a form of capital. Williams added that some property owners would like to see just the land, not the buildings on it taxed.

Bye eliminating the tax on houses completely, the government would start getting part of the "fantastic capital gains" now being made in land speculation.

Bennett replied that property tax now is based on 50 per cent of the value of the land and 37 per cent of the value of improvements and said no consideration is being given to changing the balance.

STUDENTS IN POLITICS

Three University of Victoria delegates will argue for greater student participation in politics when they take part in a Progressive Conservative conference in Ottawa, March 8-10. Doug Smith, David Gillett and Peter Sleight were elected to attend the conference by the Uvic PC federation.



30 PER CENT MARK-UP ON GASOLINE

By JOHN SLINGER

B.C. motorists are being "grossly overcharged" for gasoline, Alex Macdonald, deputy New Democratic Party leader told the house Tuesday.

He calculated the profit markup on gasoline prices at 30 per cent and described this as "grossly excessive."

And he said the province's service station operators are being "grossly exploited" by the oil companies.

The statements came during debate on the premier's office spending estimates. Macdonald was criticizing the government for failing to act on the 1963 Morrow royal commission report on gasoline prices in B.C.

VOLUNTARY MOVE

The report called for voluntary lowering of gasoline prices by the companies and said the companies should abandon marketing policies which gave them control over retail outlets.

Despite the report and legislature committees during the last two years which discussed possible measures to control prices in the province, the government had "struck out" and done nothing.

"Is this subject buried completely so far as the reign of Social Credit is concerned?" Macdonald asked.

Premier Bennett replied that the "question is still under study."

The New Democrat gave particular criticism to Judge C. W. Morrow who headed the B.C. inquiry and now is chairman of the commission to investigate the province's liquor legislation.

He said Judge Morrow had stated an inability to determine the real cost of a gallon of gasoline when a recently-concluded Alberta inquiry had managed to do so.

COST BREAKDOWN

The Alberta report says it costs 18 cents to get a gallon of gas in the pumps and pay the service station operator—this before taxes are applied.

The breakdowns, in the words of the report:

- For the millions spent on exploration and production of crude: 3 cents.
- For the millions spent on refineries and processing plants: 3 cents.
- For oil company marketing departments which build excessive numbers of unnecessary service stations, subsidize lessees to occupy them and conduct expensive advertising programs, each trying to outdo each other in giveaways and prizes: 5 cents.
- For retailing by service station operators who, because of the excessive numbers of stations, don't have the opportunity to sell enough gallons to economically utilize the facilities and keep capital and labor costs at minimum levels and who accordingly ekes out a precarious, marginal living: 7 cents.

32 CENTS

Macdonald said sales taxes as well as provincial and federal taxes then bring the total to 32 cents.

But a gallon of gas now was selling for 42 cents a gallon (Vancouver) — 30 per cent more than its real cost.

Macdonald called the Morrow report "inadequate" and the government's failure to act "absolutely disgraceful."

He called for a sort of bill of rights for service station operators that would serve to protect them from the oil companies.

MINIMUM TERM

The Alberta report suggested operators receive minimum leases of five years "so they are not completely under the thumb of the oil companies—that's what they are now," said the member.

He further recommended operators have the right to join their own association, the right to determine their own hours of work, the right to advertise as they wish and the right to buy and sell any brand of gas, tires or accessories they choose.

They should be treated as if they were independent.

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) stood to demand the government either back dealers in a venture to start a co-operative oil company or that a crown corporation be established to sell gasoline at cost.

He described the oil companies as "one of the great vested interests that has this government in its pocket."

Actress Can't Bare to Appear Nude in Film

By LEWIS FUNKE

NEW YORK — Not so long ago, Monica Evans, a pretty 27-year-old English actress, insisted on being released from her $800-a-week contract, including featured billing, because Jerome Weidman's revised script for his new comedy, The Mother Lover, would require her to appear nude in the final moments of the second act.

"It wasn't an easy decision," Miss Evans said the other day. "I hadn't worked for a while and that $800 looked like a million.

Miss Evans' attitude reflects the dilemma confronting many young actresses today as the trend toward onstage nudity grows, whether it be in the name of art, or, as some suspect, for exploitation at the box office.

Few trained actresses, aware of the demands made by the theatre, rebel against appearing in panties and bra (Miss Evans was willing). Nor is there a dearth of those who are adverse to partial nudity as long as the audience sees them only from the back.

For example, Valerie French, who took over the role in The Mother Lover, which lasted only one performance, said during rehearsals, "I don't have any objection to appearing nude in this comedy. But I will not face forward. The scene is a gag and if it draws a laugh, all right. But facing front would be obvious, obscene and out of place."

Last summer, when Michael Ellis, the producer, began casting for Terrence McNally's Sweet Eros for an off-Broadway presentation, he and Larry Arrick, the director, spent three months searching for an actress willing to sit unclad for almost 45 minutes downstage, as called for by the script.

The reasons for the gradations in modesty vary with the individual. They include religion, family background and vanity. "If I had a beautiful body, with all the proper curves," one actress admitted, "mabe I wouldn't mind undressing." Or, it may be outright inhibition.

None of these explanations appears to have any relevancy for Miss Evans. She says, "When I received the revised script I read the nude scene over and over again, I could see no reason for it. I'm not a prude . . . I love wearing the briefest sort of bikini. But I kept thinking about how I'd feel standing up there on the stage with all my clothes off.

"I kept thinking, that wouldn't be me the actress — that would be me . . . besides, nudity invades the rights of a human being. My body belongs to me — that's my private life, my personal territory."

For Evelyn Ave, recently in "Beelch" the experience was a trauma. Originally, she was hired as a fully clothed missionary woman in Rochelle Owen's play. But she also was asked to be the understudy for the title role, in which the actress has two nude scenes.

"I never expected to have to play the part," Miss Ave said ruefully. "And then Jean David, who had the role, began having trouble with her voice and had to leave the show for good, I almost had a nervous breakdown. I even prayed that I would get sick . . . I'd never do it again. I have talent, I don't have to be nude to prove it."

Unlike Miss Ave, however, there are actresses who have virtually made a career of nudity. Sally Kirkland, weaned in the avant-garde off-off-Broadway theatre, had no compunction about taking the role in "Sweet Eros." Miss Kirkland says: "I have no hangup about nudity. I think the human body is beautiful and as long as I feel that what I'm doing is artistic, I have no objection to appearing nude."

DECISION SOON ON FAIR

MONTREAL (CP) — No decision has been reached yet on whether Man and His World may open this year, Jean-Luc Pepin, federal minister of trade, industry and commerce, said Tuesday night.

Mr. Pepin said that in day-long meetings with city and provincial officials the federal government had presented a solution to keeping the fair open.

But the decision now is up to the Quebec government and the city of Montreal, he told reporters at a news conference.

Jean-Paul Beaudry, Quebec's minister of industry and commerce, was to present the federal proposition before the provincial government today.

The fair's closure was announced Jan. 29 by Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the city's executive committee who said that Montreal's austerity program prevented a re-opening.

Plays for Youth Lampoon Society

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Last in a series of youth theatre productions which has included Miller's The Crucible and Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra, Bastion Theatre is presenting three one-act plays at McPherson Playhouse.

While all three are comedies they vastly differ in style but are linked because in each case the comedy revolves around a nub of social criticism.

Monday and Tuesday responsive if sparse audiences of secondary school students have attended. Tonight and Thursday are student nights. Friday and Saturday performances will be for the general public.

Moliere's Love's the Best Doctor (more usual and faithful translation is The Doctor in Spite of Himself), lampoons the pomposity and double-talk of the medical profession as practised in the 17th century.

ROMANTIC PLOT

Around it revolves the simple and familiar romantic plot involving Sganarelle who opposes marriage for his lovely daughter and the plotting of servants to aid young love.

Some indication of Moliere's Commedia del' arte style is provided for young audiences by director Peter Mannering.

Limitations arise because only three members of the cast have a genuine feeling for the style. Owen Foran as Sganarelle, Sylvia Hosie as Lisette the maid, and John Heath as one of the trio of doctors are head and shoulders above the rest.

However, their animated and delightfully posturing performances alone are worth one's time and attention.

The over-all effect is pleasing because of imagination in costume and a related color theme.

LESS INTERESTING

Less interesting than either of the other two plays is Ionesco's Improvisation, a rather attenuated discourse on a simple truth — that all the theorizing and postulating of the learned as to what theatre is comes to naught when the public hands down its decision.

The cirtics, well done by Owen Foran, John Heath and Roy Silver, face and almost defeat playwright Ionesco, rather uncomfortably played by Stanley Bowles, but are themselves vanquished by the maid, Marie, representing the public.

Joan Fordham plays Marie and from her off-stage voice to her all-to-brief appearance, she gives an excellent performance.

Canadian playwright Anna Lippman has provided a script in The Babies, much reminiscent of Ionesco or Albee.

He and She, competently acted by Ian McIntyre and Barbara Waldner, spend the entire act in blue and pink high chairs, but succeed in avoiding the boredom of inaction.

The play, quite pointedly deals with the constriction of most middle class lives, the vaguely disturbing sense of something missed, the anxious self-assurance that "it has been a good life."

Still, it has some really funny lines and is thoroughly entertaining.

FOREST FIRES IN CANADA

On the average 6,000 fires burn in Canada's forests each year. This total has been kept at about the same level since 1930 in spite of a doubling of population plus greatly increased forest travel due to more leisure time, more automobiles and more forest access roads.

KENYA REVOKES BAN ON GANGSTER MOVIE

NAIROBI (Reuters)—The Kenya movie censorship board has revoked a four-month ban on the American gangster film Bonnie and Clyde.

An appeal by the movie distributors led to the lifting of the ban, and the movie will be shown in Nairobi in March.

ESHKOL
. . . dead at 73

ALLON

Eshkol Played Big Role in Birth Of Modern Israel

JERUSALEM (C P-A P) — Ukrainian-born Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel, one of the architects of the modern Jewish state, died of a heart attack today. He was 73.

Eshkol had been in failing health in recent months from bronchitis, pneumonia and a heart attack Feb. 3, after a severe crisis shook his cabinet.

In Damascus, the Al Fatah guerrilla organization claimed Eshkol was fatally injured when Al Fatah commandos made a rocket attack on his country home Monday night.

"This is the most ridiculous and childish announcement that the primitive Fatah propaganda's wild imagination has ever fabricated," an Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said.

The Israeli government had reported the attack on the Degania Bet Kibbutz earlier but said the premier was not there at the time.

Eshkol's death raised the prospect of a struggle for the succession between supporters and opponents of Defence Minister Moshe Dayan. It came at a crucial time for Israel, with the Jewish state under mounting attack from guerrillas based in the neighboring Arab nations and pursuing a policy of retaliation opposed by the United States and other nominal allies.

Eshkol became premier in June, 1963, after the resignation of David Ben-Gurion, led their Mapai Labor party to victory in the 1965 elections and was premier during Israel's lightning victory over the Arabs in the war of June, 1967.

BORN NEAR KIEV

Eshkol, meaning "cluster of grapes", was a hebraicised version of Shkolnik, the name the future prime minister bore when he was born in Oratova, a Ukrainian village near Kiev, Oct. 10, 1895.

The son of a Talmudic scholar who came from a long line of rabbis, he was educated in Vilna, Lithuania, where he met a Zionist leader who inspired him to emigrate to Palestine, still under Turkish rule, in 1914.

During the First World War, he volunteered for the Jewish Legion which aided the British forces against Turkey. It was then that he first met Ben-Gurion.

After the war he helped found Degania Beth, a kibbutz (communal village) in the Jordan Valley, which he came to regard as his home. He attended Zionist congresses, took part in the creation of Histadruth, the General Federation of Labor, for which he went on missions abroad, and became a member of the Central Committee of Mapai, the moderate labor party which was to become the majority party in Israel.

When Israel became a nation in 1948, Eshkol became a director-general of the defence ministry, then defence minister in 1951-52, and finance minister in 1952-63.

When he became premier, he also automatically became defence minister. But in May, 1967, with the threat of war growing, public opinion forced him to turn over the defence ministry to Dayan, the hero of the 1956 Suez war.

EXPERT AT COMPROMISE

Known as a politician's politician, he excelled at working out compromises between rival factions. Some called it weakness; others said it was brilliant politics.

One popular joke told of a waiter asking Eshkol whether he preferred tea or coffee. "Half and half," the premier replied.

Postal Minister Yisrael Yishayahu once commented: "When I look at the 21 ministers lining the cabinet table, each of them a preying wolf, I look to Eshkol and I see this man inspired enough, fine enough, to instill peace among them."

His flair for compromise was demonstrated in 1961 when, at the request of President Isaac Ben-Zvi, he conducted negotiations for the formation of a four-party coalition government headed by Ben-Gurion.

In 1962, he carried out far-reaching economic and financial reforms, including currency devaluation and an economic stabilization program.

Caretaker Premier Soft-Spoken Hero

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Brig.-Gen. Yigal Allon, appointed caretaker premier of Israel following the death of Premier Levi Eshkol today, is a 51-year-old Sabra—native-born Israeli—who 20 years ago became one of the country's youngest war heroes.

The grandson of an early immigrant, the urbane and highly-articulate Allon was raised on a kibbutz in Galilee. In 1945, at the age of 27 he became commander of the Palmach, a commando unit which operated against the Arabs.

He went on to become one of the most brilliant field commanders in the war with the Arabs which followed creation of the Jewish state in May, 1948.

In 1950, he ceased active military service and turned to banana farming and politics.

He was appointed labor minister in January, 1961, and is credited with giving Israel an extremely liberal social welfare program.

NAMED DEPUTY PREMIER

In July, 1968, Eshkol appointed him deputy premier. The move was seen by some observers as an attempt to groom him for succession as premier in preference to Eshkol's political rival, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

Allon is the author of a set of proposals for a settlement with Jordan, known as the "Allon plan," for which he has unsuccessfully sought cabinet approval.

The plan envisages the creation of a "security strip" along the River Jordan and either an autonomous Arab Palestine on the river's west bank or the return of those areas to Jordan under a peace treaty.

A patient, soft-spoken man who likes to make decisions only after careful thought and analysis, Allon is popular with young people in Israel.

In 1959, he left Israel and spent two years studying Afro-Asian affairs and the United Nations at Oxford University in England.

He has written one political book, Curtain of Sand, in which he advocates a loose confederation of sovereign states in the Middle East.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The many helpful acts, understanding words, beautiful cards and flowers after the tragic loss of our wonderful husband and father are all blended into a heart-warming memory that will always be cherished. Special thanks to Drs. Roach, Kenning and Baichwal and the nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital. —Frances Lanthier and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MERRYFIELD — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank, who passed February 26th, 1965.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often glow,
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died four years ago.
— Sadly missed by his loving wife, Elsie and family.

The Feminine Mystique is for Modern Suffragettes

This ad is addressed to Mothers and others who could do with a personal lift and a "personal" income. By acting on a rather more humdrum approach via this column during "The Freeze," I have since found both (hence this splurge on my own ad!) If you are (presumably) female, over 21 and under 99, pick up that phone, dial 382-6452—and you will find that I am just as real as you are.

'Control Factory Farming of Animals'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will press federal and provincial governments for more rigid controls to protect domestic animals.

A. E. (Bob) Cunningham, president of the Victoria branch, said Tuesday the society has three objectives:

- Controls for "factory farming" of domestic animals.
- Regulations to cover the care of pregnant mares maintained for the cosmetic industry.
- Legislation to regulate the use of animals in medical research.

Cunningham said the society accepted the fact that factory farming is here to stay, but opposed some of its methods of raising animals for food.

Keeping calves in semi-darkness until butchered is an example. This is done to tenderize the flesh.

The society also opposes keeping poultry in cages. A common practice is to place hens in cages where they are kept for the duration of their egg-producing days.

The SPCA favored instead the deep litter method for keeping poultry as it provided more room and freedom of movement for the hens.

Cunningham said animal welfare organizations across Canada are concerned about the practice of keeping pregnant mares for the cosmetic industry.

The mares are confined to barns to facilitate collection of urine, he explained. The urine is used to produce estrogen, a hormone compound used in the manufacture of cosmetics.

The practice is confined to Ontario and Quebec and the society doesn't want it to spread to B.C., he said.

D. H. Beeching, secretary manager, said apart from pregnant mares being kept in perpetual confinement, their foals are taken away from them shortly after birth.

As the foals were not wanted, they were force-fed and trucked away for sale to various parts of the country, he said. They sell for about $5.

"Investigations have shown that many of the foals are confined to trucks for days, many suffering from injuries received in transportation."

Two states in the U.S. have banned the importation of foals from Canada due to the cruelty involved, he said.

"Another inhuman aspect of this trafficking" he said, "is the force-feeding. Foals are not like many other animals and don't take readily to it."

Beeching said the society is not opposing the use of animals for medical research providing they are raised and bred for such purpose and only used when absolutely necessary.

"That is we are opposed to their use of stray or unwanted dogs for medical research. We believe only animals raised for that purpose should be used."

Animals raised in captivity for medical purposes react quite differently from those raised as pets, he said.

"The latter suffers from stress when in captivity as he is accustomed to a different way of life. The other does not know any better."

He said the society also wants some independent authority to or decide when dogs or cats should be used for medical purposes.

"In many cases there is no necessity to use animals for research," he said. "Alternative methods could be used. In England they often use small pieces of tissues instead of animals for medical purposes. Lower forms of aninal life are also selected instead of dogs and cats."

PATHET LAO HOLDING 100 U.S. PILOTS

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — About 100 United States pilots have been shot down and captured in bombing raids on Laos and the Communist-led Pathet Lao is holding them in secret jungle prison camps, informed sources reported Tuesday.

Despite intensive efforts by the U.S. embassy, and the International Red Cross and by some families of the downed flyers, no word on the fate of the missing men has been received.

Gulf Islands Out in Cold On School Aid

Seven of the province's 89 school districts — including No. 64 covering the Gulf Islands — did not receive any provincial grants to help with operating expenses during 1968.

This was reported in the legislature's journals in an answer by Education Minister Donald Brothers to a question by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

A total of 43 of the school districts received less than 50 per cent of their operating costs from government grants, some down as low as .09 per cent for No. 72 (Campbell River) and .53 per cent for No. 47 (Powell River).

The seven districts which received no operating grants whatsoever were:

No. 29 Lillooet, No. 49 Ocean Falls, No. 52 Prince Rupert, No. 64 Gulf Islands, No. 80 Kitimat, No. 81 Fort Nelson, and No. 84 V.I. West.

All but the Gulf Islands have rich industrial or mineral property ratepayers who bear most of the annual school budget burden.

In the Gulf Islands, residential properties have hit such high assessments that school budgets are met under the minimum mill rate set by the cabinet each year.

79.3 PER CENT PAID

Highest proportion of help from government coffers goes to School District No. 83 Portage Mountain — where the W. A. C. Bennett Dam is located. The government paid 79.3 per cent of that school district's operating costs last year.

However, Belmont Park — the navy's residential quarters at Colwood — receives the greatest provincial support as a detached unit without a school board. Last year 99.96 of the operating costs for the Belmont School were paid by the province.

The local school boards all come in the less-than-50-per-cent bracket.

The government paid 46.74 per cent of Greater Victoria's school bills, 49.1 per cent of Sooke school district's costs and 47.62 of Saanich school district operations.

WIDOW WINS BATTLE TO SAVE HER TREES

ALDERGROVE, B.C. (CP)—A widow confined to a wheelchair, who threatened to use a gun to save her trees from a new power line, has won her battle with B.C. Hydro.

A spokesman for Hydro said Tuesday that engineers have proposed a system of stringing wires that will keep them away from the trees.

B.C. Hydro had said earlier the trees would have to go before a new power line could be erected fronting her 80-acre property near this Fraser Valley centre.

Mrs. Eileen Ingersoll, who has been confined to a wheelchair since a traffic accident two years ago, said Saturday she would defend the trees with a pistol if necessary.

Have Faith in Courts, Is Vice-Regal Advice

By STAN MULCAHY

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener urged West Indies students Tuesday to have faith in Canadian justice.

In a reference to the recent rampage at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, he said he could not discuss it in detail because the issue is before the courts. Eighty-nine students, including about 40 from the West Indies, face charges as a result of the destruction of the university's computer centre.

On his way into the lecture hall to address the faculty and students of the Barbados branch of the University of the West Indies, Mr. Michener was met by about 250 students carrying placards in protest against racial discrimination.

He won their cheers when he took a sign reading "Against Racism" and carried it briefly. "This is one I can agree with," the Governor-General said.

Mr. and Mrs. Michener, on a state visit to the Commonwealth Caribbean countries, travel to Trinidad and Tobago today. It will be their last stop.

At the university here, Undergraduate President Darlington Smith said in his formal welcome to the Micheners that Barbados students regret the damage at Sir George, "even though it was incited by other actions."

He said their main concern is that their brothers get a fair trial "in the land and city where Man and His World was the theme of Expo 67."

Mr. Mitchener said: "I think I can assure you that you should have the confidence in our courts that I have in yours, because I know we both have grown in the same mould and we believe that justice should be meted out to all without favor or affection or regard to condition in life."

The demonstrators said they were protesting against racial discrimination in the events leading up to the Sir George violence.

Socred Asks Government About Shares

A Social Credit backbencher today filed formal questions to the government on the Commonwealth Trust situation.

Evan Wolfe (SC—Vancouver Centre) was the first of his party to add his own questions to the bombardment of queries hurled at the government by opposition MLAs this week.

Wolfe placed his questions in the house journals, asking how many fully paid common shares with voting rights have been issued by the trust company.

He also enquired how many of such shares are registered in the names of A. G. Duncan Crux, C. J. Polvliet, Grarantie Establishment, Commonwealth Savings Plan limited, Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Limited, Evergreen Estates Limited compared with those held by any other persons or companies.

Broadcast Angers Britons

LONDON (AP) — British officials are seething over a BBC television commentator's cracks about President Nixon and Prime Minister Wilson during their meetings in London.

The BBC broadcaster, David Dimbleby, referred Monday to Nixon's "face for all seasons." Later he spoke of Wilson "hogging the limelight" during the presidential visit to Britain. The latter remark was said to have especially stung the prime minister.

The 29-year-old commentator is the son of the ltae Richard Dimbleby, known for his discreet and unflappable commentaries on the BBC.

Dimbleby kept up the acid attack Tuesday, commenting: "All of us, of course, will be kept fully in the dark about the discussions. Both Mr. Wilson and the president have expensively-hired press secretaries whose job it is to disguise the truth."

Nixon's aides were said to consider Dimbleby's comments strange.

The BBC said it regretted that commentaries on President Nixon's visit "included remarks which were unfortunate and inappropriate." It said it was making an inquiry "into all the circumstances."

Plant 'Ambassadors' Get Message Across

The international love of plants penetrates language and political barriers, the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society was told Tuesday night.

Rex Murfitt, a lecturer in the parks and gardening department of the B.C. Vocational School in Victoria, said lecturers from North America are being warmly welcomed behind the Iron Curtain "where interest is spreading in our plant ambassador."

THEY DON'T

All over the world, people think of England as the place where people grow all plants to perfection "and they don't, you know." But they did see the possibilities where others did not.

The flora in North America, and particularly in the Pacific Northwest, was second to none.

In England and Europe, among trees used extensively since Victorian times as the most desirable ornamental varieties, were spruces from Canada, Douglas Firs and Dogwoods from British Columbia.

English and European shrubberies show as their choicest plants such local ones as ceanothus, kalmias, mahonias and clethras.

AWARDS

A number of plants, all from the Pacific Northwest, have received awards of merit from the famous Royal Horticultural Society's Chelsea show in London.

The Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society will display a number of varieties at its annual spring show in Christ Church Cathedral memorial hall, 912 Vancouver, on Friday, April 25, from 2 to 10 p.m. and on Saturday April 26 from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

HOME GARDEN

Fragrant Only After Dusk

By HILDA BEASTALL

Two daphnes are among the winter flowering shrubs which usually bring pleasure to our gardens during February and March. This year, one seems to be missing its flowers, probably due to having its top frozen. The other, Daphne meereum has come through with little damage. Small pink blossoms are opening on bare twiggy branches with the usual lovely fragrance. The white form is in bloom too.

Hilda

The one with its flowers missing this year, Daphne laureola, has been listed by some writers as having fragrance, but in the 15 years or more years since it came to us, the perfume has consistently eluded me, although I though I had tried it at all hours.

Just recently, a note of personal observation in a book by Miles Hadfield, a writer on English gardening, gave a valuable clue. This evergreen daphne, called sometimes Spurge-laurel, is indeed fragrant, but only after dusk has descended on the garden

The plant is quite common in and around Victoria, for although its black berries are poisonous, birds will scatter them throughout shrubby areas where they nest or shelter in winter.

Dark green leaves in a whorl at the top of unbranched but leaf-scarred stems to 20 inches tall, these are trademarks.

In February, the greenish yellow little flowers appear in th axils of the leaves, effectively concealed from casual view.

Many gardeners express surprise at this daphne flowering, in spite of being familiar with the black berries in fall.

Mr. Hadfield states that he too failed to discern fragrance in the flowers until he took stems into the house for sketching.

As dusk enveloped his garden, he noticed the stems indoors gave off perfume, even though under artificial light. Those outdoors he found to be fragrant each evening after dusk.

This fact was also noted by that eminent English plantsman E. A. Bowles, whose writings are a delight on winter evenings.

YOUR HEALTH

Molesting Can Be Harmless

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In the Redbook (February, 1969), there is an interesting article by John Gagnon and William Simon on The Child - Molester; Surprising Advice for Worried Parents. Their advice to parents is not to get too excited when perhaps a harmless old uncle or grandfather—or friend of the family, fondles a child.

Alvarez

They feel that often, especially when the child was not frightened by the fondling, it is unfortunate for the child and the offender and the family if a great rumpus is stirred up. Such a rumpus can harm the child. As they say, "The bulk of these offenses . . . are limited to unsuccessful solicitations." Also, parents should know that "in most cases, the event is of short duration, disturbing them (the children) very little."

I am glad to see Gagnon and Simon's statement that rarely is the old man who fondles a boy a homosexual. The impression I have gotten as a physician with 64 years of experience is that thousands of people resent homosexual men becaue they have the idea that these men commonly molest boys sexually, and in some way injure them for life (perhaps making them homosexual).

★ ★ ★

Actually, Gagnon and Simon and Dr. Alfred Kinsey much doubted if homosexuals are every made in this way; and the greatest sex experts in the world maintain that homosexuals are born homosexuals. My dear old friend Dr. Kinsey, who studied this problem for years, felt as Gagnon and Simon do, that grown homosexuals are interested sexually in one another, much more than in boys.

As Gagnon and Simon say in their article, and as Dr. Kinsey used to say to me, "Often children report being more disturbed by the angry and hostile reactions of their parent to hearing what has happened than they were by the events themselves. . . . This irrational aggression against the child by anxiety-ridden parents can only make worse what might have been a mildly curious reaction on the child's part."

★ ★ ★

To force the child to appear in court and be questioned can do him or her much harm. As Gagnon and Simon say, it is good to warn children never to get into a car with a stranger, but it is not wise to keep giving the children the idea that all strangers are dangerous.

One remarkable fact brought out by Dr. Kinsey in his book on women is that in a high percentage of cases, the person who fondled the child was a member of the family—often an uncle or a grandfather. Sometimes the man did the fondling when he was slightly under the influence of alcohol—enough so that he forgot the great danger he could run of having trouble with the law.

Anyone who feels shocked at what Gagnon and Simon say, ought to read Kinsey and see his statements that of all the women who said they had been fondled in childhood only one was hurt. I have talked to such women. One, when a teen-ager, was nearly raped by a young man, but fought him off. She told me that the experience, frightening as it was, had not injured her mentally or physically.

I can remember that Dr. Kinsey was horrified by the fact that in 30 of our states the penalty for the "crime" is either death or life imprisonment. It maybe much less than this for murder.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Broken Leg Resulted In Explorer's Role

By BOB BOWMAN

Who was Canada's greatest explorer? There would be many nominations for that distinction if a vote were taken: Champlain, LaSalle, Kelsey, Hearne, Henday, Le Verendrye, Mackenzie others. The winner might easily be David Thompson who is sometimes described as the greatest land geographer who ever lived. Yet Thompson became an explorer as the result of a broken leg, and ended his days in Montreal almost blind and penniless.

Bowman

David Thompson began working for the Hudson's Bay Company at Fort Churchill when he was only 14 years old. He was sent to posts along the Saskatchewan River in 1786 and probably would have become a fur trader except that he fell down a river bank and broke his leg. During a long period of inactivity he studied astronomy and surveying and this enabled him to become an explorer.

Thompson did not believe that the Hudson's Bay Company would give him much opportunity to explore so he joined the rival North West Company and was instructed to survey the international boundary. This task took years and led him through the Rockies and down the Columbia River to the Pacific.

Altogether Thompson mapped more than 1,500,000 square miles of Canada and the U.S.A. travelling in canoes, sleighs, or walking and snowshoeing.

On February 26, 1789, Thompson was exploring the headwaters of the Mississippi River. By March 7 he was at the site of present-day Winnipeg, and by May he was at Sault Ste. Marie. Imagine covering all that territory at that time of year and without modern means of transportation! Yet that was only one of many typical Thompson exploits.

He would never consent to carry liquor to give to Indians although his North West Company partners tried to force him to do so. On one occasion they insisted that he carry two kegs of alcohol through the Rockies, so he placed them on a vicious horse. By noon the kegs were empty and in pieces. He kept liquor from getting through the Rockies for six years when he was in charge of the routes in that territory.

Other events on February 26:

1790—Prime Minister Pitt reparations for capturing British ships at Nootka, now Vancouver Island.

1856—John A. Macdonald and George Brown had bitter clash in Legislative Assembly.

1857—Parliament met at Toronto and asked Queen Victoria to select site for Canada's capital.

1867—British North America Act was passed by House of Lords.

Antarctic Query Wins World Atlas

Winner of Ask Andy prize today is Teresa Morriss, 2570 Foul Bay Road.

She won a World Book Atlas for a question dealing with the Antarctic Ocean. It was the first question she had ever sent in and it won't be her last, she says.

Teresa is 10 years old and is in Grade 5 at St. Patrick School where she is dong well in her studies. Two years ago she won the best scholar award for her work.

Her favorite subjects are reading, social studies and arithmetic.

Reading is a hobby with her. She likes adventure and mystery stories and is also fond of books dealing with Canada.

She hopes to become a nurse when she leaves school.

Teresa plans to continue to send questions to Ask Andy. She hopes to win a set of encyclopedia.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Teresa Morriss, age, 10, of Victoria, for her question:

Is there an Antarctic Ocean or not?

The earth's dry land masses are separated from each other by wide stretches of salty water. On a globe or a world map you see that the water areas all link together in one global ocean. However, we need to name its major sections to locate them on maps and to get our bearings. The large land masses that cover the South Pole is surrounded by a region of icy water, swirling around in an endless circle. Tossed by polar gales, it is the wildest ocean water in the world and also the coldest. Its location and its unfriendly character make it unique, and its circling current seems to draw a line around its boundaries. It is logical to count it among the list of major oceans. Most geographers see it as the Antartic Ocean.

However, the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans reach down to the south polar region. Some people say they merely merge to form the swirling south polar current, which does not justify a separate ocean. This is a very technical approach to the question, and geographers, sailors and others who cope with the practical aspects of the sea have other ideas. They find it more convenient to regard the south polar sea as the Antarctic Ocean.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Stephanie Saenger, age 12, of Hutchinson, Kansas, for her question:

Why does salt preserve food?

There was a time when salt was the only way to preserve meat. In Europe, salt was so valuable that it was used as money. Then people learned to use pepper and spices in preserving meat, and trade between Europe and the East Indian Spice Islands has flourished for centuries.

Ordinary table salt is known scientifically as sodium chloride and it happens to be one of the world's most useful chemicals. Every year, the United States uses more than 30 million tons of it. Only a small helping of this ever gets into a salt shaker. The rest performs more than 14,000 different duties, mostly behind the scenes in manufacturing and industrial processes. Tons of salt are used to preserve food. To understand how this works, we need to know what causes food to go rotten. We also need to know something about the nature of salt and how it behaves.

Food turns rotten because it contains innumerable bacteria and other living organisms, too small for our eyes to see. When we eat fresh foods, these bitsy bodies are either destroyed or absorbed by our digestive systems. But when food is left exposed to the air, these living organisms thrive and multiply.

Student Made Riot Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — The controller of Sir George Williams University testified Tuesday that he was told by Kennedy J. N. Frederick 13 days before a student rampage two weeks ago that the university's computer centre could be "burned down."

Henry Worrell, 50, said Frederick told him Jan. 29, when the student occupation of the ninth-floor computer centre began, that the centre would be burned unless the administration gave in to student demands.

Mr. Worrell was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Frederick, 29, of Grenada, the first of 89 persons to appear on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and destroy property after a peaceful two-week occupation erupted into violence Feb. 11.

The other 88 accused are scheduled to appear today.

Occupation of the computer centre and the seventh-floor cafeteria and adjoining faculty lounge in the downtown 12-storey building was to protest the makeup of a university committee investigating charges of racism laid against an assistant biology professor by six West Indian students.

Occupiers threw business equipment, computer tape and punch cards into the street, destroyed more than $1,000,000 worth of computers with fire axes and caused another $1,000,000 worth of damage by turning on fire hoses and smashing interior fittings. They set fire to the computer centre before riot police broke in and made arrests.

In his testimony Tuesday, Mr. Worrell told the court he went to the computer centre Jan. 29 to speak to the occupiers.

Mr. Worrell said Frederick had told him students would "burn down the computer centre unless their demands were met."

"Their demands included the appointment of a new committee to investigate charges of racism against a university professor."

Mr. Worrell said he did not return until Feb. 11 and "smoke was so thick you could not see your hand a foot in front of your face."

Graham Martin, 29, director of the university's computer centre, testified that the centre would not be operating "normally" until next October.

An estimated "30 man-years of work" were lost in the destruction spree and the equipment was a "total loss."

Mr. Martin said the two computers and auxiliary equipment had suffered "at least 30" separate blows from axes.

RENTED TO FIRMS

The computers were used by the administration to process payrolls, student records, library files, the marking of student examinations, faculty and student research. They also were rented to outside firms for processing payrolls and inventories.

Loss of computer work done for firms outside the university would amount to $100,000 between now and October.

A security guard, Jacques Turcotte, 21, said he was held hostage for about an hour by about 50 students before the burning and smashing spree began.

CONFINED to hospital in Toronto for a month, following a heart attack, Energy Minister J. J. Greene was released Monday. He plans to spend a month convalescing in Ottawa.

VENUS IS HOTSPOT

MOTORISTS STRANDED ON PRAIRIES

REGINA (CP) — Hundreds of motorists throughout central and southern Saskatchewan were stranded late Tuesday as winds peaking at 50 miles an hour swirled snow into blinding clouds, reducing visibility to zero, blocking roads and streets and making all travel extremely hazardous.

RCMP throughout the southern portion of the province were called off the roads and were requesting motorists not to attempt to travel.

Warning Given On Overdose Of Bilingualism

MONTREAL (CP) — A member of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism said Tuesday night that if everyone in Canada knew and spoke perfect French and English the bilingual character of the country would be destroyed.

Professor Frank R. Scott, speaking in a lecture at Marianopolis College here, said that without the large unilingual sectors in the country bilingualism would die out.

"If everyone across the country knew French and English perfectly, one of the two would become superfluous and we would forget it."

The commission, he said, is not saying that everyone should or will be bilingual. It is trying to ensure the equality of French and English wherever they meet in a single institution such as in government and the top levels of industry.

OCCURS AT TOP

Mr. Scott said the problem of equality occurs in Quebec at the top level. Part of the commission's task was to guarantee the right of a man whose language and culture is French to rise to the top without having to sacrifice his language or culture.

"It is not true to say that in the province of Quebec one cannot get a job without speaking English" he said. "One cannot get a top job without speaking English."

But at the lower levels it is massively French, Mr. Scott said, so much so that according to the 1961 census about 70 per cent of Quebecers did not know English.

Mr. Scott said that according to the provision of the British North America Act both French and English were guaranteed official status in what was then known as Canada.

But now, according to the federal constitution, he said, the Western provinces were also bound to respect French as an official language, although some provincial premiers seem unaware of the fact.

Mr. Scott added that the commission did not produce its idea necessarily to save the unity of the country "but for the basic issue of human rights".

One such human right is that of parents to choose the language in which their children are to be educated.

"If a young French-speaking manager is offered a promotion to a plant in Calgary, he will find there are no facilities for educating his children in any language but English."

If he then decides to stay in Quebec his career will suffer, Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott said the separation of Quebec from Confederation would not help the human rights issue because it would not solve the problem of "making communities live together recognizing each other's rights."

Nixon Urges 'Rule of Reason' For Colleges

Orders Steps to Curb Lawlessness; Applauds Notre Dame Policy

By CARROLL KILPATRICK
The Washington Post

President Nixon has spoken out strongly against campus violence and applauded the tough policy against disruption adopted at Notre Dame University.

He urged all college administrators to uphold the "rule of reason."

The president also directed Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew to discuss with the nation's governors steps that might be taken "to cope with the growing lawlessness and violence on our campuses."

The presidential comments, made public Monday, were made in a letter to the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, who last week said he would dismiss students who substituted force for rational persuasion.

Mr. Nixon wrote the letter before departing for Europe.

Father Hesburgh said that students who resort to violence would be given "15 minutes of meditation to cease and desist." If they fail to stop using force in that time they will be suspended. After another five minutes, students continuing to disrupt campus life will be expelled, Father Hesburgh said.

"I share your concern over the recent disorders that have paralyzed campus after campus across our country in recent weeks, and I want to applaud the forthright stand you have taken," the president wrote.

He said that the means employed by "a small, irresponsible minority" reflect "an impatience with democratic processes, an intolerance of legitimately constituted authority, and a complete disregard for the rights of others."

The president said that "violence and vandalism have marked many of these protests, and the rights of the majority of the students have been grossly abused.

"If the integrity of our universities is to be preserved, then certain principles must be re-established and certain basic rules enforced. Intimidation and threats remain outlaw weapons in a free society.

"A fundamental governing principle of any great university is that the rule of reason and not the rule of force prevails. Whoever rejects that principle forfeits his right to be a member of the academic community.

"The university administrator who fails to uphold that principle jeopardizes one of the central pillars of his own institution and weakens the very foundation of American education."

Lawyer Used Name Of Clay Bertrand

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A lawyer who says he had Lee Harvey Oswald as a client several months before President Kennedy was killed has testified that the mysterious Clay Bertrand of the Clay Shaw case did not exist.

Bertrand "was a figment of my imagination," Dean Andrews Jr. testified Tuesday at Shaw's trial on a charge of conspiring to kill Kennedy.

It is the name Bertrand that District Attorney Jim Garrison contends Shaw used as an alias in plotting with Oswald and others to kill the president.

Andrews had testified before a Warren commission investigator and two grand juries, and he told the FBI that a man he knew as Clay Bertrand telephoned him the day after Oswald's arrest to ask that he go to Dallas to take over as defence lawyer.

SHOT MOUTH OFF

But Tuesday he said he had "let my mouth run ahead of my brain."

"I can't give you any explanation. . . . Once you make a fool of yourself you're stuck with it."

Andrews, a short heavy man whose speech is laced with slang, said he sought fame—and wound up convinced of perjury. His case is pending on appeal.

"It's page after page of bull," he said, when Assistant District Attorney James L. Alcock asked him to explain his previous testimony.

Andrews testified Tuesday that the telephone call was from an old client, Eugene Davis, on a minor legal matter. Andrews said Davis, in casual conversation, told him he'd never be a famous lawyer unless he grabbed big cases like one developing in Dallas.

Andrews said when he was telling the FBI his story it suddenly dawned on him that he was about to subject Davis to "a lot of heat and pressure that didn't belong to him." So he substituted the name Clay Bertrand, which he said was the first one that popped into his mind.

Andrews testified that he gave Oswald legal advice several times in May and April of 1963. He described Oswald as a walk-in client but he refused to give details of his dealings with Oswald by claiming lawyer-client privilege and the court upheld his right to do so.

Seven Charged With Hold-ups At Hippie-Pads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seven men were charged Monday with four armed holdups on hippie-pads in what police called an outbreak of anti-hippie gangsterism.

They appeared in court Tuesday and were released on bail totalling $22,500.

Of 20 holdup victims four were assaulted. None was taken to hospital.

Police were called in Monday after the fourth holdup. Minutes later seven suspects were arrested.

Fish in Hot Water From Industry Flush

ROME (Reuters) — Increasing numbers of fish are in hot water—literally and figuratively.

A United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization report says the discharge of hot water from industrial plants into rivers and streams poses a growing threat to fish.

Many electric and other power plants discharge water with a temperature between 42 and 60 degrees Fahrnheit and this often proves deadly to fish, especially trout and salmon, as well as to their eggs and organisms on which they feed.

Scientists call it "thermal pollution."

Thermonuclear plants, which generate high temperatures, are a particular threat.

Increased temperatures weaken the resistance of fish to disease and reduce the amount of essential oxygen in the water. The 21-nation European inland fisheries advisory commission of the FAO is drafting international criteria to protect freshwater fish from water pollution.

The commission reported that turbot, at the time of reproduction, would be destroyed by a rise in water temperature of four degrees Fahrnheit from freezing point in winter.

In spring, an increase of about nine degrees Fahrenheit is detrimental to pike embryos.

In summer, 68 to 69.8 degrees Fahrenheit should be accepted as the maximum permissible temperature for salmon.

But with some species such as carp, controlled hot water can be beneficial, providing warmth for better spawning and feeding conditions and aid in maturing the eggs, the report said.

In North America, thermal pollution is considered one of the toughest challenges to the great salmon runs of the Columbia River, where a study of the biological effects now is under way.

Angry Sirhan Loses Control

McGOWAN
. . . not being paid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Enraged because his diaries with their murderous thoughts are being aired in court, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan wants to "give up and go to the gas chamber," his lawyer says, by pleading guilty to killing Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

But the lawyer said he would not permit Sirhan to enter such a plea.

"He's blown his top," said Grant B. Cooper after Sirhan's courtroom outburst—the second of the day—caused adjournment of Tuesday's afternoon session when it was barely getting started.

"He's blown his top and we're trying to control him."

After court, the four-man defence team and Sirhan's 55-year-old mother spent more than an hour with the 24-year-old Jordanian.

"When we left him," said Cooper, "he was real calm. We hope he'll be calm Wednesday."

Of a possible plea of guilty—with the verdict of life imprisonment or death still in the hands of the jury—Cooper said: "We're not going to let him. . . . As lawyers we're not going to let our client run the case. He doesn't know what he's doing."

SIRHAN INTERRUPTS

In court, as a handwriting expert was preparing to testify, Sirhan rose white-faced and trembling, a pleading hand extended to judge Herbert V. Walker, and said: "Your Honor, forgive me for interrupting. . . ." At that point Cooper asked for the adjournment.

Earlier in the day, the judge had sent for Sirhan and told him to listen to his lawyers, that they were able men. Cooper said that at that time Sirhan was "determined he was going in to plead guilty" but calmed down.

When the defence lost its fight against admission of the diaries —on grounds of illegal search— Sirhan raged that "if he was going to be tried this way he might as well give up and go to the gas chamber," Cooper said.

Judge Walker allowed six of eight pages of Sirhan's diary presented by the prosecution to be admitted in evidence. They contain references to killing Kennedy, assassinating Arthur Goldberg, then U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and the overthrow of the government and its replacement by Marxism or anarchism.

Private Eye On 'Case Of Century'

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since the day that Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was formally accused of murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy, a young private detective has crisscrossed the United States digging for facts that might save Sirhan's life.

Dapper, dark-haired Mike McGowan, 35, is the defence's "private eye." He has a law degree and spent 10 years with the Los Angeles force.

McGowan has been so enmeshed in the Sirhan case that Judge Herbert V. Walker gave him permission to sit at the counsel table in court and attend all conferences in the judge's chambers.

He says he now spends seven days a week on the case, working from six in the morning until midnight. And he's not being paid.

Why is he doing it?

Because it may be "the case of the century," he says.

DROPPED 52 CASES

"No other investigator has taken on a case of this magnitude before. I had 52 open cases at the time I took on this case. I cancelled out all of them."

McGowan and his partner, Ronald Allen, run the R. Allen Detective Agency, a large Los Angeles firm with five area offices. They were called in by Russell B. Parsons, Sirhan's chief defence lawyer, only days after Kennedy was shot to death at the Ambassador Hotel.

McGowan says he has travelled "between 60,000 and 70,000 miles on this case."

"I've flown to New York, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Seattle, New Orleans and throughout California."

All the trips were to check out possible witnesses, people with facts or maybe just a hunch.

The prosecution, says McGowan, has about 100 investigators on the case. But none has one right McGowan has—the right to talk to the accused.

Biafrans Say Raid Killed 37

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — The secessionist Nigerian state of Biafra claimed Tuesday that 37 persons were killed and more than 100 others injured when federal planes bombed two crowded markets in Biafra on Monday.

The Biafran information office said one of the planes swooped on a market in Eziama and dropped four bombs, killing 17 persons on the spot.

LAGOS (Reuters) — The Nigerian federal government announced today a two-day truce in the civil war with the breakaway state of Biafra to mark the Moslem religious festival of Id-el-Kabir.

The truce was to begin at midnight Tuesday.

'No Doubt It's Murder;' Osland Found in Harbor

STANLEY TO REPORT ON SECURITIES FIRM

VANCOUVER (CP) — A. D. Peter Stanley, receiver-manager of the Commonwealth Trust group of companies, expects to issue a report in about two week on the affairs of Diversified Income Securities Ltd., a member of his staff said today.

Trading in shares of Diversified Income mutual funds Shares A and B was suspended last November and assets of the company were frozen under a British Columbia Supreme Court order.

The action was taken as part of an investigation by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and William Irwin, provincial superintendent of brokers, into the tangled financial affairs of the Commonwealth group.

CROWDS OF CURIOUS SPECTATORS jam the jetty at the foot of Fort Street as city and Saanich detectives huddle around the body of city businessman William Osland, recovered by divers Tuesday afternoon. Body was found in 23 feet of water about 35 feet from wharf at extreme upper left, where the ship Robert M. Emery was tied until Feb. 5. Osland, who was part owner of the ship, was reported missing Feb. 3.

Police Team To California

By DON VIPOND

City police lead an investigating team to San Francisco today after recovering the body of city businessman William Osland from the Inner Harbor Tuesday afternoon.

"There's no doubt it's murder," city police chief John Gregory said this morning.

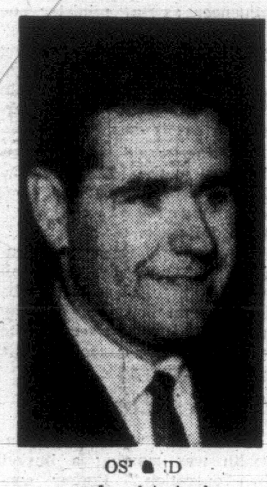
Linking the case with the California port is the former U.S. Navy supply ship, the Robert M. Emery, which one of Mr. Osland's companies was converting to a floating restaurant-acquarium.

The ship, now called the S.S. Tarantino, was berthed at the foot of Fort Street earlier this month, where the body was found. It is now in San Francisco.

Osland's plastic-wrapped and weighted body was found by navy divers in 23 feet of water Tuesday afternoon in what Chief Gregory called a routine step in the investigation of the missing man.

Osland had suffered three massive head wounds.

He vanished three weeks ago and has been the object of an intensive police hunt since then.



OSLAND
. . . found in harbor

'Involved Personal Circumstances'

One of his business partners, lawyer David Hummel, said today there were "involved personal circumstances" surrounding the life of the murdered man.

"The police ought to have an uninterrupted field of investigation without comment from me," he added, declining further explanation.

But he did say that a complete internal audit had been conducted in the "dozen or so" companies in the partnership involving the dead man and everything was found to be in perfect order.

"There is every indication he did a first-class job right up to the last."

There appears to be no connection between his death and the companies he was involved with, he added.

Mr. Hummel said those close to Osland were all "very shaken" by the discovery of his body. The dead man had been a member of the complicated business partnership for close to seven years.

Friend, Firm Offered Reward

A total of $2,000 had been offered as a reward in the search for Osland, half from the family and friend Albert Robert Baird and the other half from Diversified Management and Development, the partnership's holding company.

Mr. Hummel said he had not handled the reward matter "but so far as I know there has been no claim and I don't expect any."

Chief Gregory said police launched the under water search as the first step in an investigation from the point where Osland was last seen.

Two sources notified The Times today that they had reported a bad smell near the wharf to police Tuesday morning.

But Chief Gregory said at that time city and Saanich police were meeting on what course the investigation should take and that is where the decision to send divers to the harbor bot-

ILLNESS MAY DELAY FLIGHT OF APOLLO 9

Japanese Fishboat Seized

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Japanese fishing vessel Kotoshiro Maru was seized off this northern British Columbia port Tuesday for operating in Canadian fishing waters.

Fisheries Officer Maurice P. Houghton said the 480-ton vessel was fishing inside the 12-mile fishing limit near Hippa Island when stopped by the fisheries patrol vessel Tanu.

The Kotoshiro Maru arrived here under escort today and officers and crew members were being interrogated by fisheries officers.

Mr. Houghton said none of the Japanese crew speaks English and that questioning was being handled through an interpreter.

WELL WITHIN LIMIT

Hippa Island is a small body of land on the west coast of the main group of Queen Charlotte Islands and is situated about 120 airline miles southwest of Prince Rupert.

Reports said the Japanese vessel was seized about 9½ miles off Hippa Island, which would place it well within the 12-mile fishing limit for foreign vessels.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the department of external affairs said charges will be laid against one or more members of the crew under the Coastal Fisheries and Protection Act, which bars foreign vessels from fishing within 12 miles of the Canadian coast.

Maximum fine for violation of section three of the act is $5,000 and seizure of the vessel.

Some Progress Seen by Lodge

PARIS (AP) — United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today there has been "some progress" in the Vietnam peace talks here and he believes "something will come out of it."

Talking to correspondents after a 30-minute meeting with Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam, Lodge declined to elaborate, but the implication was that the progress he referred to was in secret contacts with the North Vietnamese.

Neither side has acknowledged such secret talks are taking place. There has been no visible progress in the weekly sessions of the full-scale conference.

"There has been some progress made but it just isn't very rapid," Lodge said. "These things move along in a way that is hard to define.

"I think some progress is being made, some ground work is being laid and I think something will come out of it."

TIDAL WAVES SMASH TOWN

It said at least 20 persons were killed in the earthquake, but many more were feared killed by the tidal waves.

W. Germany Backs Nixon In Proposed Moscow Talks

BONN (CP) — President Nixon received the West German government's approval today for his planned negotiations with Moscow and in turn assured Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger the United States will support Germany in her negotiations over Berlin.

A German government spokesman said Nixon told Kiesinger he will make his trip to West Berlin Thursday not as a provocation but to show the United States is standing by Berlin, whatever the West German government decides to do about holding its disputed presidential election there next Wednesday.

Nixon pledged wholehearted support for the principle of German reunification and was assured that the West German government regarded co-operation with the United States as a keystone of its policy.

Settling down to key talks with their foreign ministers in the 19th-century Palais Schaumburg, the two leaders traded assurances on the crucial issues of German reunification, the maintenance of the Atlantic alliance and the freedom of Western Europe.

SNOW DELAYS ARRIVAL

After the morning talks—which ended 15 minutes late because snow delayed Nixon's arrival from London—the two men walked to a neighboring villa to lunch with retiring President Heinrich Luebke.

The exchange of mutual reassurances was seen as underscoring West Germany's conviction that European ties with the U.S. must not be loosened in favor of any form of new European economic, political or military association.

Bonn, like other European capitals Nixon is visiting, is deeply preoccupied with French President de Gaulle's reported offer of bilateral talks with Britain on a wider form of economic association in Europe to transform the Common Market and eventual dissolution of NATO.

But neither the chancellor nor the president regarded the current diplomatic row on European unity as being of crisis proportions and both advocated a cool approach during their talks today, the government spokesman said.

ROW EXAGGERATED

Nixon was quoted as saying he thought the differences had been exaggerated.

Ronald L. Ziegler, presidential press secretary, said Nixon told the chancellor that if there were bilateral talks between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, West Germany and other allies would be consulted on all matters affecting their interests.

Nixon also indicated that if bilateral talks took place with the Soviet Union to reduce the danger of war, the U.S. would do nothing to impair the strength of the Western alliance.

Coming from London for the third stop on his eight-day European visit, Nixon told Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt: "The commitment of your nation and mine to the ultimate reunification of Germany —that cannot change."

BUNDESAT HEARS NIXON

BONN (CP) — American President Nixon came to West Germany today and in an unprecedented appearance before its Bundesat Parliament said successful negotiations with the Soviet Union depend on the maintenance of "the strength that made negotiations possible."

The success of the Western alliance, he told the packed assembly, "is indicated by the fact that in the 20 years that it has existed we have had peace as far as this part of the world is concerned and that every one of the nations in the alliance that was free 20 years ago is free today including the free city of West Berlin."

More 'Surprises' in Trust Controversy

By JOHN MIKA

Opposition MLAs Tuesday fired questions and criticism at Premier Bennett to uncover a few more surprises in the Commonwealth Trust controversy and also gave him the ultimate gesture of scorn—a motion to cut his salary by $1 for the first time.

The motion of non-confidence in an individual minister is seldom used—the last time being in 1967 against Works Minister Chant.

Its mover, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, said he could not remember the premier ever before being singled out for the personal rebuke throughout his often-stormy career.

It was defeated 29 to 23 by the government majority in a division that ended the second consecutive attack on the government for its handling of Commonwealth Trust responsibilities.

The onslaught lasted 3½ hours, bringing the cumulative total to six hours of debate on the Commonwealth situation despite appointment of a royal commission Friday to add its scrutiny to a current police investigation.

Tuesday's instalment in the legislature, added these new facets to the unfolding developments:

● The federal Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation already has loaned $2 million to Commonwealth Trust as working capital out of a $3.5 million total line of credit it has authorized;

● Premier Bennett's statement Monday to MLAs that it was the federal government which suggested the provincial government put money into the company was denied. Instead federal Finance Minister Benson claimed B.C. officials made an appointment to discuss a proposal that the province make a loan;

● Demands were made that the government or Vancouver Stock Exchange "explain", a report that two years ago VSE consideration of delisting several Commonwealth group companies was stopped after then-attorney-general Robert Bonner heard about it;

● Health Minister Ralph Loffmark denied that he had any knowledge whatever of the state of Commonwealth Trust's affairs when he asked CDIC to expedite insurance coverage for the company's depositors nor when he drafted a letter for Premier Bennett to sign authorizing Commonwealth to apply for coverage;

● Loffmark admitted he had seen Commonwealth Trust's president A. G. Duncan Crux in the latter's office on recent occasions but denied that he discussed the company's financial straits;

● Premier Bennett said former deputy finance minister J. V. Fisher, who became vice-president of Commonwealth Turst after leaving government service but resigned last November shortly before his death, never discussed the company with him at any time;

● Liberal Leader Pat McGeer claimed the B.C. government probably wants to lend Commonwealth Trust money to help the Bank of B.C. or some other "un-named shareholder-to-be waiting in the wings" eventually take over the company;

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEB. 26, 1969—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Florenda Joy is resting from the first stage of her journey at Winnipeg today . . . a sweet and perky little girl who has a great deal going for her.

Last Friday, Capt. Dennis Ryan (army) called on her with a message (navy) received at public relations headquarters, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt.

It was a destroyer company's goodbye, and it ran like this:

"As you leave for the East, our most sincere thoughts go with you. When you return to Victoria, we hope you will visit our ship.

"Good luck, Florenda.

Commanding officer, officers and men of HMCS Yukon."

The invitation was accompanied by a large photograph of Yukon, which is currently engaged with other Canadian and American ships in anti-submarine exercises off the California coast.

Then, on Monday a delegation of Shriners headed by their recently-elected 1969 president, Arthur Fyfe, whisked Florenda and her mother down to the Air Canada office in Centennial Square.

Arrived, the men from Victoria Gizeh Temple Shrine Club presented mother and youngest daughter with their return fare to Rochester, Minn.

This done, the Air Canada staff offered gifts of their own. These were a small flight bag for Florenda, and a larger bag for Mrs. Dick.

Incidentally, Florenda's also taking along a gift-doll in nurse's uniform from a group of nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and an equally-treasured teddy bear made for her by members of a high school Spade club.

Last Saturday, while holding forth on earthquakes, I said that the Courtenay-Comox area received a tousling from a tremor in 1946. I was a few thousand miles from the scene, but Timesman Pete Loudon was there, and he feels that a stronger word is required to describe what happened.

So do I, after absorbing his graphic account.

"The front of the bank and a good chunk of the post office, both brick buildings, tumbled into the streets," Pete remembers.

"The chimney in our cottage was built half inside and half outside. It flopped into the yard—presto—a new door in the kitchen. I was on my way out the bedroom window when the neighbor's chimney piled up at my feet. . . .

"Show windows were broken in Laver's department store. In a dry-cleaning shop the boiler walked away from the wall. The chimney snapped off. Soot came through the stove-pipe hole and coated the laundry parcels which had broken open.

"Thank God it was Sunday," Loudon continues. "The school chimney came through the roof and buried the desks of a classroom in loose bricks. On the Campbell River highway, a house under construction fell off its pins. A large section of a sand spit at Deep Bay disappeared."

His conclusion:

"I am convinced that had this quake hit Toronto or any city favoring brick or masonry construction, the death toll would have been terrific . . . and so it would have been in Victoria's older areas."

We come now to the time of year when many adult education classes prepare to wind up their sessions.

You name it, and the adult education department of Greater Victoria school board either has the subject on its list or will harken carefully to your reasons why it should be added.

Speaking of which, I know a fellow who turned up no long time ago in a new suit, obviously tailored, that looked like a million bucks.

He's proud to reveal that his wife made it for him, stitch by careful stitch, at an adult education class.

If you've never enrolled in these courses, try one on next summer's daytime schedule, if you can fit it in. Otherwise, enrol next fall for evening classes. The fees are modest . . . and never was money better spent!

WHEN YOU ARE SIX and going on a trip, especially in an airplane, the excitement of the moment is all that matters. You wear your spring hat and you get going-away gifts and your friend sits with you in the waiting room and you just look at each other and smiling eyes do the important talking. You don't feel the anxieties even when the time comes for a godbye embrace. Anxiety, love and prayers of a community are following the blonde charmer because she is Florenda Joy Dick, a six-year-old whom countless friends are helping to send to Mayo Clinic for delicate heart surgery March 10. With her 3,000-mile lolly-pop and a coloring book, Florenda set out to cross a horizon Monday. Besides anxiety and love and modern medical science Florenda obviously has something else going for her—the unassailable faith shining in the face of her friend Marion Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, Mt. Newton Cross Road. Little girl power like that can't help but assist in bringing Florenda back over that horizon to a normal Victoria childhood. (Times Photos by Bill Halkett)

Big Annex To Start This Year

150-Bed Unit Approved At Gorge Road Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

Excavations for a new $1-per-day, 150-bed extended care annex to Gorge Road Hospital will begin before the end of this year—perhaps this fall.

The project, approved by the provincial government today, will cost between $1.9 and $2 million.

It is expected to offer relief to waiting lists for admission to Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals late in 1970 after a 10-month construction period.

Gorge Road administrator William Morrison said he was advised of approval of the project by B.C. Hospital Insurance Services this morning. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was expected to make the announcement later today.

Mr. Morrison said the annex will be built directly behind the present Gorge Road hospital and will be physically joined to it. He said it is to be of three or four storeys—this has not been settled.

BCHIS guidelines are expected to be received by the hospital board by the end of March at which time a start will be made on construction plans.

The project has already been approved by Greater Victoria and Gulf Island Regional Hospital District.

APPROVED IN MAY

The addition is part of the program approved by capital region ratepayers in May 1968 in an $11,480,000 referendum. Of this amount $8,650,000 was earmarked for construction of extended care facilities.

Gorge Road Hospital was given a priority although the hospital district previously approved $329,000 in improvements for St. Joseph's Hospital and $625,000 for similar projects at Royal Jubilee.

A new X-ray unit at Rest Haven Hospital Sidney, land purchase for extension of Lady Minto Hospital at Ganges and improvements to Mount St. Mary's Hospital fire exits, totalling $85,000 also were approved.

Gorge Road Hospital officials have planned a "Class A" construction using reinforced concrete.

Health Minister Loffmark earlier told the regional hospital district board the maximum cost per bed for such projects must be held to $13,000. The limit for frame construction of horizontal design was set at $9,000 per bed.

The new beds are for extended-care patients, which by previous BCHIS definition is those who are chronically ill and unable to do anything for themselves.

The regional hospital district board, headed by Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria, hopes the provision of these beds will permit removal of a number of patients from Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals, to ease the acute bed shortages there.

$1 DAILY

Patients moved to the new facility would be covered by BCHIS provisions and would pay only $1 per day for hospital care. Doctors say they expect many patients now in private hospitals, who pay up to $350 per month, will also seek admission to the new unit.

Various formulas are used in sharing costs of new facilities provided through the hospital district.

The province pays 60 per cent of construction and the district 40 per cent until the local levy on property taxpayers raches four mills. For amounts greater than four mills would produce, the province pays 80 per cent and the district 20 per cent.

Equipment costs are shared one third by the province and two thirds by the local area, and if funds are available, by the hospital concerned.

Because the province pays the larger share all financial outlays require approval of the provincial BCHIS and the health minister.

Transit Feeler 'Interesting'

Local reaction was favorable today to the possibility of a triple-crown corporation to cope with the problems of transit in Victoria and Vancouver.

"It is an interesting suggestion and it might provide the kind of answers being sought," commented Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich.

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant, who attended a national conference on urban transportation problems recently, said he is delighted that the municipal level of government will be taken into account.

Premier Bennett disclosed in the legislature Tuesday that he has discussed the problem in Ottawa with Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand.

The discussions centred around the premier's concern for the need for increasing investment in metropolitan centres and he told the legislature that "in due course" the transit system would come under a single authority supported by municipal, provincial and federal money.

Mayor Curtis said it is important that municipalities continue to remind taxpayers and the provincial government that B.C. Hydro's transit liabilities go hand in hand with the crown corporation's power sales revenue.

PRECEDENT

And Mayor Bryant said before any triple-crown transit authority is set up, there should be a fiscal conference between municipalities and the provincial government.

"Premier Bennett can hardly expect municipalities to be warm to the idea unless he is willing to discuss forms of revenue and reallocation of municipal revenues," he said.

"This would have to be a precedent to his proposal.

"If he is going to impose this on the municipalities, then it is certain there is no way it could be a success."

Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria said he didn't think any local government would refuse to look at a three-way partnership provided funds were available. At the moment, municipalities simply did not have the revenue to absorb the costs of public transportation.

The need for a viable and well-run transit systems was just as important as roads and was a "public necessity."

SUBSIDY DOUBLED

Also in the legislature Tuesday, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said bus service in Victoria and Vancouver should be taken from B.C. Hydro and turned over to a new crown corporation charged with developing a new urban transit system for the province.

As the legislature passed a vote doubling the transit subsidy paid to B.C. Hydro to $2 million, Dr. McGeer said Hydro had shown little interest in urban transportation systems and made few positive improvements.

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said rapid transit, not freeways, is the answer to urban traffic congestion.

One million dollars had been spent on freeway studies in metropolitan Vancouver and he called it "money poured down a rathole."

Gift of $500 To New Centre Boosts Morale

An anonymous gift of $500 was received by the Victoria Native Friendship Society Tuesday.

It will help bring closer the society's dream of a centre for all Indians in the area.

Announcement of the donation came at a meeting in Spencer-house. It helped offset disappointment when members learned that a house on Mason Street, which had been offered the group on payment of back taxes, was unsuitable.

Mrs. Dolly Seeds explained, "we found that it would cost too much. The plumbing had to be renewed, the place was badly in need of paint and repairs. We don't mind the labor, we have plenty of volunteers, but we just couldn't swing the financial outlay."

Combining forces with the society in its creation of a centre is the Clawacsic (Younger Generation Club).

Spokesmen for the two groups say that they intend to "run their own show because we're tired of being spoon-fed."

Plans for the centre include classes in Indian culture, art and language; an arts and crafts shop, recreation space and a room where clothes can be made or re-fitted for those in need.

Diane Logan, a student at the Institute of Adult Studies, reports that there are about 100 Indians studying there at the present time, several attend St. Ann's Academy, and many Indian families in the community need help.

"We're making quilts now so that at least they have something to keep them warm."

Diane and Mrs. Seeds are donating their time to staff an information centre which the society set up in Spencer House last Friday.

STOP-GAP

From there they provide counselling service, co-operating with other agencies, as a stop-gap until they can move into their own centre.

Already they have helped an unemployed logger whose insurance benefits have run out.

He left his five children with friends at Tofino and came to town to visit his wife, a patient in the Gorge Hospital. Monday his money was gone.

He contacted the John Howard Society, which put him in touch with the centre. Monday night he spent sleeping on the floor of an Indian home.

Tuesday, welfare authorities placed him at the Salvation Army until next Monday.

Mrs. Seeds explains that the centre's main objective, at present, is to provide emergency help for Indians, like the Tofino man, who came to town and are lost in a strange envoronment.

She reports, "They're as lost as my three children would be if we lived on a reservation."

She describes the information service as an "anchor chain" for the distressed until the new centre is available.

Phone number of the society's temporary headquarters, which is manned from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday is 384-6313.

Nearly 6,000 Placed in Jobs By Manpower

Manpower offices here were visited by 68,000 people last year.

Of these, almost 10 per cent — 3,246 men and 2,565 women were placed in new jobs.

The statistics were announced Tuesday at a seminar held by Canada Manpower in conjunction with Victoria Chamber of Commerce at Empress Hotel.

Manpower also placed 5,768 persons in temporary jobs — 4,468 in summer farm labor and 1,300 persons in student summer jobs and in Christmas work at the post office.

Another 456 persons were placed on full-time courses to learn new skills with free tuition and living allowances ranging from $37 to $97 per week, according to the number of the applicant's dependents. So far this year 66 persons received similar aid.

Exploration grants, to assist job applicants in journeying to interview employers in other centres were given to 30 persons in 1968 and to nine more so far in 1969.

FAMILIES MOVED

In 29 cases last year and six this year to date, Manpower provided funds for persons who wished to move their families to new jobs.

Emphasis was placed on the retraining program by visiting speaker, Director-general of Manpower, John C. Morrison of Ottawa. He said more than 300,000 Canadians will be retrained for new jobs in 1969 at a cost of $250 million.

Morrison said the federal government pays the full cost of retraining.

William J. Hurd, technical director of the Pacific Region, said in the future a computer system will be used in matching men and jobs.

He said more than 400 new centres for training had been established in recent years.

Victoria manager George Bevis gave examples of aid given workers locally. He said that when Victoria Machinery Depot closed its Ogden Point yard in 1967, about 130 welders were upgraded and today none of them are unemployed.

He said there is a continuing program of meetings with employers in effort to obtain more jobs for applicants. He noted the opening here of an office in the Belmont Building for placing people in domestic and sales employment.

Chamber Post Draws Wide-Ranging Bids

Competition to fill Victoria Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager's shoes is keen enough to draw applications from the U.S. and across Canada.

The vacancy, effective April 1, was caused with resignation of Earl Dicknoether, who has taken an industrial development and business co-ordinating post at Dawson Creek.

Ex-president William Armstrong, who heads the chamber selection committee, said all applications so far make a point of stating the Victoria area has both attraction as a place to live and challenge of growth. The job pays under $10,000 a year.

THIRD LOCAL

About one third of the 43 bids received up to Tuesday are local, but the rest are strung out across the country and others are expected before the end of the week when applications close. One inquiry was made by an American and at least one U.S. applicant is expected.

Several applicants reside in Quebec.

Average of applicants is the early 40s and several are just over 30.

Armstrong said a decision would be made in about four weeks.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me where I could get information on old mines, claims and maps, etc., at, on, or around Goldstream?—P.H.

A. This may be had by calling at Room 411 of the Douglas Building, which is an office of the provincial department of mines.

Q. How old is Ed Sullivan?—K.P.

A. Ed Sullivan will be 68 on September 28.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

INQUEST TUESDAY

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said an inquest will be held Tuesday into the death of David Gough, 4, of 2277 Marlene Drive.

The boy drowned Monday after he and playmate Gerald Solliman, 5, of 2272 Marlene Drive, fell through ice on Colwood Lake.

Gerald is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Funeral services for David will be held Friday at 11:15 a.m. at McCall Bros. Cremation will follow.

The inquest will open at 7:30 p.m. at McCalls.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gough, two sisters, Mrs. Sue Smith, 20, and Pat, 19, and a brother Gerry, 17.

A coroner's inquiry will be held into the death of Gerd Otto Paschke, 26, of 467 Dupplin, killed Monday in a motorcycle-truck crash on the Pat Bay Highway.

Teachers Must Pay for Parking

A $3 a month parking fee for teachers at the Institute of Adult Studies stays.

The Greater Victoria school board refused to budge on the subject when teachers asked that it be reconsidered.

Institute teacher Dennis Wing said the levy would damage staff morale. Teachers frequently use their cars in support of student activities.

John Smith, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, complained that the board had not informed the association of its intentions on parking charges.

The decision was made at a public board meeting a year ago, said chairman Carron Jameson. He repeated the board's plan eventually to charge students and teachers throughout the district for parking, and use the funds to provide more parking areas.

If Switchers Don't Turn Him On He's a Dimbulb

Switch to Twisters?

By PAT DUFOUR

So you don't have legs like Marlene Dietritch. So the girl-watching parade never notices you're around. Gals, don't give up. Next week you can be a traffic-stopper at Douglas and Yates.

The signal is switch to Switchers.

Switchers are the 'dream-child' of an American company, and have to be the most lethal weapon to ever make an aspiring gal's arsenal.

Their effect is stunning; so stunning you'll have to be prepared to treat your date for shock the first time you try them out for size.

●

This latest piece of man-bait hit Victoria this month. Even displayed on a lifeless manikin the results are likely to be catastrophic.

Twisters, the zaniest in the Switchers repertoire, are panty hose that produce the illusion of curves that would put Venus de Milo to shame.

The optical impact is created by the blending of two colors in a curvaceous design that sizzles the senses, even of the short-sighted.

They've changed the whole pattern of male shoppers. One look at them and those who once shuffled, embarrassed, by hosiery counters, now come back for double-takes. The normally blase turn coy.

●

Who can blame them? Even mini-skirts turn tame when topped with these psychedelic pretties. Any student of anatomy might well wonder if a refresher course is in order.

For the less brave, or desperate, there are two more patterns. One has the front of a leg cased in one color, the back in a vibrant contrast, the other is a saucy little number that splits the colors right down centre field.

Saleswomen report that sales are slow.

Could be that Victoria women still prefer to get their pitchers without aid of Switchers.

4 Victorians Selected For Orchestra

Auditions for the 1969 National Youth Orchestra have resulted in nine students being chosen from British Columbia.

Four are Victorians and one is a Vancouver girl now studying in Victoria and playing with the Symphony Orchestra here.

Vionists Velma Ko and John Rigby, cellist Norman Abbott, bassoonist Alan Denike are the Victorians. Jacqueline Tarry, a violinst now studying with Jack Kessler at the Victoria Conservatory of Music, is the fifth from this city.

NYO faculty member Stephen Kondaks, Montreal violist and McGill University teacher, conducted the auditions in major centres across Canada, with conductor for this year Victor Feldbrill.

HIGH CALIBRE

Both commented that the calibre of this year's candidates was "extremely high."

Due to size limitations of a symphony orchestra, not all those who warranted inclusion could be accepted. NYO directors have therefore decided to form a chamber group and 34 additional students will go to Toronto for a four-week training period.

Selection of these students who will study and perform within the framework of the July training session, will be announced shortly.

The NYO's 1969 tour schedule opens at the Stratford Festival in August and takes in various Maritime centres. The chamber group will not tour.

'Control Factory Farming of Animals'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will press federal and provincial governments for more rigid controls to protect domestic animals.

A. E. (Bob) Cunningham, president of the Victoria branch, said Tuesday the society has three objectives:

- Controls for "factory farming" of domestic animals.
- Regulations to cover the care of pregnant mares maintained for the cosmetic industry.
- Legislation to regulate the use of animals in medical research.

Cunningham said the society accepted the fact that factory farming is here to stay, but opposed some of its methods of raising animals for food.

Keeping calves in semi-darkness until butchered is an example. This is done to tenderize the flesh.

The society also opposes keeping poultry in cages. A common practice is to place hens in cages where they are kept for the duration of their egg-producing days.

The SPCA favored instead the deep litter method for keeping poultry as it provided more room and freedom of movement for the hens.

Cunningham said animal welfare organizations across Canada are concerned about the practice of keeping pregnant mares for the cosmetic industry.

The mares are confined to barns to facilitate collection of urine, he explained. The urine is used to produce estrogen, a hormone compound used in the manufacture of cosmetics.

The practice is confined to Ontario and Quebec and the society doesn't want it to spread to B.C., he said.

D. H. Beeching, secretary manager, said apart from pregnant mares being kept in perpetual confinement, their foals are taken away from them shortly after birth.

As the foals were not wanted, they were force-fed and trucked away for sale to various parts of the country, he said. They sell for about $5.

"Investigations have shown that many of the foals are confined to trucks for days, many suffering from injuries received in transportation."

Two states in the U.S. have banned the importation of foals from Canada due to the cruelty involved, he said.

"Another inhuman aspect of this trafficking" he said, "is the force-feeding. Foals are not like many other animals and don't take readily to it."

Beeching said the society is not opposing the use of animals for medical research providing they are raised and bred for such purpose and only used when absolutely necessary.

"That is we are opposed to their use of stray or unwanted dogs for medical research. We believe only animals raised for that purpose should be used."

Animals raised in captivity for medical purposes react quite differently from those raised as pets, he said.

"The latter suffers from stress when in captivity as he is accustomed to a different way of life. The other does not know any better."

He said the society also wants some independent authority to or decide when dogs or cats should be used for medical purposes.

"In many cases there is no necessity to use animals for research," he said. "Alternative methods could be used. In England they often use small pieces of tissues instead of animals for medical purposes. Lower forms of aninal life are also selected instead of dogs and cats."

PATHET LAO HOLDING 100 U.S. PILOTS

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — About 100 United States pilots have been shot down and captured in bombing raids on Laos and the Communist-led Pathet Lao is holding them in secret jungle prison camps, informed sources reported Tuesday.

Despite intensive efforts by the U.S. embassy, and the International Red Cross and by some families of the downed flyers, no word on the fate of the missing men has been received.

Gulf Islands Out in Cold On School Aid

Seven of the province's 89 school districts — including No. 64 covering the Gulf Islands — did not receive any provincial grants to help with operating expenses during 1968.

This was reported in the legislature's journals in an answer by Education Minister Donald Brothers to a question by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

A total of 43 of the school districts received less than 50 per cent of their operating costs from government grants, some down as low as .09 per cent for No. 72 (Campbell River) and .53 per cent for No. 47 (Powell River).

The seven districts which received no operating grants whatsoever were:

No. 29 Lillooet, No. 49 Ocean Falls, No. 52 Prince Rupert, No. 64 Gulf Islands, No. 80 Kitimat, No. 81 Fort Nelson, and No. 84 V.I. West.

All but the Gulf Islands have rich industrial or mineral property ratepayers who bear most of the annual school budget burden.

In the Gulf Islands, residential properties have hit such high assessments that school budgets are met under the minimum mill rate set by the cabinet each year.

79.3 PER CENT PAID

Highest proportion of help from government coffers goes to School District No. 83 Portage Mountain — where the W. A. C. Bennett Dam is located. The government paid 79.3 per cent of that school district's operating costs last year.

However, Belmont Park — the navy's residential quarters at Colwood — receives the greatest provincial support as a detached unit without a school board. Last year 99.96 of the operating costs for the Belmont School were paid by the province.

The local school boards all come in the less-than-50-per-cent bracket.

The government paid 46.74 per cent of Greater Victoria's school bills, 49.1 per cent of Sooke school district's costs and 47.62 of Saanich school district operations.

WIDOW WINS BATTLE TO SAVE HER TREES

ALDERGROVE, B.C. (CP)—A widow confined to a wheelchair, who threatened to use a gun to save her trees from a new power line, has won her battle with B.C. Hydro.

A spokesman for Hydro said Tuesday that engineers have proposed a system of stringing wires that will keep them away from the trees.

B.C. Hydro had said earlier the trees would have to go before a new power line could be erected fronting her 80-acre property near this Fraser Valley centre.

Mrs. Eileen Ingersoll, who has been confined to a wheelchair since a traffic accident two years ago, said Saturday she would defend the trees with a pistol if necessary.

Have Faith in Courts, Is Vice-Regal Advice

By STAN MULCAHY

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener urged West Indies students Tuesday to have faith in Canadian justice.

In a reference to the recent rampage at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, he said he could not discuss it in detail because the issue is before the courts. Eighty-nine students, including about 40 from the West Indies, face charges as a result of the destruction of the university's computer centre.

On his way into the lecture hall to address the faculty and students of the Barbados branch of the University of the West Indies, Mr. Michener was met by about 250 students carrying placards in protest against racial discrimination.

He won their cheers when he took a sign reading "Against Racism" and carried it briefly. "This is one I can agree with," the Governor-General said.

Mr. and Mrs. Michener, on a state visit to the Commonwealth Caribbean countries, travel to Trinidad and Tobago today. It will be their last stop.

At the university here, Undergraduate President Darlington Smith said in his formal welcome to the Micheners that Barbados students regret the damage at Sir George, "even though it was incited by other actions."

He said their main concern is that their brothers get a fair trial "in the land and city where Man and His World was the theme of Expo 67."

Mr. Mitchener said: "I think I can assure you that you should have the confidence in our courts that I have in yours, because I know we both have grown in the same mould and we believe that justice should be meted out to all without favor or affection or regard to condition in life."

The demonstrators said they were protesting against racial discrimination in the events leading up to the Sir George violence.

Socred Asks Government About Shares

A Social Credit backbencher today filed formal questions to the government on the Commonwealth Trust situation.

Evan Wolfe (SC—Vancouver Centre) was the first of his party to add his own questions to the bombardment of queries hurled at the government by opposition MLAs this week.

Wolfe placed his questions in the house journals, asking how many fully paid common shares with voting rights have been issued by the trust company.

He also enquired how many of such shares are registered in the names of A. G. Duncan Crux, C. J. Polvliet, Grarantie Establishment, Commonwealth Savings Plan limited, Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Limited, Evergreen Estates Limited compared with those held by any other persons or companies.

Broadcast Angers Britons

LONDON (AP) — British officials are seething over a BBC television commentator's cracks about President Nixon and Prime Minister Wilson during their meetings in London.

The BBC broadcaster, David Dimbleby, referred Monday to Nixon's "face for all seasons." Later he spoke of Wilson "hogging the limelight" during the presidential visit to Britain. The latter remark was said to have especially stung the prime minister.

The 29-year-old commentator is the son of the Itae Richard Dimbleby, known for his discreet and unflappable commentaries on the BBC.

Dimbleby kept up the acid attack Tuesday, commenting: "All of us, of course, will be kept fully in the dark about the discussions. Both Mr. Wilson and the president have expensively-hired press secretaries whose job it is to disguise the truth."

Nixon's aides were said to consider Dimbleby's comments strange.

The BBC said it regretted that commentaries on President Nixon's visit "included remarks which were unfortunate and inappropriate." It said it was making an inquiry "into all the circumstances."

Plant 'Ambassadors' Get Message Across

The international love of plants penetrates language and political barriers, the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society was told Tuesday night.

Rex Murfitt, a lecturer in the parks and gardening department of the B.C. Vocational School in Victoria, said lecturers from North America are being warmly welcomed behind the Iron Curtain "where interest is spreading in our plant ambassador."

THEY DON'T

All over the world, people think of England as the place where people grow all plants to perfection "and they don't, you know." But they did see the possibilities where others did not.

The flora in North America, and particularly in the Pacific Northwest, was second to none.

In England and Europe, among trees used extensively since Victorian times as the most desirable ornamental varieties, were spruces from Canada, Douglas Firs and Dogwoods from British Columbia.

English and European shrubberies show as their choicest plants such local ones as ceanothus, kalmias, mahonias and clethras.

AWARDS

A number of plants, all from the Pacific Northwest, have received awards of merit from the famous Royal Horticultural Society's Chelsea show in London.

The Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society will display a number of varieties at its annual spring show in Christ Church Cathedral memorial hall, 912 Vancouver, on Friday, April 25, from 2 to 10 p.m. and on Saturday April 26 from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.
